PEACE DELEGATES BLAST DUMBARTON OAKS PLAN

Only Soviet Unit Appears Satisfied with Formula

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 22—As the delegations of 46 nations flocked into San Francisco today the murmurs of dissatisfaction with the Dumbarton Oaks peace league plan mounted to a tumult. It was evident that many battles impend in the formulation of an international organization to prevent war.

Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], a leading member of the American delegation, reached the scene and unlimbered a bulky briefcase charged with ammunition in support of his proposed fundamental amendments to remove defects in Dumbarton Oaks likely to start more wars than the peace machinery could stop.

The other members of the delegation have indorsd the Vandenberg amendments — in principle — but it remains to be seen how far the delegation will go in their support in the face of determined opposition by the Russians. Moscow is particularly opposed to the proposed amendment under which the security council of the new league of nations could recommend revision of the partition of Poland or other war time agreements involving possible injustices.

Satisfied with Oaks Plan

The soviet delegation is virtually the only one bringing no proposed amendments to San Francisco. It is entirely satisfied with Dumbarton Oaks and so vigorously opposed to changes detrimental to soviet imperialism that Stalin will not hesitate to reject the plan if it does not meet his approval.

Following publication of the Vandenberg amendments recently, Moscow asserted that the Big Four powers that framed the Dumbarton Oaks proposals are obliged "to defend them against possible attempts . . . to amend or weaken them" and significantly added that if the United States or any other sponsor were to move amendments at San Francisco the labors at Dumbarton Oaks "would be wasted and the success of the conference jeopardized."

Voting Procedure Hit

The Netherlands delegation headed by Dr. Eelco van Kleffens, minister of foreign affairs, has brought one of the most penetrating criticisms of the voting procedure whereby a big power could veto armed action or coercion against itself or a favored small nation. The Dutch delegates favor limitation of the veto power to the use of armed force against third parties. They also propose that the votes of at least three instead of two of the six smaller countries in the council be required in addition to the Big Five for decisions. Furthermore, they ask assured representation on the council for such states as the Netherlands ranking next to the great powers.

REPORT TRUMAN STIFFENS STAND WITH MOSCOW

BY WALTER TROHAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 22—President Truman has determined to end the policy of absolute appeasement toward Russia, it was learned on highest authority tonight.

The decision was made before Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov arrived by United States army transport plane late this afternoon for a series of conferences with the President, State Secretary Stettinius and British Foreign Secretary Eden prior to the San Francisco world security conference. Molotov arrived as the British and American officials were smarting over Moscow's announcement of a 20 year friendship treaty with the soviet sponsored Polish regime.

The matter of soviet-American relations has been constantly before Mr. Truman since he took office 10 days ago because the grave Polish problem has cast a dark shadow over the west coast meeting.

Amazed by Developments

The chain of events leading to Mr. Truman's decision began, according to highly authoritative sources, as he took over the reins of government. At the time the new President took over he was assured that Stalin was prepared to compromise soviet insistence that only members of the provisional government at Warsaw be entrusted with Poland's government.

As these reports were printed in the national capital last Monday, the soviet radio announced that Russia was about to renew its demand for a seat at the San Francisco meeting for a delegation from soviet recognized Polish government. Officials here were amazed and perplexed by Stalin's change of front.

In searching for an explanation for the about face, officials recalled that Stalin had reportedly told President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill at Yalta that he was not a free agent, but had to yield at times to the demands of his generals.

See Soviet Military Influence

While this reported assertion is discounted as dictated by the needs of diplomacy, there is an increasing tendency here since the Stalin reversal of position to accept Stalin's statement at its face value.

On Thursday Gen. Marshall, army chief of staff, came to the White House for an unscheduled conference. According to informed members of congress he told the new President that Russia's aid is essential to victory in the Pacific and counseled that America's diplomatic policy be moulded accordingly.

Mr. Truman was prepared to accept the dictates of the chief of staff as gospel. However, he was urged to examine Marshall's statements even to summoning Gen. MacArthur and Adm. Nimitz here for a thoro canvass of the situation.

As he pondered this suggestion, Mr. Truman called for the opinions of other members of the high command. He was told bluntly that the American navy has virtually destroyed the Japanese fleet and there is no question of eventual American victory regardless of Russia's role.

Conferences Begun

It was believed Mr. Truman will make the new American position apparent to Molotov. The soviet envoy was met on his arrival by a state department delegation, headed by Secretary Stettinius, and taken to Blair-Lee House, next to the Blair House of President Truman, where he will be a guest while in Washington. Molotov paid his respects to the new President soon after his arrival and will confer with Mr. Truman again tomorrow.

After seeing Truman, Molotov went to the state department with Stettinius, where the two were met by Secretary Eden. The three conferred immediately.

First Complete Story Is Told of Lend-Lease Wastefulness

(This is the first in a series of articles on the operation of lend-lease abroad by Ralph M. Horton, South Dakota newspaper man, who entered the lend-lease organization on May 1, 1943. He spent several weeks in Washington, D. C., working in lend-lease national headquarters, and in August, 1943, was sent to North Africa, where he first engaged in general work and then was named mission officer for paper, office and school supplies, and printing equipment. In that capacity he passed on all requests from North Africa for paper of all kinds, office supplies, school supplies, and printing machinery and equipment. He was transferred at his own request to psychological warfare, working as a civilian with the rank of captain with the United States army in Italy until illness forced his return to this country last autumn. His observations are the first intimate word pictures of lend-lease in actual operation, the nature of its administration, and its effect on foreign peoples.)

BY RALPH M. HORTON
[Former Lend-Lease Official]

There are two theories vitally dangerous to the United States. The first is the Nazi theory that the world belongs to Germany. The second—equally dangerous to our future welfare—is that the United States belongs to the world.

Fortunately our American soldiers, with the help of allied armies in Europe, rapidly are taking the danger out of the first theory. However, high officials of our government in Washington are attempting now not only to convince this country of the merits of the second theory but already have sold it to millions of persons abroad.

Seeds of Misunderstanding

My experience as a lend-lease official in Washington and for nearly a year in North Africa convinced me that New Deal leaders in our national capital and the emissaries they have sent to the four corners of the globe have sown the seeds of misunderstanding that eventually will end in a harvest of recrimination. Many of these emissaries have been giving away the substance of this great nation with a reckless abandon that at first astonished and then delighted the foreign recipients. The harvest will be a crop of ill will toward this country that will be far more harmful to international coöperation than any good that may come from the temporary economic aid we are now giving our foreign neighbors.

I was astounded to find in my career as a lend-lease official—undertaken on patriotic grounds when army recruiting officers declared I was too old for active fighting—that large combines of the type used in our great wheat growing states

YANK CARRIES 6 NAZI SWORDS OUT OF PRISON CAMP

PARIS, April 22 (AP)—Even the almost shock-proof Parisians gaped as 21 year old George Wilson of Easton, Pa., stepped out of a train bringing liberated prisoners from Germany today.

He wore a thick gray fur coat, a bright blue shirt, and a brighter yellow tie. Six German swords hung from his arm, clashing and clanging with every step. A heavy German pistol was stuck in his belt beside a metal badge marked "Stalag 2A," the number of a prison camp near Zwickau.

"Are you a prisoner?" an astonished observer asked him in French. "Nope," answered Wilson, "but I was."

He was caught last December and spent the next four months at Zwickau, rebuilding German railroads until a week ago when American tanks approached.

STREICHER, NAZI LEADER, FLEES TO HIS FUEHRER

NUERNBERG, Germany, April 22 (AP)—Julius Streicher, the Nazis' No. 1 anti-Semite, publisher of the anti-Jewish Der Stuermer and, until about 1938 the official Nazi leader of Franconia, fled from Nuernberg a day or two before the Americans moved in, Streicher presumably fled to Berchtesgaden, a military government official said.

His successor, Karl Holz, committed suicide after first shooting and killing Nuernberg's lord mayor, Willi Liebl.

Holz and Liebl were in a tunnel running from the city hall to the castle. Probably they indulged in recriminations. At any rate, Holz evidently killed Liebl, then committed suicide, said AMG officers.

HITLER ADMITS HIS ARMIES ARE BEATEN AND ONLY GUERRILLAS

PARIS, April 22 (AP)—Adolf Hitler has indirectly admitted that his armies of the west now are beaten and incapable of more than guerrilla warfare. An order bearing his signature, captured by the British 2d army, told his troops to practice the guerrilla tactics "taught to us by the Russians."

"The situation on the western front is unfavorable to us because of the enemy's superiority in man power, material, and ammunition," it said. "Despite this, or rather because of it, we have to keep our energy up to key pitch.

"Only attacks against the enemy's flank and rear, with the disruption and cutting of his lines of communication, can guarantee success, in conjunction with partisan warfare. The main point in these attacks is to force the enemy with cunning and guile into positions in which his troops are spread out all over the country and in the greatest strength in those areas where he cannot afford it."

SHAEF DENIES YANKS REACHED BERLIN SUBURB

BY LARRY RUE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, April 22—Reports broadcast in the United States that American troops had reached Potsdam, suburb of Berlin, but withdrew on soviet demand were categorically denied at supreme headquarters today. "If any American troops reached Potsdam, they weren't under Gen. Eisenhower's command," it was stated here.

It is not doubted here that reconnaissance patrols have met, and for several days American and Russian flyers have joined in close support in attacking enemy targets.

The question is raised here as to whether, when the firm linkup occurs, correspondents at SHAEF will be informed on over-all operations on both fronts. So far, no arrangements have been made for over-all briefing, and probably won't be until some coördination of news operations is worked out after the event.

15 Filipino Babies Named for MacArthur in Day

Philadelphia, Pa., April 22 (AP)—A favorite name for Filipino babies is "Douglas," says the Rev. J. Edward Haggerty. Father Haggerty, former president of a sacked Jesuit college in northern Mindanao, told the Villiger Jesuit guild today he baptized as many as 15 infants named for Gen. MacArthur in a single morning.

REDS SEIZE SIXTH OF BLAZING CITY; NAZIS RESISTING BLOCK BY BLOCK

Patch's Men Cross Danube; French at Swiss Border

PARIS, April 23 [Monday]—(AP)—The thunder of United States and Russian guns 15 to 20 miles apart blended into a single victorious roar on the Berlin front Sunday as south bound allied armies hurdled the Danube and reached Lake Constance, 37 miles from Hitler's last stand in the Alps.

Besides reaching the lake that forms the western bulwark of Hitler's redoubt, the French seized Stuttgart—most important industrial city of South Germany, with a population of 459,000—and sealed off thousands of Germans in the Black forest by ramming to the Swiss frontier.

Tanks of Lt. Gen. Patch's 7th army in a 30 mile dash seized a bridge and sped across the Danube at Dillingen less than 10 miles from a super-highway leading 50 miles east to Munich, birthplace of Hitler's Nazi movement.

3d Gains 11 Miles

The United States 3d army on the east drove 11 miles on southeast in its envelopment of Czechoslovakia within about 185 miles of the Russians fighting up thru Austria.

While these trip-hammer blows fell in the south, the world awaited the electrifying news that the allies of the east and west had met in the heart of Germany.

A field dispatch from the 1st army front, where patrols pushing across the Mulde river east of Leipzig ran into resistance, said the Russians in that area were 25 miles from the American lines.

[A British broadcast put the distance at less than 10 miles on the basis of reports from field correspondents.]

French at Lake Constance

Hitler's great redoubt in the Alps was in the direst peril as three allied armies pounded on south.

French 1st army troops in a 15 mile dash reached Stockach and Ludwigshafen, on the shores of Lake Constance, 12 miles northwest of the famous resort of Constance, where the families of many high Nazis were reported holed up from the gathering allied storm. There the French were 37 miles from the frontier of Austria.

The French reached the Swiss frontier 20 miles west of Lake Constance, turning the Black Forest into a 1,000 square mile trap of death for units of the German 19th army.

1st Army Gains 11 Miles

The United States 1st army on the center of the western front advanced 11 miles in closing up to the Mulde river, cleared more than half of Dessau, 52 miles southwest of Berlin, and captured Raghun, Jessnitz, and Bitterfeld, 8, 10, and 15 miles south of Dessau.

To the northwest, the British 2d army broadened its hold on the west banks of the Elbe to 45 miles, fought on in the suburbs of Hamburg, and drove up to within less than eight miles of Bremen.

Bremen was being attacked fore and aft. While British troops maintained frontal pressure from positions two miles to the south of the city, other forces across the Weser river fought into and beyond Achin, eight miles southeast of Bremen.

Canadian 1st army troops west of Bremen were pressing the Germans back into the Cuxhaven peninsula and were five miles from its capital of Oldenburg.

The United States 3d army, pushing close to or across the Czech frontier on a 100 mile front, swung its south wing 11 miles eastward and entered Weiden, 185 miles northwest of Russian lines in Austria.

U. S. FLYERS SEE TOWNS AFLAME IN SOVIET PATH

BY JOHN THOMPSON
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH U. S. 1ST ARMY EAST OF THE MULDE RIVER, Germany, April 22—For the first time along any front, the Russian army drove near enough today so that American soldiers could tune in on operational radios and listen to Russian captains issuing orders to troops fighting the Germans in the rapidly closing gap between the Yanks and the Reds.

Lt. Col. Philip H. Pope of Washington, D. C., an artillery commander of an armored division, flew in a Cub plane from the bridgehead across the Zschopau river, east of Mittweida, and down a road to Freiberg, 15 miles from our frontiers, and saw burning German villages, east of that road junction. They had been set afire by artillery, Pope's plane drew no enemy fire.

The historic meeting of the Americans and Russians, which will sever northern and southern German forces, may come tomorrow altho no one here knows definitely.

Ready to Unfurl Flags

All front line forces, which might make the contact here or further north, have been ordered to carry American flags ready to be unfurled the moment the Russians are identified thru field glasses. All our vehicles are displaying prominently their bright colored aerial identification panels.

This matter of identification may be a problem. No one at this late stage wants to run the risk of a tragic error. I have yet to find an American soldier who has the least idea of what the Russian vehicles look like.

The regular 1st army correspondents here are struggling under the burden of masses of correspondents and visiting officers arriving from supreme headquarters, from other field armies, and from the air forces eager to get in on the big story.

The press is prepared for the juncture with Marshal Konev's forces should the first linkup come east of Mittweida. It could come there or further north.

Hears Russian Code

Further conclusive evidence of the Russian approach toward our lines came at 7 a. m. when the division signal officer, Lt. Col. William J. Given of Jackson, Tenn., first heard Russian soldiers talking in code. He knew it was Russian, but he wouldn't have known what the words were except for an interpreter, Pvt. Andrew Daman, 759 Milwaukee av., Chicago, whose Polish parents taught him some Russian.

On a captured German Lorenz radio, said by Given to be one of the best in the world, we listened to the unfamiliar Russian tongue. Most of it was coming thru in unfamiliar code, but Daman said that such words as "sheep, vulture, and daisy" could be identified.

Then one Russian, apparently commanding a small unit, possibly of tanks, was heard clearly, demanding that a certain heavy machine gun get into action in a hurry. And a little later we heard another commander ordering three guns, possibly tank guns, to fire on a certain target.

Definitely the Russians were in action out in front of us. Judging by our reception of our own army radios they might be across the Elbe river.

8,000 Germans Die in Day's Battle, Moscow Says

WAR MAPS
Developments in the battle for Germany and Hitler's redoubt in the Alps are illustrated in maps on the back page. A detailed map of Berlin appears on page 2.

LONDON, April 23 [Monday]—(AP)—Red army shock troops were reported fighting in the heart of Berlin today against fanatical Nazis who lost at least 8,000 dead yesterday in a devastating block-by-block defense.

Twenty-one of the city's districts, comprising one-sixth of its area, already were in Russian hands, the soviet bulletin said last night and an early morning Moscow statement said the fighting was "raging day and night without dying down a single moment."

The Paris radio reported the Russians reached Unter den Linden in the heart of Berlin and said fierce fighting was raging around the Brandenburg Tor. The broadcast quoted "a secret German language station" as the source of its information.

Chancellery Shelled

Moscow, Berlin, and Stockholm reports said whole areas of Berlin were under artillery and aerial bombardments. Potsdamer Platz was said to be in ruin; Hitler's reich-chancellery said to have been struck by shells that rained on the Wilhelmstrasse and Unter den Linden. The western districts of Charlottenburg and Wilmersdorf were blanketed by heavy gunfire.

The Russians were back in Berlin for the first time since they occupied the city in 1760 during the Seven Years war.

The Germans themselves said, thru the Scandinavian telegraph bureau [STB] which they control, that Russian tanks and infantry reached the center of Berlin Sunday. They frankly told of the horror of 3,000,000 civilians packed so closely in underground shelters that they could not sit down and dared not go outside while the tremendous battle raged over their heads.

Escape Cut Narrowed

While the soviets pushed as much as seven miles inside the city, by Moscow's reports, an STB dispatch from Berlin said the escape gap to the west had been narrowed to nine miles. There was no confirmation from the soviet high command or from Berlin's radio transmitters, but the dispatch said the Russians had swept beyond the southwestern suburb of Potsdam and that "it is not impossible that the capital will be entirely encircled within the next 24 hours."

The STB reported that the Russians were approaching Templehof airdrome.

The center of the three-quarters encircled capital was outflanked by the capture of Luebars, Blankenfelde and Rosenthal, taken in a seven mile sweep into the city in a 12 mile advance from Bernau, Moscow revealed.

At Rosenthal, Premier Stalin's tankmen were five and a half miles north of the burning city center. The STB's Berlin correspondent, Edward Sandeberg, relaying this dispatch thru Copenhagen, said Russian tank-riding tommygunners had pushed down thru the city to its builtup center.

23,000 Nazis Surrender

The soviet bulletin, more conservative than German accounts, said, nevertheless, that 18 of Berlin's inner districts and three outer suburbs had been taken and that fighting now was in progress in the Berlin belt railway area after suburban resistance centered around street car stations had been crushed.

Begrimed Russian fighters who have fought their way from Moscow and Stalingrad swarmed thru Berlin's streets as 23,000 Nazi soldier gave up and were roped into

Red army prisoner cages during five days.

By Moscow's account since the great offensive began a week ago more than 945 Nazi tanks have been destroyed or captured and 780 of the Luftwaffe's last planes have been shot down or seized.

Battle at Rail Station

Smashing forward under the heaviest concentration of artillery employed in this war, the soviet wall of steel swept into Berlin's northern and eastern districts on a twisting 30 mile front from the northwestern district of Glienicke to Wilhelmshagen and Friedrichshagen on the east, Moscow revealed.

The Russians were said to have lunged down thru debris littered Reinickendorf and Wedding, two populous workers' districts, to Stettiner station. A machine gun battle was reported raging in the depot area at sunrise yesterday.

The soviet bulletin said Red army shock troops, lunging four miles inside the city limits in a 10 mile surge on the north, captured industrial Weissensee, four miles from the center of the city.

Other Moscow reports said that from Weissensee a wave of tanks was sweeping down Greitswalder strasse, sweeping before it German armored units, self propelled guns and anti-tank battalions. They were moving toward Alexander platz, the reports said.

Advance Near Dresden

From captured Hohenschoenhausen and near-by Marzahn in northeastern Berlin, other assault groups were battling along Landsberger chaussee and were within three miles of Schlesischer rail depot by Moscow's account.

On the east, the Russians plunged into Biesdorf and, the German high command reported, were fighting into the industrial district of Lichtenberg, four miles from the city center. Other troops poured into the city near captured Erkner, avoided Gross Mueggel See and took Friedrichhagen in a sweep thru Schoenicke.

South of Berlin, Red army tanks pounded across the wooded plains of Brandenburg along a 104 mile front, gaining up to 21 miles, which carried them into the rail and road center of Elsterwalde, 27 miles northwest of the outflanked Saxon capital of Dresden.

Allied and Berlin reports indicated that all escape routes from Berlin to the Nazis' Bavarian redoubt had been severed.

Gain North of Vienna

North of Vienna, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukrainian army drove to within three miles south of the important rail center of Laa by capturing Altenmarkt, and swept five miles northeast of the transit hub in a lunge to Wildenduernbach. Malinovsky's troops were advancing on a 28 mile front.

In northern Yugoslavia, large forces of Marshal Tito's army of liberation continued their drive westward in the valley between the Drava and Sava rivers. Gaining 18 miles, they hammered within 75 miles east of the Croatian capital of Zagreb, and captured the important rail towns of Brod and Pozega.

A hostile army has not invaded Berlin since 1806 when Napoleon swept in from the west. In 1760 Russian cossacks sacked Berlin after driving out the forces of Frederick the Great.

GERMAN BULLETIN

The German Sunday bulletin as recorded by the Associated Press:

In the southern part of the eastern front, German counter-attacks have made good progress south of Semmering. The Russians vainly attempted to advance southwards southeast of St. Poelten.

Northwest of Morawa-Ostrawa our formations foiled repeated enemy breakthru attempts in fierce fighting. A few enemy penetrations were sealed off.

All along the front from the Sudeten to the Stettin area our troops are engaged in fierce fighting.

To the northwest of Goerlitz the gap in the front was closed by a successful counter-attack. The garrison of Bautzen defended itself bravely against the enemy attacking with strong forces.

To the south of Cottbus the Russians brought up further forces to feed their offensive south of Berlin and reached the line Treuenbrietzen-Zossen, south of Koenigswusterhausen. Street fighting is in progress in Cottbus and Fuersterwalde. To the east and north of Berlin the enemy thrust forward to the outer defenses of the capital after severe fighting.

Very bitter fighting is in progress for the line Lichtenberg-Neiderschoenhausen-Frohhau. On the Oder front the enemy was able to extend his bridgehead between Greifenhagen and Stettin but was thrown back again by our counter-attacks.

Dutch Fly Freedom Flag Too Soon; Shot by Nazis

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, April 22 [Reuters]—Dutch civilians are being shot by the Germans in the area east of Amsterdam because they displayed flags to celebrate their expected liberation, according to reports by Canadian patrols. The Dutch farmers in the area near Nijkerk thought the patrols were liberation forces. When the patrols withdrew, the Germans returned and shot many of the Dutchmen.

26 Killed by Pilfered Liquor in Leipzig; 150 Ill

LEIPZIG, Germany, April 22 (AP)—Twenty-six liberated Russian and Polish workers died and 150 others were taken to hospitals in critical condition after a drinking celebration in the Leipzig railway yards. They broke into an unguarded boxcar and drained many bottles of an unidentified liquid. American authorities are analyzing the liquid, which they believed to be denatured alcohol.

340 German Internees Leave Turkey for Home

ISTANBUL, Turkey, April 22 [Reuters]—About 340 German diplomats and other German citizens who had been interned in Ankara and Istanbul have left Istanbul in the Swedish ship Drottningholm for Germany. About 120 German internees allowed to remain in Turkey will be confined in the interior of Anatolia.

A WOMAN RISKS LIFE TO TELL OF GERMAN TERROR

Nazis Snipe at Reds in Leipzig Region

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LEIPZIG, Germany, April 22—Altho the Americans have conquered Leipzig, Nazi terror is not ended in this region. A German woman, who had been seen speaking to me, was threatened with death by her neighbors if she dared tell of the family's suffering under the Nazis.

In a village near Leuna we found hundreds of Russian men and women who did not dare go into town to seek food because the residents still had guns and were shooting at the Russians whenever they came near. The military government has taken over Leuna but until yesterday failed in its efforts to disarm completely all German snipers.

Tells of Communist Plot

When the German woman who wanted to speak to me realized she was being watched, she slipped her address to me and I met her in a tiny flat. She revealed that in September a Leipzig citizen and other bourgeois friends tried to overthrow the Nazis by coöperating with a group of Leipzig Communists and a number of Russians.

They were so numerous and had accumulated so many weapons that they believed the time to strike had come. But some Russians were caught distributing leaflets and the patriot and all his friends were arrested.

The Russians Disappear

The Russians disappeared, probably killed outright. The woman's husband was able to prove during a trial in December that he was not connected with the plot, but he was still suffering the aftermath of torture. His companions were sentenced to death. A number of them were executed but it is not known whether the patriot was executed.

SWISS SHUT BORDER; BELIEVED BARRIER TO FLIGHT OF NAZIS

LONDON, April 22 (AP)—The Swiss radio announced tonight that the Swiss-German frontier had been closed and traffic similarly halted between Switzerland and Lichtenstein on the eastern border of Switzerland.

The broadcast quoted an official announcement of the Swiss federal government.

The Swiss offered no official explanation for the action but the development caused speculation in London that it was aimed at preventing the flight of high Nazi officials or their families across the frontier to neutral Switzerland, under their own names or assumed identities.

Report Mussolini's Milan Villa Bombed by Italians

LONDON, April 22 (AP)—BBC quoted a French telegraph service dispatch from the Italian frontier today saying Mussolini's villa in Milan had been attacked with bombs by "members of the Italian resistance." Two bombs placed in rooms usually occupied by Mussolini exploded during his absence, killing two bodyguards, it said.

World War I. Type Plane Shot Down Over Germany

LONDON, April 22 (AP)—The German luftwaffe is apparently not only scraping the bottom of the barrel; it seems to be scratching around in the museum. United States 9th air force fighter bombers today shot down a German biplane of World War I. type.

Haven of Petain, Laval Is Reported Captured

New York, April 22 (AP)—Troops of the French 1st army have captured Sigmaringen where Marshal Petain and Pierre Laval took refuge, the British radio said today. CBS recorded the broadcast.

GOEBBELS FLEES PANICKY BERLIN, SWEDEN HEARS

LONDON, April 22 (AP)—Dispatches from Stockholm, quoting the German controled Swedish telegraph bureau [STB], said today that Gauleiter Paul Joseph Goebbels fled from Berlin to Mecklenburg after promising panic-stricken residents to stay in the burning capital and appealing to men, women, and children to mount its defenses.

Communications between Berlin and Stockholm were broken just after this report was received, the dispatch said.

Rumors, some fantastic, fed on an atmosphere of panic in the German capital. One rumor, STB said, spread word of "capitulation negotiations." But this, like the report concerning Goebbels, could not be checked.

Won't Take Up Arms

It was clear, the Berlin dispatch said, that "the great part of the Berlin population was not going to follow the appeal to take up arms, and the civil population was said to be 'mostly remaining passive.'"

A report from Switzerland said Nazi party leaders, Gestapo men, and collaborationists of all nationalities who recently had swarmed into the Lake Constance area from Berlin were fleeing to that country now.

One Swiss report said the wives of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler, Reichsminister Hermann Goering, and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop were among those reported in flight.

Goebbels' Plea Ignored

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 22 (AP)—The mass flight from Berlin has reached an immense scale and Propaganda Minister Goebbels' appeal to observe traffic discipline in order to give German armies unhampered movement has been ignored, the Berlin correspondent of the Swedish telegraph bureau said today.

"For most Berliners it was a question of protecting and saving their lives," the dispatch said. "Transport of wounded from Berlin's east end is also increasing. Berlin's trams, buses, trucks, horse carriages, and underground and elevated railways are steadily carrying wounded thru central and western Berlin toward Spandau. It is difficult to understand how or where they will be treated. Among them are more and more boys and women.

Boys Fight Fanatically

"It is common talk that the 'Hitler boys'—12 to 14 year olds and sometimes younger — are fighting better than most grown up soldiers.

"The Berlin authorities today ordered all productive life in the city to adjust itself to the front situation. What the order means is not entirely clear, because there isn't any productive life to speak of. The employes of the tram, bus, and underground lines, however, were in service as usual."

The STB report said Berlin's churches were crowded on Sunday morning. "But," he said, "no bells rang, and the services were punctuated by uninterrupted bursts of shells and bombs."

HUSBAND REPORTED MISSING

Mrs. Berniece Nemerow, 4845 N. Lawndale av., told police yesterday that her husband, Joseph, 47, has been missing since April 17.

CHICAGOANS WAIT REDS; HOLD SEAT FOR STALIN

But Elbe Unit Has No Word from Kremlin

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MAGDEBURG, Germany, April 22—Maj. Gen. Robert Macon, commander of the 83d division, placed a chair marked "Reserved for Joe Stalin" at the staff tables as reconnaissance forces lined up to stab forward from the bridgehead east of the Elbe to meet the first arriving motorized elements of the Red army, which German bulletins place within 35 miles of the river.

But, with no confirmation from Moscow and no inkling of the Red army's intentions, one American staff officer was complaining at the Kremlin's failure to keep the western allies informed of the Red army's movements.

"Joe should not forget we're fighting this war, too," said the Yank officer after listening to a liberated Russian prisoner of war, Lt. Theo. Prissjaschinyuk, scheduled to be unofficial liaison officer between the 83d division and the Red army when contact is made, describe how the soviets owed their salvation to the United States.

Unit Commanders Listed

"American munitions, tanks, guns, airplanes, motor trucks, machine guns, and food, sent as lend-lease, enabled the Russian people and the Red army to defeat Hitler's Fascists," the soviet officer asserted without reservation.

Lt. Col. Granville Sharpe of Burlington, N. C., will lead the reconnaissance force to contact the Russians, with the following among the men included in its units:

Infantry Men Ride Tanks

Among the infantry men stowed atop the tanks with automatic weapons, grenades, and bazookas are Pvt. Don Denhart, Sgt. Archie Mackey, Joliet, Ill; Pvt. Frank Cyrneck, 5154 S. Kostner av., Chicago; Pvt. William Oleska, Gary, Ind.; Pvt. Claude Clark, 1351 E. 76th st., Chicago; Pvt. Frederick Foley, Decatur, Ill.; Pvt. William Nickels, Knox, Ind.; Pvt. Michael Panici, 133 E. 23d st., Chicago Heights, Ill.; Pvt. Olen Allen, 3808 Ellis av., Chicago; Pvt. Allen Clark, Monticello, Ind.; Pvt. William Carpenter, Danville, Ill., and Pvt. William Bowman, El Paso, Ill.

In the lead tank were Pvt. Joseph Geselter, 211 S. Loomis st., Chicago, and Pvt. Michael Maranovich, Clinton, Ind.

These are among the men who will have the honor of making the first contact with the Red army, which can be expected at any hour.

BRITISH CAPTURE 500 GERMAN 'WAVES'—AND A COMPLETE CIRCUS!

PARIS, April 22 (AP)—British tank troops today captured the German North sea naval district headquarters at Buxtehude, 10 miles west of Hamburg, together with its commandant, Adm. Siegfried Engel, and 500 German women naval personnel dressed in bell-bottomed trousers and blue coats.

The enemy "Waves" added variety, as well as a problem, to the prisoner catch of the 11th armored division.

To the east they picked up another curious assortment, a circus in full working order except for two bears which had been wounded. Two elephants were unscratched. A British staff sergeant captured at Tobruk who had been assigned to driving a truck in Berlin drove it into the British lines. He said the Germans have rebuilt a large part of Berlin.

Believe Body in Seine Is American Organist's

PARIS, April 22 (AP)—Police disclosed today that a body believed to be that of Lawrence Whipp, American organist and choirmaster of the American [Episcopal] cathedral of the Holy Trinity here, had been recovered Friday from the Seine river. Whipp, an organist in Denver, Colo., before he came here 23 years ago, had been missing since Feb. 2. Whipp had been interned by the Germans after the United States entered the war.

Japs in Burma Stiffen Resistance to British

CALCUTTA, India, April 22 (AP)—Japanese resistance has stiffened in the Shan hills and the enemy has brought up artillery on the road running east from Thazi in central Burma in attempts to stop the British advance, a southeast Asia bulletin said tonight. British troops have overcome resistance on Mount Popa, 30 miles south southeast of Pakokku. The Japanese are entrenched on a 2,000 foot hill to the south which covers an escape route.

Sweden Will Return 30 German 'Error' Refugees

New York, April 22 (AP)—Thirty German civilian refugees will be returned to their homeland by way of Denmark, the Swedish radio said today in a dispatch heard by the FCC. They all protested, the dispatch said, that they got to Sweden "by mistake."

FREED FLYERS TELL OF MONTHS IN NAZI CAMPS

Joliet Pilot Homebound with Decorations

BY LARRY RUE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, April 22—Capt. Carl J. Luksic of 714 N. Central av., Joliet, Ill., 24, Mustang pilot, holder of the distinguished flying cross with seven clusters, the air medal with three clusters, and the Purple Heart, is on his way home after his escape from a German prisoner of war camp near Nuernberg, his subsequent recapture, and eventual liberation by the Yanks.

He and three other airmen who had spent from one to two years in prison camps, told their stories today to THE TRIBUNE before leaving Paris, homeward bound. The companions who escaped with him are 1st Lt. Fred Clemovitz, 22, Mustang pilot, of Phoenix, Ariz.; 1st Lt. Harold Romm, 30, of Philadelphia, Pa., a bombardier, and 1st Lt. Jesse E. Fuchs, 23, bombardier, of Flushing, N. Y.

Shot Down at Hannover

Luksic was shot down May 24, 1944, north of Hannover. He was strafing an airdrome when, he said, "the right wing was torn off by flak and the plane was set afire. I bailed out at a low altitude and hit the ground just as my parachute opened. I was captured immediately and spent the night in a cell, then was sent to Frankfurt for nine days.

"Then I went to Sagan internment camp. The Russian offensive forced us to move out from Sagan to Muskau, then to Nuernberg, where we stayed until April 4. We then moved out because the Americans were only 66 kilometers away. [A kilometer is ⅝ mile.] We escaped from the column and spent 10 days sleeping in the woods. We were recaptured by volkssturm [people's army] troops at Veitsaurach, and marched to Schwabach, where we were liberated by the Yanks."

Cannon Hits One Plane

Clemovitz was shot down May 28, 1944, on an escort mission flying to Magdeburg. "My plane was hit by 20 millimeter cannon when our flight was attacked by a formation of 50 German planes," he said. "The engine was knocked out and I bailed out at 18,000 feet, but delayed pulling the ripcord to about 3,000 feet because a dogfight was going on. I fell thru that unscathed."

He, too, was captured as soon as he touched the ground. He met Luksic at Frankfurt and from then on shared his experiences.

Romm was shot down April 17, 1943. Five men of his Flying Fortress crew were killed, Romm was wounded by a 20 millimeter bullet fragment in his leg, and the ship broke in half as he bailed out. His leg was bleeding badly, and as he parachuted to the ground he put on a tourniquet to stop the flow of blood.

Fuchs Downed in Italy

Fuchs was shot down in Italy June 5, 1944. Three members of the crew of the Fortress he was flying were able to bail out safely. He said the worst time he experienced was when the hospital in which he was lying was the target of American artillery.

All of the airmen were anxious for their families to know they are in perfect health and none the worse for their experiences. They said the food was none too good any time, but the treatment they received became bad only the last few weeks.

Report Hitler's Newspaper Plant Destroyed by Fire

STOCKHOLM, April 22 (AP)—The building housing Adolf Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter was burned to the ground Friday night, the German controled Scandinavian telegraph bureau reported from Berlin today. The agency said carelessness by workers using a welding machine was blamed.

3,000 LIBERATED YANKS STARTING FOR HOME DAILY

Fly from Germany in Groups of 25

HILDESHEIM, Germany, April 19 [Delayed]—(AP)—American soldiers who have been prisoners in Nazi stalags in the 9th army sector are being flown from the captured German air field here, 3,000 to 5,000 a day.

There is a smile on every face. They know their next stop will be a port in France, where they will board an ocean liner for the United States.

Each of Lt. Gen. Simpson's divisions overran prisoner of war camps between the Rhine and the Elbe, liberating about 200,000 Americans, British, Poles, Russians, French, Italians, and soldiers from the Balkans.

Each division brings here the prisoners it has liberated. The men are assigned billets in the former German air force barracks, after being deloused.

Just Soak Up Sun

A hospital across the field tends the sick or wounded.

Awaiting pickup by the 8th air force troop carrier C-47s, they have little to do but sit and soak up the sun, or sweat out the coffee line—never much more or much less than 100 yards long.

The prisoners are organized into groups of 25 to await their turn for the plane ride out. Idly they watch the skies as C-47s circle the field, wondering if each is the ship for which he waits. Their uniforms are tattered and dirty with grease and mud. Some bear the stains of blood.

Some of these men can get around only with the aid of crutches or canes. Their eyes are dull and their shoulders droop, but when their turn comes up to board the plane, every face lights up.

Eat 50,000 Doughnuts

They get three issues of K rations a day, but after 18 months in a German prisoner of war camp, K rations can seem delicious, Corp. William O'Conner of 1722 W. Monroe st., Chicago, has discovered. He was captured in Italy a year ago when the Germans took almost the whole 1st Ranger battalion, but right now he is helping pretty "Jimmie" Broughton, a Red Cross girl from Newark, O., make doughnuts. The clubmobile has turned out 50,000 doughnuts in five days and 1,229 gallons of coffee in one day.

The Red Cross girls were on the job quickly, giving aid to these men whose need was so great.

BREMEN AND KIEL HIT; FLYERS CLEAR PATH FOR PATTON

LONDON, April 22 (AP) — Heavy bombers of the R. A. F. tonight hit Bremen, Germany's second largest port, less than 24 hours after R. A. F. Mosquitos hammered Kiel. Earlier, fighter bombers of the United States 9th air force slashed German rail lines and highways along the path of Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army drive into Czechoslovakia.

Bremen and Kiel are keys to Germany's northern defense area, now virtually cut off from the rest of the reich. Bremen has direct rail communications to Hamburg, Germany's greatest port, and to Berlin.

Announcement that a bombing line had been drawn in front of the Russian lines to prevent accidental bombing of soviet troops apparently signaled the end of the R. A. F.'s almost nightly raids on Berlin. Bad weather kept United States 8th air force heavy bombers idle for the first time since April 2.

MURDER CAMPS CITED IN PLEA FOR WAR TRIALS

LONDON, April 23 [Monday] (AP)—Murder camps found in Germany will help the western allies understand Russia's demand for trial of Fascist war criminals, the Moscow radio, quoting the soviet newspaper Pravda, said today.

"Allied troops are moving thru Germany today," said the broadcast. "They see not only smooth German landscapes and clean little town houses. They also see concentration camps.

"The British press with just indignation writes of the atrocities committed in concentration camps, in Buchenwald. What is Buchenwald? It is Maidanek, but in miniature. These are the same gallows, the same twisted and mutilated persons, the same furnaces in which the unhappy victims of the Fascist hangman were burnt. Now that our allies, too, have seen what we have seen they will understand why we so steadfastly demand trial of the Fascist hangmen on whose consciences are millions of tortured soviet people."

DECORATE YANKS ON FIELD WHERE HITLER STRUTTED

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

IN THE PRESS BOX OF ZEPPELIN STADIUM, Nuernberg, Germany, April 22—This vast arena, where Adolf Hitler periodically strutted before hosts of Nazis, was the scene today of a well planned indignity for the fuehrer—a scene unprecedented in American history.

From the battle weary but perfectly aligned ranks of the 3d infantry division stepped five young men. Vividly phrased citations telling of heroism beyond the call of duty, were read and then around the neck of each soldier Lt. Gen. Patch, commander of the 7th army, clasped the ribbon of the congressional medal of honor, the nation's highest award for valor.

The five were congratulated by Patch and Maj. Gen. John W. [Iron Mike] O'Daniel, the divisional commander. "The Star Spangled Banner" and "The Dog Faced Soldier," the 3d's official march, were played and the American flag was raised.

Chicagolander Honored

Recipients were Tech. Sgt. Russell Dunham of Wood River, Ill.; Staff Sgt. Lucian Adams of Port Arthur, Tex.; Pvt. Wilburn Ross of Strunk, Ky.; Lt. John J. Tominac of Lincoln, Neb., and Lt. Col. Keith L. Ware of Glendale, Cal.

Dunham, of the 30th regiment, won his medal in the Colmar pocket last December. Carrying 12 grenades and a tommy gun, he went on a company raid which gained a hill and a town. Altho wounded, he knocked out three German machine guns, killed nine of the enemy, and captured four.

Adams led a raid in the Vosges mountains west of St. Die last October.

Ross threw back nine German counter-attacks west of St. Die in October, killing about 50 of the enemy. Tominac manned a machine gun on a disabled Sherman tank and smashed an enemy strongpoint.

Ware led nine enlisted men and two officers uphill against six German machine guns in the Colmar pocket in December. He killed four Germans and captured 40.

Bigger than Soldiers' Field.

The Zeppelin stadium on the southeastern edge of Nuernberg was used by Hitler for big Nazi rallies. Its design is reminiscent of Soldiers' field in Chicago, but the Zeppelin stadium is much larger. It has accommodated 450,000 persons on occasions.

Above the rostrum from which Hitler spoke is a huge gilded swastika and there are swastikas atop many poles about the grounds. Now grass grows over many of the benches, and the swastikas are tarnished. The stadium has been a forlorn place but this afternoon it was alive with the might and glory of American accomplishments.

7 CHICAGOANS WIN BRONZE STARS FOR ACTION IN GERMANY

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 95TH INFANTRY DIVISION, Germany, April 22—Seven Chicagoans of the 95th infantry division have been awarded the bronze star for various acts of heroism, gallantry, and devotion to duty during the campaign inside Germany.

The decorations were conferred by Maj. Gen. Harry Twaddle, division commander.

The recipients were Sgt. Edward Zawislak, 2641 43d st., for gallantry at the Saar river; Sgt. Robert Greenburg, 1312 Ardmore av., for heroism at Saarlautern; Staff Sgt. Leonard Sowa, 3755 George st., for bravery at Spruecker, Germany; Staff Sgt. William Fenn, 5325 S. Spaulding av., for meritorious service; Staff Sgt. Gonzalo Sandoval, 2917 N. Whipple st., for "exemplary devotion to duty"; Sgt. Delphin Osborn, 2309 N. Ridgeway av., for outstanding courage, and Sgt. Richard Thieme, 7546 Wood st., for gallantry and devotion to duty.

A CHICAGOAN'S PLANES STAY UP WITHOUT MISHAP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 22 — Staff Sgt. Percy E. Blount of 6 N. Lavergne av., Chicago, who has groomed Mustangs of the 357th fighter group so successfully that none he has handled has had to return from a mission because of mechanical difficulty, is called one of the ablest plane crew chiefs in the 8th air force.

His wards have flown more than 175 combat missions, representing a total of more than 660 operational hours, which is more than double what is considered a good maintenance record.

Sgt. Blount's commanding officer is Lt. Col. Irwin Dregne of Viroqua, Wis., who led the 357th in a record breaking battle over Berlin on Jan. 14, when it destroyed 576 nazi planes.

Sgt. Blount's wife is the former Cleo Markley. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Blount, 4852 Fulton st., Chicago. A brother, Corp. James E., is with the infantry in the Philippines.

Report Town in Germany Declared First Open City

New York, April 22—Radio Atlantic in a broadcast heard by NBC said today that Konstanz on Lake Contance, has been declared the first open city in Germany. All military objects have been removed from the city, the broadcast said, adding that about 1,000 British and American wounded have been brought there during the last few days.

Report Austrian Troops Mutiny, Fight for Danes

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, April 23 [Monday] — (AP) — Five Danes were killed, 10 were wounded, and a "considerable" number of Germans became casualties in a skirmish in Copenhagen early Sunday when Danish patriots tried to take a cannon out of a German barracks, Swedish dispatches from Malmo said today. Austrians in the barracks were said to have mutinied and supported the Danes.

8 CONGRESSMEN VIEW BUTCHERY AT BUCHENWALD

'Bears Out Eisenhower,' Says One at Nazi Camp

'No Exaggeration'

LONDON, April 22 (AP)—Members of the parliament committee returned today from Buchenwald, Germany, and agreed "there has been no exaggeration" of the horrors at the Nazi concentration camp. The delegation of eight members of parliament and two peers will report to the house and a written account of what they saw is expected to be published as a white paper.

BUCHENWALD PRISON, Germany, April 22 (AP)—Eight American congressmen walked among the horrors of Buchenwald prison today and got shocked eyewitness proof of a Nazi world in which human life was not worth that of an animal.

They came at the personal invitation of Gen. Eisenhower, who wanted them to see for themselves this village where decency was torn aside and men died like beasts in one of Germany's worst butcher shops.

"This is barbarism at its worst," said Rep. Canfield [R., N. J.], "and it is a bad commentary on civilization. Gen. Eisenhower has presented proof of the atrocities. This bears out everything he or any one else has said."

Shocked Beyond Belief

With Canfield were Representatives Manasco [D., Ala.], Jackson [D., Wash.], Wilson [R., Ind.], Rains [D., Ala], Worley [D., Tex.], Bennet [R., Mo.], and Walter [D., Pa.]. They were in England on various missions when they received the invitation from Eisenhower to make a special trip to Buchenwald.

Each said he was shocked almost beyond belief at what he saw and was told by the prisoners.

"This is the most horrible thing that any one could conceive," said Manasco.

That is the reaction of every one who goes thru this camp of horrors—a camp where emaciated bodies are still stacked like cordwood, where bodies were shoved into furnaces and burned, where men were hung on spikes like sides of beef until they died, and where thin, emaciated children look at you from great lifeless eyes because they remember nothing but prison life.

21,000 Captives Freed

The Americans liberated 21,000 prisoners in Buchenwald 11 days ago and conditions have improved considerably since then, but there is no way to erase this tragedy as long as the shambles of humanity who were the prisoners wander about the place waiting until somebody takes them home.

Hundreds of Americans, British—and German civilians from the nearby town of Weimar—visit the camp daily to see the living dead and be convinced that the report of Nazi atrocities is not just propaganda.

Behind one building was the most gruesome sight of all—bodies piled up on each other like logs ready for mass burial.

In the courtyard nearby was a pile of ashes and bits of bone—the remains of the dead burned in the 12 furnace crematory.

None Emerged Alive

Below the furnaces was a room from which the prisoners said none of their number ever emerged alive. Along the walls were hooks like those in a butcher shop. Bodies—and the prisoners said some that still had life — were hung there until the furnaces were ready.

Yet somehow the dead were not as pitiful as those hulks of men and boys walking about the place. There was death in their eyes, but they still moved and talked—zombies created by the Nazis.

In one barracks which had housed Nazi S. S. troops, the American camp commandant, Maj. L. C. Schmuhl, Michigan City, Ind., had put 800 children, most of whom had been evacuated from the dread Oswiecim camp in Poland by the Germans.

Most of them are Polish Jews who were brought to Buchenwald to work. None of them knew what had become of their families. Some had a faint remembrance of their parents.

Million Acres of Holland's Farms Flooded by Germans

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, Holland, April 22 [Reuters]—Air photographs today showed for the first time the full extent of the disastrous flooding of the northwestern section of Holland. What a week ago was a 50,000 acre belt of rich farmlands now is a great black sheet of water 16 feet deep.

Not a house or a tree or a road is to be seen—except for a few dark blotches to mark where some houses are two or three feet beneath the surface. No living thing could have survived this torrent which swept in from the Zuider Zee last Wednesday when the Germans dynamited the great main dyke.

In this polder lived 15,000 Dutch farmers. There is nothing to indicate that the Germans gave them any warning or that there was any large scale evacuation. This was one of the world's most modern farming communities. The polder was won from the sea in 1930 and planned settlement began immediately. The individual farms were neatly laid out and houses, churches, and schools put up to provide a model farming community.

Put Back to 1930

For 15 years the development went on. In 15 minutes the Germans erased it. Now the waters of the Zuider Zee are where they were in 1930, beating against the old sea wall. At any moment the Germans could loose them over additional hundreds of thousands of acres.

Air photographs taken a few hours after the great dyke was blown show the water flowing thru the gaps and sweeping across the polder. Behind it 50 houses closely grouped together have only the peak of their roofs above water. Only the broken main dyke, which is 12 feet above sea level, remains to show that there ever was such a thing as the northwest polder. Six hundred million cubic meters of water cover the land.

The whole of west Holland lies at the mercy of the Germans. They can blow as many dykes as they want to. Already one million acres of farmland lie under water.

Low Level Foils Nazis

East of Amsterdam the waters are only one or two feet deep and most houses are still habitable. This is due to the present low level of the rivers Lek, Waal, and Maas, which so far has frustrated the German attempts to flood completely the famed Dutch "water lines." Heavy rainfall would increase the flooding, but it would be impossible for it to approach the depth of water let in on the low lying polders in the north.

In the area between Rotterdam and Amsterdam the polders lie about 15 feet below sea level. The Germans have not yet flooded these, but the dykes are known to be mined, ready to be blown up. In this area both the fresh water of the Zuider Zee and the salt water of the North sea can be brought in on the land. Germans are even damming the small streams of west Holland to have as much water as possible at their disposal should the allies attack.

Build Temporary Dykes

A Dutch officer said, "They have put our country back to 1930, putting us back almost to where we were in the year 1,000, when the first dykes were built. Each new flood eliminates additional food producing areas. There is no way of stopping them. The feeling of helplessness, frustration, and rage is almost unbearable."

In some areas Dutch civilians have thrown up temporary dykes around their homes or even around whole villages, and these places can be seen from the air entirely surrounded by water.

So far the Germans have not blown a gap in the great causeway across the mouth of the Zuider Zee. The causeway is 100 yards wide and making a gap in it would be a major task. But even if the main causeway remains intact, the Germans can flood every one of Holland's 2,800 polders—40 per cent of the total area of the nation and all its major cities.

Ask for German Soil

San Francisco, Cal., April 22 (AP)—With one-fourth of Holland flooded by the Germans, the Dutch government may request the allies to annex West Frisia and a strip along the eastern frontier of the Netherlands, official Dutch quarters indicated tonight.

Holland already has notified her allies that she reserves the right to seek territorial compensation from Germany.

ITALIANS FEAR FRENCH HAVE AN EYE ON THE ALPS

ROME, April 22 [Reuters]—The entry of French troops into northwestern Italy has caused anxiety here over a possible French occupation of parts of Italy after the war. Anxiety was first caused by the knowledge that the French troops along the frontier included Morocco troops.

Fascist propaganda, elaborating a number of incidents which evoked strong protests from the Vatican and socialist circles, had succeeded in creating a terrifying legend around the tribal warriors.

Concern over the political implications of French occupation has been aggravated since Gen. de Gaulle, in a speech at Nice, spoke of the Rhine and the Alps as a field in which France should affirm herself as victor.

Want to Call Up Hitler? Here's His Phone Number

LONDON, April 22 (AP)—The British "Who's Who for 1945," just off the press, devoted 31 lines to a biography of Adolf Hitler, and even listed the fuehrer's telephone number in Berlin—11-6191. The late President Roosevelt's biography took up 33 lines; Prime Minister Churchill's 68, and Marshal Stalin's 45.

PATTON PULLS HIS ARMY OUT OF TRAFFIC JAM

BY HAL FOUST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE UNITED STATES 3D ARMY, Germany, April 22—Gusty rains with flurries of sleet and traces of snow punished war torn Germany today. The American soldiers suffered about as much from the weather as from the weak opposition of the enemy. On Lt. Gen. Patton's front the troops fought weather and little else for gains of from six to 11 miles.

On a two lane road behind the front equipment was stalled in a bitter squall this afternoon. Drivers edged over to the right upon hearing the distinctive squawk of a general's car approaching from the rear. It was a jeep riding the shoulder of the road and bearing three stars. It, too, was stalled by the traffic jam.

Gen. Patton—every enlisted man recognized him—jumped from his jeep, his face reddened by the rain and wind. He paced forward between vehicles for a quarter of a mile, returning salutes.

Patton Shows Him How

In a few minutes the columns of trucks, ambulances, armor, and other assorted vehicles of the modern motorized army, were moving again. When the drivers passed the intersection which had been causing the trouble they saw the general showing an M. P. how to direct traffic.

Drivers and passengers shivered as they passed sentries with their backs turned to the rain on lone guard duty at bridges. They passed signal corps men stringing wires and engineers replacing blasted bridges.

Near supply dumps they passed anti-aircraft crews on the alert in the mud beside slit trenches half filled with water.

Also on the road were thousands of liberated slave laborers and war prisoners of various allied nations. Some were being transported in trucks by the organized displaced persons service but most of them were trekking in groups of from four to 20 away from the battle areas. They greeted passing American combatants with salutes, waves, and cheers.

Beg or Steal Food

Russians and Poles are the dominating nationalities of these nomads in a hostile but subdued country. French, Italians, and Belgians are also numerous. They wear traces of former uniforms and some carry small identifying flags.

A few have women with them sharing their adventures of living on the countryside, sleeping in barns or abandoned wrecks of military vehicles, and begging or stealing food from the farmers.

These migrants walked in the bitter weather, some carrying their total property saved from four or five years of enforced labor, others pulling small loaded carts. Some were pushing baby buggies loaded with food and clothing. A few were pedaling bicycles they had picked up toward distant homes, not knowing whether those homes had been destroyed in the war.

Germans Also on the Move

Germans are also on the move. Mainly they are families of women, children, and old men seeking refuge with friends or relatives after the destruction of their dwellings. Some are being trundled in prams, with women pulling them. A few have oxen or horses.

Few German youths of military age are to be found. The American army seems to be paying little attention to these Nazis as long as they do not cause any trouble.

YANKS CAPTURE 27 ON OKINAWA, BUT KILL 11,738

Marines Land on Two Small Islands

GUAM, April 23 [Monday]—(AP)—Troops of the 24th army corps have killed 11,738 Japanese troops and taken 27 prisoners on southern Okinawa since D-day, April 1, Adm. Nimitz announced today.

American casualties in ground fighting on Okinawa, tabulated as of Wednesday, were 478 killed, 2,457 wounded, and 260 missing.

Marines occupied Taka Island east of Okinawa, on the north of Nakagusuku bay, yesterday and landed on Sesoko Island, a mile west of Motobu peninsula, on the same day.

No Change in Front

On Okinawa, Japanese resistance was so bitter in all sectors of the southern front that there "were no substantial changes" in the front lines yesterday, Nimitz said.

Yanks of the 27th, 77th, and 96th divisions continued to attack Japanese fortifications all along the front against fierce opposition. They were supported by field artillery, naval guns and carrier and land-based bombers.

Revising his Saturday bulletin, Nimitz removed the LST No. 477 from the list of United States ships lost in the Okinawa campaign. This reduced American ship losses to 14 for the period March 18 to April 18. However, he reported the loss of "one light unit" to Japanese air attack yesterday.

53 Jap Planes Downed

Two attacks, one light raid in the morning and an afternoon raid by "substantial groups of Japanese planes," caused some other damage. Fifty-three enemy planes were destroyed in these attacks.

Carrier aircraft attacked airfields and other installations in the Sakishima Islands, southernmost of the Ryukyus, Saturday and Sunday, and army Mustang fighters blasted Suzuki air field, near Nagoya on Honshu, yesterday.

The Mustangs destroyed 26 Japanese planes and damaged 21; exploded a 6,000 to 8,000 ton ship in Sae bay south of Nagoya and sank two small oilers and one small tanker and damaged one coastal cargo ship.

Carrier planes raided the northern Ryukyus Wednesday thru Friday, destroying or damaging numerous air field installations and destroying 26 airplanes.

Yanks on Iwo, secured March 16, killed 60 Japanese and captured 64 in a 24 hour period ending Friday. This increased Japanese casualties to 23,049 killed and 850 captured.

HOLD DOWN YANK LOSSES

BY HAROLD SMITH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE 7TH INFANTRY DIVISION ON OKINAWA, April 21 [Delayed]—Working in methodical campaign style, our troops are holding their own casualties down while inflicting heavy losses on the enemy in the new defensive on Okinawa. Many Japs have been killed in pillboxes and dugouts blown up by infantry men under the protective fire of Shermans, flame throwing tanks, self-propelled guns, and automatic weapons.

Intense, close in fighting continues. The left flank of the 96th division is stalled temporarily by the formidable defense of a sheerfaced escarpment. A fierce little battle raged there today, but nightfall found the defenders still in possession of the heavily fortified crags.

Our tanks, moving up to fire point blank into the cliff's gun apertures, drew intense local artillery and mortar fire. In some cases the Japs could be seen hurling hand grenades and satchel charges at the tanks from the openings.

Pour Flame Into Ports

One dramatic moment came when our flame throwing tanks poured fire into the west slope gun ports, which forced the Nips inside to emerge from the eastern portals, where our machine gunners mowed them down. As on many other hills the Japs have tunneled clear thru the top of this craggy eminence.

In the center of our line, units pushed to the top of the last knob of ground standing before hill 178 before digging in for the night. They are now in excellent position to make an assault on the most commanding eastern hilltop. Its possession will give us superior observation for support of the southward push toward Shuri.

The Japs are now falling back, but seem determined to hold or die to prevent us from piercing the bottleneck we face between Yonabura and Naha. Until we break that line, we are confined to a narrow front and must depend on sheer weight. Beyond, where the island flares out on both sides, we can maneuver, feinting here and punching there.

Our army leaders are proceeding conservatively, getting the utmost use out of their weapons and saving many casualties.

SEN. HART URGES AMERICA RETAIN ISLES IN PACIFIC

Will Safeguard Peace, He Declares

Washington, D. C., April 22 (AP)—Sen. Hart [R., Conn.] today advocated American retention of the Marshall, Caroline, and Marianas islands "to insure peace in the Pacific."

Sen. Hart

The former admiral in command of the Pacific fleet, who was retired from the navy in 1942 and was appointed to the senate as successor to the late Sen. Maloney, asserted in a broadcast speech that Pacific islands in general "are—and probably always will be—economic liabilities to any nation which carries responsibility for them. The only economic value will lie in facilitating sea and air communications across the Pacific."

In the case of the Marshalls, Carolines, and Marianas, he said:

"Japan, of course, must be evicted from those and some other Pacific islands where for years they have broken faith with the world and exploited the natives. Their departure will leave a vacuum which some one must fill for the welfare of what will remain of the poor natives—if for no other reason."

Not a Frisco Problem

"I don't think their future is necessarily something which should be settled at San Francisco, say, next month," he declared.

"That future will be a proper subject for the action of the international organization which is to come out of the conference which begins this week. Quite possibly the problem will not be solved until the peace conference that will be held after Japan is crushed. However, it is time to be thinking it over."

The white haired seaman-lawmaker said the three groups of islands could come closest to self-maintenance if integrated under one government.

Confusion Over "Mandates"

"The march of history, our record and standing before the world in treatment of the people of the Philippines, Guam, etc., and our prospective responsibilities for security of the Pacific all point to the United States as the nation to take over those islands from which our forces will have evicted the Japanese."

Hart noted that a lot of words are flying around these days—"sovereignty," "mandate," "trusteeship," "accountability."

Sovereignty, he said, "still happens to be a word of definite meaning," but he expressed the opinion that "mandate" has come to have such an indefinite meaning that perhaps the whole international situation would become clearer if the word were tossed out of the dictionary.

YANKS RUN INTO TROUBLE RAISING FLAG ON IE ISLE

IE ISLAND, Ryukyus, April 21 [Delayed]—(AP)—Six sharp shooting infantrymen today fought their way foot by foot and cave by cave to the highest peak of Iegusugu pinnacle to raise the American flag and officially end organized resistance on this tiny island.

While troops of three infantry regiments of the 77th division encircled the base of the 557 foot pinnacle, the six began snaking their way toward the peak. Old Glory was held in the hands of three men while three others searched for a crevice to anchor the flag pole. They were unable to find a suitable hole in the solid rock. So they brought it down and left a couple of men on guard while the others went back to get tools to dig a hole.

Later, Maj. Gen. Andrew D. Bruce, commander of the division, was able to announce that Ie was secured and that the flag was waving from the pinnacle fortress.

TINY GUNBOATS CAPTURE FORT ON MINDANAO RIVER

BY WALTER SIMMONS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COTABATO, Mindanao, P. I., April 21 [Delayed]—Troops of the 24th division captured this ruined provincial capital Thursday in a unique amphibious operation without a parallel since Civil war river fighting days.

Advancing up the shallow Mindanao river in "home-made gunboats," improvised by arming ordinary 65 foot landing craft with rockets, small cannon and machine guns, two miniature task forces enveloped the city and sailed more than 20 miles up both north and south arms of the river to a junction at Kalukalu. Twin landings were made at Cotabato and at Montaca under only light Japanese sniper fire.

Today the Yanks embarked again from Cotabato and captured Pikit, former American fort 35 miles further up the river.

Lt. Col. Robert Amory Jr., commanding officer, dispatched this message to headquarters:

"We stormed the town, hoisted the flag and are now awaiting the infantry." The 34th infantry regiment arrived soon after.

Use Captured Guns

Maj. Gen. R. B. Woodruff, commanding the division, conferred the silver star upon Lt. Col. Amory, executive officer of the 533d engineers' boat regiment, a 30 year old Harvard graduate, for conceiving and carrying out the amphibious expedition. Captured Japanese machine guns and weapons from wrecked American planes were used to arm the "home-made gunboats."

"At one island we passed Japs who had just finished breakfast," said Pvt. Walter Rosga, 2642 N. Ashland av., Chicago, gunner on the leading LCVP. "They hightailed it out of there."

Grass Grows in Streets

Cotabato was prostrate from American air strikes dating from last September. Tall grass was growing in the main streets and the houses showed no signs of occupancy. The first returning natives said the town had been abandoned for at least six months and only a garrison of Japs remained.

Lt. Gen. Eichelberger, 8th army commander, followed the troops closely into the city on one of his characteristic front line inspection tours. He found Cotabato's 725 foot wharf comparatively undamaged.

As 24th division troops, veterans of Leyte pushed up the river and flicked patrols to the south and east, it appeared that the strategy of the new Mindanao landing might be to use the river's 60 miles of navigable length as a supply route in the drive for Davao, Jap stronghold 143 highway miles east of Cotabato.

Three Bridges Out

The highway, winding tortuously across the peninsula and unsurfaced for nearly half of its length, was also available as a supply route. It was not believed possible for troops to advance overland across the rugged terrain, much of which is unexplored.

An air strike dumped rockets and bombs on Dalawan, located southwest of Fort Pikit.

As villages were liberated, fierce, spiky haired Moros returned after months in the hills. Many were members of the Filipino-American guerrilla forces which fought so heroically they prevented the Japs from ever getting a firm hold on Mindanao.

With Zamboanga taken, Cotabato is the second of Mindanao's nine provincial capitals in American hands. Several others are reported held by guerrillas.

Chicagoans taking part in the action included Lt. (j. g.) Emmet Newman 1724 E. 56th st., communications officer on a command ship, and Marine Master Sgt. Abe Marovitz, 1323 Independence blvd., Chicago, Democratic Illinois state senator.

SUPER FORTS HIT JAP HOME ISLES FOR FOURTH DAY

Attack Kyushu and Honshu Fields

GUAM, April 23 [Monday]—(AP)—Striking for the fourth consecutive day at vital air fields in southern Japan, United States Super Fortresses hit Kyushu Island yesterday. Tokyo reported fighter plane sweeps over Nippon's main Honshu Island.

The B-29 attack, made by possibly 150 planes, was directed at five Kyushu air fields less than 24 hours after a force of around 300 Super Forts had hit nine of the island's airdromes.

Nagoya Bombed Again

Tokyo said about 40 American fighter planes from Iwo Island bases bombed and strafed the Tokai area, which includes the oft-bombed industrial city of Nagoya, on Honshu northeast of Kyushu. There was no American confirmation.

The Japanese broadcasts also told of the Kyushu attack, saying "about 100" B-29s with about 30 carrier fighters had hit the island's air fields in a three hour attack starting at 6 a. m.

Part of City Burned

Tokyo said all raids resulted in only "light" damage to military installations, but a section of a city bordering one Kyushu field was burned.

Seventy of the Super Forts carried out the attacks on air installations in southern Kyushu on the Osumi and Satuma peninsulas, while 30 hit the Oita sector on the northeast coast of the island, Tokyo said.

The Saturday Kyushu raid was declared successful by Super Fortress crewmen. All the B-29s returned safely.

SIX MEMBERS OF FILIPINO PUPPET CABINET SEIZED

MANILA, April 23 [Monday] (AP)—Two additional cabinet members and accused collaborationists of the fallen Philippine puppet government have been captured near Baguio, besieged commonwealth summer capital on northern Luzon.

Claro M. Recto

Gen. MacArthur said today the cabinet members were Claro M. Recto, minister of foreign affairs, and Rafael Alunan, minister of agriculture and commerce.

Four members of the cabinet were captured last week as Yanks of the 33d division closed in on Baguio. They were Jose Yulo, chief justice of the supreme court; Antonio de Las Alas, minister of finance; Teofilo Sison, minister of the interior, and Quentin Paredes, minister of justice.

Face Trial After War

All are to be confined for the duration and then turned over to the government of the Philippines for trial.

On Mindanao Island, the 24th division continued its drive eastward toward Davao along the highway and the valley of the Big Mindanao river, while bombers swept enemy concentrations and lines of communication.

In the lightly opposed drive toward Davao, the Yanks are 42 miles away. The Japanese are expected to make a bitter stand at Davao. Fifty thousand Nipponese troops are estimated on the island.

Count 1,000th Dead Jap

On central Luzon the 112th regiment of the 32d division counted its 1,000th dead Japanese in current cave fighting in the Santa Maria valley northeast of Manila. The Japanese still were strongly dug in and fighting was slow.

The 32d division, which also is fighting around Balete pass in the Caraballo mountains in the north, marked its third year overseas yesterday with another day of slow battling against Japanese holed up in caves.

The 25th division wrested high ground south of Balete pass from the enemy in the most important recent development of the two way drive to rid northern Luzon of Japanese.

Bombs Blast 6 Ships

Heavy bombers sank or damaged an 8,000-ton transport and four other vessels off Formosa and wrecked a 7,000-ton freighter-transport at Saigon, French Indo-China. Rail installations in Indo-China were heavily pounded.

Bombers dropped 130 tons of bombs on northern Borneo at the cost of one plane to anti-aircraft fire. Targets included airdromes, oil producing areas and barracks.

MacArthur announced that Australian ground forces had killed an additional 1,214 Japanese troops on Bougainville, New Guinea and New Britain Islands.

RACE TO CUT OFF NAZIS' FLIGHT TO PO, 5 MI. AWAY

ROME, April 22 (AP)—Allied armor in headlong pursuit of badly disorganized Nazi forces fleeing toward the Po river from Bologna were within two miles of Ferrara and closing in on Modena.

Ferrara, immediate objective of the British 8th army, is an important communications center 30 miles northeast of Bologna, while Modena is 22 miles northwest of that fallen Nazi bastion on the edge of the Po plain.

With the 8th army two miles from Ferrara the allies were only five miles from the Po river.

A partial news black-out was imposed on the progress of the allied forces, with the names of towns overrun in the chase being withheld temporarily.

The 5th army, driving toward Modena, important highway town, reported "fairly strong enemy rearguard resistance."

Two Bridges Seized Intact

American and South African troops were reported to have seized two bridges across the Secchia river intact. The Secchia flows about a mile west of Modena northward into the Po, indicating the allied troops possibly were planning to outflank the city.

Earlier the same units were reported to have crossed the Panaro river in several places. Northwest of Bologna the Panaro flows roughly parallel to and within three to five miles east of Secchia.

Full Force Turned Loose

The only town specifically mentioned as having fallen to troops under Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott was Castelfranco, seven miles southeast of Modena.

Another 8th army force moved on to the banks of the Po di Volano river at Sabbioncello, 10 miles due east of Ferrara, and at Finale di Reno, three miles southeast of Sabbioncello.

Allied air headquarters said the full force of the allied tactical air forces had been "turned loose on German forces retreating across the Po valley, with devastating results."

Start of Final Victory

Airmen reported long columns of German transport and marching troops jamming the roads leading northward as the Nazi command strove frantically to get the battered remnants of their armies back behind the Po river.

Great numbers of prisoners were taken as the British 8th and allied 5th armies ground up the fleeing Nazis in what Gen. Clark, allied ground commander, termed the "beginning of the final victory in Italy."

Many hundreds of allied warplanes bombed and strafed the retreating Germans thruout yesterday, last night and today, taking a terrific toll of men and material. Preliminary reports showed at least 425 enemy vehicles destroyed or damaged by United States 12th air force Thunderbolts yesterday alone.

At least another hundred were wrecked early today.

Early Fall of City Possible

The early fall of Ferrara was a possibility, with another column of Lt. Gen. Richard L. McCreery's forces at Medelena, 6½ miles northeast of captured Portomaggiore and only 12 miles from the Po at a point well downstream from Ferrara.

Other 8th army units cracked the enemy's defense line behind the Idice river, and captured Mezzolara and Granarolo Dell Emilia, respectively 12 and 6 miles north of Bologna.

YUGOSLAVS TAKE SUSAK HARBOR, ADRIATIC ISLES

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

The Yugoslav radio last night reported Yugoslav forces have captured "one of the main harbors in the Adriatic town of Susak" and "liberated" the Adriatic islands of Cres [Cherso] and Losinj [Lusin]. Earlier a Yugoslav bulletin reported capture of "enemy strong points" on the outskirts of Fiume and Susak.

Italians Demand Trieste

ROME, April 22 (AP)—A government war bulletin said today that several thousand students paraded at Palermo yesterday in a demonstration for the "Italianity" of Trieste. The crowd stormed the headquarters of the Sicilian separatist movement, hoisting Italian flags, the announcement said.

HURL BACK JAPS DRIVING ON U. S. BASE IN CHINA

CHUNGKING, China, April 22 (AP)—Chinese forces counter-attacking on the right flank of the Japanese driving toward the United States 14th air force base at Chihkiang, 250 miles southeast of Chungking, drove the enemy back and inflicted several hundred casualties, the high command said tonight.

The enemy's left flank also was pressed back near the Hunan-Kwangsi border in a three mile advance by other Chinese forces. Planes of the 14th air force aided the ground offensive, striking at Japanese troops and tank concentrations and inflicting heavy casualties and damage.

The Chinese high command reported heavy fighting continuing at points 22 to 36 miles west of Paoching, the main base in the center of the current Japanese offensive.

Reds Commend Truman Blast at Hitler Hopes

MOSCOW, April 22 (AP)—Pravda's international commentator today said President Truman "has dispersed the useless hopes of the Hitlerite brigands" that the death of President Roosevelt would bring some change in United States policies. The commentator applauded Lt. Gen. Patton of the United States 3d army for forcing local German populations to view the scenes in freed German prison camps.

Circus Fans

Little Butch Turney had his eyes on the circus aerial performers yesterday from the vantage point of his grandmother's knee.

Chicago Stadium, whose current attraction is the Barnes Brothers circus, overflowed yesterday afternoon as 22,000 persons, most of whom were children, jammed the Stadium for the matinee. Circus officials said 5,000 persons were turned away. Children were given individual chairs around the arena and then, as the crowd continued to enter the turnstiles, harassed officials deposited the youngsters on the sawdust. The seating capacity for the circus is 18,000. Woodie, one of the circus lions, grabbed Basil Riddle, 37, one of his keepers by the arm when Riddle was feeding the beast last night. Riddle suffered 10 severe lacerations before the lion let go. The keeper was taken to Alexian Brothers hospital.

Chicagoan Helps Save Elbe Bridge from Blast

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

WITH THE U. S. 83d DIVISION, Germany, April 22—Pvt. William Garrett, 215 Liberty rd., Stow, O., and Sgt. William Chess, 2649 N. California av., Chicago, Ill., were guarding a bridge over the Elbe when they detected and reported a floating mine the Germans had placed in the river to destroy the pontoons. A guard fired twice but failed to detonate the mine. When the explosive had floated to within 10 feet of the bridge, he fired a third time and the mine went off with a crash. The bridge escaped damage and the guard, Joseph Noce, Hartford, Conn., has been cited for a decoration.

SPEAKS GERMAN TO RUSSIAN AND GETS IN DUTCH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Hamilton Field, Cal., April 22—The Red Cross girl who prides herself as a linguist rushed up to a Russian officer as he got out of a plane today to attend the security conference. She offered a cup of coffee and spoke. He pulled back in surprise, then turned on his heel and indignantly stalked away.

"My goodness, I only asked him if he wanted some coffee," she said. "In Russian?" she was asked. "O, no," she said, "I don't speak Russian; I was speaking German."

A colonel near-by fared little better. He picked another officer to welcome. "Do you speak English?" the colonel asked. The visiting Russian's reply as he too, turned and walked away, was very clear. It was simply, "No."

DELEGATES HIT AT DUMBARTON PEACE FORMULA

vided for action, Dumbarton Oaks, says the Dutch analysis, puts "a premium on pressure brought to bear by stronger on weaker states." Domination of the council and the military staff committee by the Big Five powers is pronounced as "at variance with the principle of the sovereign equality of peace loving states," proclaimed by the Dumbarton Oaks preamble.

No Guarantee of Security

This placement of the big powers above the law, say the Netherlands, offers little guarantee of security "for the rest of the world, inasmuch as a return of the world to anarchy would not be excluded," while no nation "will ever allow itself to be committed by a security council to a war in which that nation does not believe."

With respect to questions other than the use of armed force "the Netherlands government considers that no state, great or small, should be granted the right of reserving its attitude." With the veto power of the big nations reducing Dumbarton Oaks to a plan for policing smaller countries, the men from the Hague ask how this would "produce freedom from fear." They confess it "difficult to see what advantage or attraction the plan would have for the Netherlands if the right of veto were granted to great powers in their own cause."

Want More Representation

Another amendment proposed by the French would implement the provision of the Franco-Russian pact that Russian troops could pass thru Poland to attack Germany.

If the council fails to act on an international dispute the French would give the nations the right to act as they deem necessary in the interest of "peace, law, and justice." Also, the French delegates want at least three of the six smaller countries represented in the council chosen from those with military means to defend "the international order."

Still another French amendment would bar from the organization countries with a record of remaining neutral in a world war.

Implement Domestic Proviso

When it comes to the Oaks proviso that the league shall not interfere in disputes arising from matters solely within the domestic jurisdiction of a nation the French would add "unless manifest violation of essential liberties and rights of men constitutes in itself a menace calculated to compromise the peace." Under that proviso the league could intervene in such situations as were produced by the Nazis' persecution of the Jews and by the war between the Facists and Communists in Spain.

In connection with the Oaks proviso exempting domestic situations from league action the question has been raised whether a revolution in a country would be considered cause for league intervention; whether, for example, the American colonies would have been permitted to revolt from British rule under the Oaks plan. Undersecretary of State Grew said that the council "would act if it considered such a revolution threatened international peace."

Mrs. Caroline Nielsen, 5110 N. Western av., told police yesterday that her son, Richard, 13, has been missing since Saturday.

GERMAN SAILOR, ONCE PRISONER, GETS JOBS HERE

Helmut Reinholdt, 22, German merchant seaman who was captured on a voyage from Japan in 1942 and later interned in a prison camp at Fort Stanton, N. M., was held by Chicago police for several hours last night until they verified his assertion that he had been paroled and procured employment thru a letter of recommendation addressed to the United States employment service.

Reinholdt, who lives at 168 W. North av., carried a draft card issued by a selective service board in New Mexico. Since coming to Chicago Reinholdt said he had worked as a bartender at the Westmorland Country club in Wilmette, Bismarck hotel, and the Aldine Hall, 909 Armitage av.

ITALIANS HANG 5 CIVILIANS AS BOLOGNA SPIES

BOLOGNA, April 22 (AP)—Five civilians who were spies for the Germans during the occupation of Bologna were hanged today by Italian patriots from the crossbeam over the front door of the city's bomb wrecked major hospital.

The spies were executed while military and civilian government officials attacked the giant problem of getting the refugee swollen city in order. The local committee of national liberation had just assured military government officials that such reprisals would be curbed.

Bologna's new government formally took office today, with Giuseppe Dozza, a Communist, as mayor. The city has swollen to a population of more than 600,000.

U. S. DELEGATES UPHOLD VARYING 'WORLD' VIEWS

Range from Stassen's to Vandenberg's

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

San Francisco, Cal., April 22—The United States will be represented in the international security conference which meets here Wednesday by eight delegates—State Secretary Stettinius, former State Secretary Hull, Sen. Connally [D., Tex.], Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], Rep. Bloom [D., N. Y.], Rep. Eaton [R., N. J.], Comdr. Harold Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, and Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve of Barnard college, New York City. Because of illness, Mr. Hull is not expected to attend.

All members of the delegation profess various degrees of internationalism, ranging from Sen. Vandenberg, a nationalist who advocates international collaboration to prevent war, to Stassen, who espouses a super-state.

Son of Morgan Partner

Handsome, jovial Mr. Stettinius was born in Chicago 44 years ago, the son of Edward R. Stettinius, a partner of the house of Morgan, fiscal agent of the British government in the World war. Thru Wall street connections young Stettinius was ushered from college into big business and within two years was vice president of General Motors.

Ten years out of college he was vice chairman of the finance committee of the United States Steel corporation, a Morgan institution, and within another four years was chairman of the board. In 1940 Stettinius resigned from United States Steel and entered government service as a member of the advisory committee to the council of national defense.

A few months before that he had been appointed chairman of the war resources board, which eventually recommended a large program of acquisition of stockpiles of rubber, aluminum, copper, and other materials for national defense.

Report Suppressed by F. D. R.

The late President Roosevelt didn't like the report, and he suppressed it and allowed the board to expire. The first nine months of 1941 Stettinius was director of priorities in the office of production management, then was transferred to the administration of lend-lease as special assistant to the President at the instance of his friend, Harry Hopkins, chief Roosevelt confidant.

In 1943 Stettinius became undersecretary of state thru the influence of Hopkins and secretary of state when Mr. Hull retired last year.

As undersecretary of state he participated in the framing of the Dumbarton Oaks peace plan in the conferences with Britain, Russia, and China last summer.

Connally Picturesque Figure

One of the most picturesque figures at the conference will be 6 foot Sen. Connally, with his white hair curling luxuriantly over his collar beneath a big black, wide brimmed hat with flowing coat tails and a black string tie adorning a white shirt fastened with gold studs—a perfect Hollywood dream of an aristocratic southern planter.

He handles a black ribboned pince-nez tellingly whether in the old school oratory he affects in debate or in the racy anecdotes with which he regales his cronies.

Now 67 and chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, Sen. Connally has been in congress more than a quarter of a century. At first he did not see eye to eye with the internationalists who were pressing for the creation of a peace league before the end of the current war.

He discouraged precipitate senate action to that end. Finally, however, he was overborne by Mr. Hull's successful progress at Moscow, and hit the sawdust trail and became one of the loudest shouters for Dumbarton Oaks.

Vandenberg "Reoriented"

Altho he had supported the world court, Sen. Vandenberg was a non-interventionist up to Pearl Harbor. He was a sponsor of neutrality legislation and led the fight against its repeal. He opposed lend-lease.

Once the nation was in the war however, he experienced a political reorientation. He espoused international coöperation to preserve peace and took the leading part in drafting the international coöperation plank of the Republican Mackinac Island declaration.

When even Democrats were deploring the lack of an administration foreign policy last winter, Vandenberg made a speech in the senate proposing a definite program—an Anglo-Russian-American treaty to keep Germany demilitarized, a post-war peace league and revision by that agency of the partition of Poland, and other war time agreements involving possible injustices.

Proposals Go Ignored

While his proposals were ignored, his speech marked him as the outstanding Republican whose support would be essential to ratification of Dumbarton Oaks by the senate. His appointment to the San Francisco delegation became a foregone conclusion.

Vandenberg, 61, was born in Grand Rapids, Mich., and came up the hard way. He was editor of the Grand Rapids Herald, orator, politician, and candidate for the political shoes of his paper's owner, Sen. William Alden Smith.

Vandenberg got to the senate in 1928. In 1936 and again in 1940 he was a candidate for the Republican nomination for President.

Bloom Nattiest in Congress

At 75, Sol Bloom, chairman of the house foreign affairs committee, is the nattiest dresser in congress, dazzling the eye with sartorial color ensembles.

He also is a light stepper, having skipped deftly from the glorification of George Washington, who warned against foreign entanglements, to the acclamation of internationalism for the United States.

In attending the conference, Bloom comes back home, for it was to this city he was brought as a child by his parents, poor Polish-Jewish immigrants. He received no schooling and started his business career working 12 hours a day in a brush factory for $1.25 a week. At 13 he was in the business office of the San Francisco Chronicle. At 17 he owned a theater and at 19 had so much money invested that he thought of retiring.

Instead, he went to Chicago and originated the Midway Plaisance at the 1893 World fair. He composed the tune for little Egypt's hootchy-kootchy dance and says he is sorry he failed to copyright it.

He soon had a chain of 80 music stores and 25 other business enterprises. After a successful real estate career in New York, Bloom did retire in 1920 "to devote my life to public service" and got himself elected to the house with Tammany support.

Eaton Oldest Member

The oldest member of the delegation is Rep. Eaton, who has just turned 77. He was born in Canada and migrated to Massachusetts when he was 25 and entered the Baptist ministry. He was pastor of churches in Massachusetts, Toronto, Cleveland, and New York.

While in Toronto he also was sociological editor of the Globe and correspondent for the London Times. In New York he was pastor of John D. Rockefeller's church. In 1917 he became head of the national service section of the United States shipping board.

Dr. Eaton has been in congress since 1925. He chose foreign affairs as a special field of activity and is the ranking minority member of the foreign affairs committee. He always has been an ardent internationalist.

Stassen Youngest Member

The youngest member of the delegation is Comdr. Stassen, 38. He is the grandson of a Czech immigrant. His father was a truck farmer, born in Minnesota. His mother was born in Germany, but was brought to this country at the age of 7.

Boy and man, Stassen was precocious. He finished high school at 15, took his college degree at 20, and his law degree at 22. A year later he was county attorney and at 31 he was elected governor of Minnesota. In 1940 he was too young to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, but he was temporary chairman and keynoter of the Philadelphia convention and became floor manager for the Willkie candidacy.

Stassen espoused the Willkie one-world philosophy and went even further than Willkie, developing a plan in great detail for a super-state with a parliament in which the United States and other nations would be merged.

He regards Dumbarton Oaks as merely a first step in the direction of the creation of the world state. Stassen was reëlected governor in 1940 and 1942 but in 1943 resigned and entered the navy, where he rose rapidly to commander on the staff of Adm. Halsey. In picking Stassen for a Republican member of the delegation, Mr. Roosevelt was believed by many politicians to be grooming him for Republican candidate for President in 1948, just as the late President had favored Willkie for his Republican opponent in 1940 and 1944.

Dean Gildersleeve's Views

Tall, dignified Miss Gildersleeve, 68, is a veteran internationalist. She is a trustee of the Institute of International Education, a member of the American National Committee on International Intellectual Coöperation, former president of the International Federation of University Women, and former chairman of the committee on international relations of the American Association of University Women. Her foreign decorations include officier de l'instruction publique [France] and gran official de la orden de Cristobal Colon [Dominican Republic].

Nearly 30 years ago Miss Gildersleeve helped organize the league to enforce peace. She was a vigorous advocate of the first league of nations. She was a member of the commission to study the organization of peace and of the committee to defend America.

Vacation Trek

Elliott Silverstein (left) and Charles Smith have Tribune Tower as a background as they pedal on Michigan av. preparatory to long vacation trip.

Charles Smith of 5212 University av. and Elliott Silverstein, 5473 Ingleside av., both 17 and seniors at Hyde Park High school, will leave early tomorrow for a bicycle trip to Niagara Falls, N. Y., they said yesterday. The boys expect to make the round trip of 1,000 miles during their spring vacation, plus three days allowed by their teachers.

Smith, who made a similar trip to North Carolina last summer, said they would average 90 to 100 miles a day in eight riding hours, and that during good weather, they would sleep outdoors along the road. "If it's raining, we'll sleep in some city jail," he added.

The boys said they wanted to see as much of this country as possible before facing induction at the end of this school year. "Bicycling is a means to an end with me," Smith explained. "I can travel and travel cheaply." They will budget themselves to 75 cents per day.

Fire Pours Out of Chute on Top of Hotel Sherman

Fire broke out in the grease chute of the basement kitchen supplying the College Inn in the Hotel Sherman shortly before 7 p. m. yesterday, sending flames and smoke pouring from the top of the chute above the hotel. Service in the College Inn was not interrupted. Most of the diners were unaware of the fire.

SMUTS TO HEAD GROUP DRAFTING PACT PREAMBLE

San Francisco, Cal., April 22 [Special]—Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts of South Africa will have the top spot on "a committee of general principles" which will draft a preamble to the proposed agreement to be written by the allied nations conference here, it was indicated today.

Smuts, only high ranking survivor of the Versailles conference, who is also a delegate to the San Francisco meeting, said in an interview that the agreement should be "a true confession of faith," adding that "if we fail, the world may be psychologically shocked beyond repair."

It was disclosed authoritatively that the preamble is expected to lay down broad principles which could be used as a guide for future settlement of such matters as the Arab-Jewish question, problems of race discrimination, backward countries, world labor standards, and other controversial matters.

This procedure, it was said, would leave to the conference itself the setting up of new world machinery as its sole task. The drafting committee, by this plan, would be able to give hearing without final decision to the dozens of human rights controversies crowding in on the conference.

County Treasurer Warns of May 1 Tax Deadline

A 1 per cent per month interest charge will be added to all unpaid first instalments of the 1944 tax bills after the penalty date, May 1, Victor L. Schlaeger, county treasurer, warned yesterday. Approximately 275,000 taxpayers have paid more than 29 million dollars in 1944 taxes to date, Schlaeger said. He added that taxpayers could avoid standing in long waiting queues by paying their taxes on Wednesday, Thursday, or Friday when the treasurer's office is less crowded.

SUITOR KILLS RIVAL

James Edwards, 28, Negro, of 5349 Indiana av., was fatally shot yesterday by Louis Collier, 41, Negro, of 5802 Indiana av., in a quarrel over a mutual friend, Mrs. Rosetta Bradford, 28, Negro, of 4621 Indiana av.

LANDON WARNS AGAINST RULE BY 'POWER BALANCE'

Cites Chapultepec Act as Key to Co-operation

Topeka, Kas., April 22 [Special]—Rallying of democratic nations of the world behind the act of Chapultepec as an alternative to acceptance of the Dumbarton Oaks world security organization proposals was suggested as a goal for the allied nations' San Francisco conference by Alf M. Landon in a talk here tonight.

The former governor of Kansas and 1936 Republican Presidential nominee spoke at the First Methodist church here at a meeting sponsored by the church's committee on world peace.

Landon asserted the Dumbarton Oaks proposals are based on "the ancient balance of power theory," and said the Chapultepec charter, on the other hand, is based "on the cooperation of 21 nations working together under a reign of law for peace."

Mutual Protection Provided

The act of Chapultepec was drawn up at the inter-American conference in Mexico City last month and has been described in the senate as making all nations of the western hemisphere participants in the principles of the Monroe doctrine. It provides for mutual protection of the frontiers and independence of American nations.

Landon said a momentous question to be decided at San Francisco is whether the preliminary Dumbarton Oaks report will be altered to fit the Chapultepec charter, or whether the latter will be amended to "fit the ancient balance of power theory of Dumbarton Oaks, thus blocking the first positive step toward true coöperation of free and united nations."

"Chapultepec has demonstrated the pattern," he said. "It is an American pattern. It is good. It is not based on the interests of three powers dominating the world, but the coöperation of 21 nations working together under a reign of law for peace.

Peace Reversal Feared

"At Chapultepec there was created no spheres of influence to curse the world. Chapultepec goes ahead with the efforts of the league of nations and the Kellogg-Briand pact to outlaw war. The Dumbarton Oaks provisional proposals reverse the 25 year effort to outlaw war and legalize war in the future unless the Big Three decide otherwise unanimously."

Landon said there are many highly important, unanswered questions inherent in the Dumbarton Oaks, Yalta, and other meetings.

Among these, he mentioned "the extent and duration of our military and financial undertakings in postwar Europe and Asia—particularly in the government of our part of Germany—on reparations in kind, or the use of slave labor—spheres of influence, and boundary questions."

Questions Amendment Power

He expressed regret at the failure of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals to develop basic worldwide law, or to provide the means to facilitate its gradual development in the future, asserting the San Francisco conference must, like the American Constitution, contain provisions which will make the development of a body of international law inevitable.

"Where will be the power to amend the Dumbarton Oaks pact?" he demanded. "Some hold the power to block any amendment or to hold any investigation rests in the hands of any two of the Big Five. That must be changed so the charter can be reviewed and amended in the light of events—changing peace needs—and improved faith in international coöperation."

Intelligent thinking about world security is being stifled, Landon said, by "the glorification of Dumbarton Oaks beyond reason and facts."

Call Oaks Plan Camouflage

New York, April 22 (AP)—Fifty-one religious leaders representing various denominations said today the Dumbarton Oaks plan in its "present setting and unamended is almost certain to prove a mere camouflage for continuation of imperialist policies." In a communication addressed to United States delegates to the San Francisco conference, the group said international relations "have deteriorated at an ominously accelerated pace" during recent months. Signers included Prof. Georgia Harkness of Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, Ill.

$300 IN NARCOTICS STOLEN

The stock of narcotics, valued at between $300 and $400, carried by the Burhop drug store, 4016 Lincoln av., was stolen Saturday night, the manager, A. F. Burhop, told police yesterday.

Stupid! I've got the bridge prize! That lamp belongs to them!

FLYER KILLED FIGHTING JAPS OVER FORMOSA

LT. DONALD SCHULTZ, 22, a navy pilot, was killed in action over Formosa March 25, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schultz of Somonauk, La Salle county, were advised yesterday by the navy department. He had been overseas for two years.

WILLIAM G. FLETCHER, 29, of 117 S. La Salle st., Aurora, a machinist's mate, second class, is missing in action off Okinawa, his wife, Mrs. Betty Fletcher, has been advised. They have a daughter, Patsy, 2.

FRANK M. BEST, 18, of 189 N. Smith st., Aurora, a navy coxswain, is missing in action near the Philippines, his mother, Mrs. Florence Strantz, has been informed.

SGT. ROBERT L. JONES JR., 21, of 942 Michigan av., Evanston, previously reported missing in Germany Jan. 18, is a prisoner of war, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Jones, have been advised. Sgt. Jones attended Culver and the Citadel. He has been in the army two years.

CATHOLIC U. S. O. CELEBRATES ITS 4TH BIRTHDAY

Four years ago the National Catholic Community service was organized and yesterday the Chicago U. S. O. at 1122 Wabash av. celebrated the event with a special communion breakfast. More than 500 local organizations have sponsored the Catholic U. S. O. and 75,000 girls have acted as hostesses. The National Catholic Community service is affiliated with the United Service Organizations, Inc.

Radcliffe Says Truman May Go to Conference

Baltimore, Md., April 22 (AP)—Sen. Radcliffe [D., Md.] said today that President Truman may go to San Francisco some time during the security conference in reversal of previous plans. In a radio address the senator said that even tho President Truman does not take part in the conference, "he might appear in San Francisco as a host to greet and congratulate and bid farewell to the visiting delegations." He did not expand the point.

YANKS' DEMAND ON PARLEY TOLD BY VANDENBERG

San Francisco, Cal., April 22 [Special]—Sen. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], member of the American delegation to the San Francisco conference, reported today on his undertaking, at the suggestion of Gov. Green of Illinois, to get the views of American soldiers and sailors on an international agency to prevent war.

"I have received several thousand letters from service men," Vandenberg told a press conference today. "Their opinion is entitled to top priority. These letters contain a multitude of arguments, but running thru them all are two threads of opinion linked together.

"One is that this one has got to be the last war, and that America must do its full part in some collective security undertaking to prevent the recurrence of war.

"The other line of thought is that this should be done without hauling down the flag, sacrificing our sovereignty, or otherwise swearing away American rights. Our service men want America's interests protected to the hilt.

"I add for myself that my point of view is this: It is little short of suicide to argue that both these aims cannot be accomplished together."

How to catch RED POINTS with a can opener!

SO YOU JUST COOK for one or two, and most of your cooking is done with a can opener. How could you be expected to save used fats? Well, you can! And get yourself some mighty handy extra red points for them! Here's how...

WHEN YOU OPEN a can of sardines for sandwiches or snacks, pour the oil into the fat-salvage can. (Every drop of fat and oil is vitally important!)

DO THE SAME with the canned salmon you open for your salad or casserole. (Too little to count? Don't you believe it.)

HOT DOGS DE LUXE! Save the water you cook them in. Chill it and scoop off the congealed fat. (Every bit of used fat is wanted by our country.)

YOU NEED THE RED POINTS—your country needs your used fats to help make medicines, military and civilian soaps, tanks, explosives, paints and other essentials. So save every drop! When the can is full, take it to your meat dealer and collect your 2 red points and 4 cents for every pound. This message has been approved by WFA and OPA and paid for by Industry.

We Must Save More Used Fats!

In Washington and thruout the world Chicago Tribune correspondents are alert to keep readers informed of every significant happening. Experienced in knowing how to get the facts, they cover the news first hand and report it steadfastly from the American viewpoint.

Why should YOU pay More than these Low Rates for a PERSONAL LOAN?

SMALL LOAN RATES ARE OFTEN TWO TO THREE TIMES MORE!

Why, for a $100 loan, make 12 payments of about $10.07 each, totalling $120.84 (which is $20.84 more than you borrowed) when at Merchandise Bank a similar loan would cost you only $8—on your signature only. And only $5.50 if with one co-maker.

Here you save at least $12.84 (that you might as well have in your own pocket)—or as much as $15.34, if you choose to have a co-maker. In either case, you SAVE nearly as much as two payments on your loan.

Made Easy For You

If you need a loan—or want to reduce present borrowing costs—there's no need to take time off your job. Simply phone us at Whitehall 4500, or write, and everything can be quickly and confidentially arranged at your convenience.

For a $100 Loan — At Usual Small Loan Rate, You Pay $20.84; At Merchandise Bank You Pay Only 8.00; YOU SAVE $12.84

For a $200 Loan — At Usual Small Loan Rate, You Pay $39.52; At Merchandise Bank You Pay Only 16.00; YOU SAVE $23.52

Savings shown apply to "signature only" loans repaid in 12 monthly instalments, cost to be deducted in advance. You can save even more if you borrow with one co-maker. In either case, you save at least half of usual and lawful Small Loan Charges.

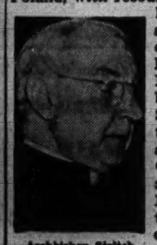
STRONG POLAND VITAL TO PEACE, STRITCH HOLDS

Russian Policy Assailed by Archbishop

A free, strong and independent Poland, with resources sufficient for her development and support, is essential to a lasting peace in Europe, Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch said yesterday. He spoke at a rally in the Chicago arena sponsored by the Illinois district of the Polish American Congress.



Archbishop Stritch

"There must be no foreign control of Polish elections," Archbishop Stritch said.

"The election to be held in Poland after the war must be by, and for, the Poles of Poland, and not a travesty on democracy. A fair Polish election will not be possible unless the provisional [Lublin] government is reorganized to be representative of Polish political thought."

Sees Menace to Peace

The regime as set up by Moscow at Yalta, and recognizing only the Curzon line as the eastern boundary of post-war Poland, violates the rights of the Poles, endangers world peace, and is not representative of the people, the archbishop asserted.

"The least we in the United States can do is use our national influence to help set up a representative Polish government, not a creature of Moscow," he said.

The archbishop said further that aid to the Polish nation from her allies, principally the United States, should be made possible by the immediate opening of Poland for a flow of emergency relief for its suffering people.

Says Russia Broke Pledges

Mrs. Wanda Rozmarek, delivering a speech prepared by her husband, Charles Rozmarek, president of the congress, and on his way to the San Francisco, Cal., world security conference, called Yalta an evil day for the democracies of the world. "The dictatorial manner in which the Polish question was settled in the Crimea was outrageous," she said.

She asserted that as soon as Russia, with the help of the United States, began pushing the German invaders back, the Russians broke all pledges to be a friendly neighbor to Poland. Since that time, Mrs. Rozmarek declared, the Polish government in exile in London has been subjected to a campaign of vilification unbecoming a great nation such as Russia.

"It might be well to remind those who belittle America's contribution to Russia that it was lend-lease that turned defeat to victory for the soviet," she declared.

Solicit Aid of Delegates

The rally, attended by 10,000 of the 600,000 Chicagoans of Polish descent, was held to support a resolution, framed by the congress, urging delegates to the conference opening Wednesday in San Francisco to help assure for Poland her identity as a democratic nation free of foreign domination.

Other speakers were Rep. D. Martin Gorski [D., Ill.]; John J. Olejniczak, treasurer of the congress; Kenneth Colegrovek, head of the department of political science at Northwestern university, and Sigmund Stefanowicz II., financial secretary of the Illinois district, who offered the resolution pleading Poland's cause at San Francisco. Thaddeus V. Adesko, assistant judge of the Cook county Probate court, presided.

THE QUESTION

What admission were you most reluctant to make when you were a child?

WHERE ASKED

Palmer House arcade.

THE ANSWERS

Rozanne Rothstein, saleslady, 350 S. Homan av.—Mother sent me to buy a bottle of milk. I broke the bottle on the way out of the store. When I arrived home without the milk I was afraid to tell her I broke it. She accused me of spending the money for candy. I explained tearfully what had happened. All was forgiven.

Lt. Edith Williams, Hendricks Field, Fla.—When I first started going to movies alone, I'd always sit thru the picture twice. When mother would ask me where I'd been I'd make up excuses that were ridiculously fantastic. Once I stayed and saw a picture three times, but excuses were useless and I owned up.

Bette Arnold, senior ticket agent, 2633 Morse av.—When I was a child I broke my arm three times in falls while roller skating. The third time I came home and didn't tell any one. I was afraid of going to the doctor because of the pain of treatment. I finally had to tell because the agony of neglect was too much.

Paul Meilleur, student, 7138 S. Constance av.—For years I saved all my allowance money and all the other money I could earn. Then one day I sneaked off and splurged by buying a saddle horse. I kept it in a lumber mill barn. I was afraid to tell my parents. When they found out they were proud of my thriftiness.

Seaman 1st Class Ralph M. Chinn, Fredricksburg, Va.—We used to ride to school in a bus. One day a group of us decided to walk home. When the bus went past, I threw a rock at it and broke a window. We weren't able to conceal our connection and I felt especially awful about it—it was almost as if my world had come to an end.

Mrs. H. F. Reuschle, housewife, Eau Claire, Wis.—The sparrows had a nest in the eaves of a home. We used to stand on a porch railing and throw bread to them. I fell off the porch one day, a three story fall, and lay unconscious for two hours. When I came to I got up and walked home. I was afraid to tell about it.

RED, POLES' PACT BINDS 3D SLAV GROUP TO SOVIET

MOSCOW, April 22 (AP)—Signature of a 20 year treaty of friendship, mutual aid, and post-war collaboration by the soviet union with the Warsaw Polish provisional government marks the binding of three Slav governments to Moscow in a solid accord.

After signing the pact last night in the Kremlin, Marshal Stalin hailed it as of "great historical significance" and declared, "Now it is possible to say with assurance that German aggression has been checked from the east."

The treaty gives the rapidly expanding Polish provisional government new prestige.

Not Recognized by Allies

[The Polish Warsaw government is not recognized by Britain and the United States, which nations denied a soviet request for representation of that regime at the San Francisco world security conference opening Wednesday. Negotiations are in progress in Washington seeking to establish a broader united Polish government along lines set forth in the Yalta agreement among the three big powers.]

The newest of the soviet pacts, signed for the Poles by Prime Minister Eduard Osubka Morawski, does not differ in any major respect from the treaties which Russia signed earlier with Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia. Both these countries, like Russia, have recognized the provisional government as the government of Poland.

Stalin gave an indication of the importance he attached to the treaty by a lengthy speech overflowing with praise. He called it "a guaranty of the independence of a new democratic Poland."

Called Check to Aggression

It means, he said, "a liquidation of the old destructive political play [by Poland] between Germany and the soviet union and replaces it with a policy of alliance and friendship between Poland and her eastern neighbor."

The preamble states as its first aims, "to wage war jointly against the German invaders to complete and final victory" and "to consolidate the basic change in the history of soviet-Polish relations into the friendly allied coöperation which has been formed between the U. S. S. R. and Poland in the course of the joint war against German imperialism."

HELD IN DEATH OF FRIEND

Newman Furman, 45, of 73 E. 59th st., Negro, was held by police yesterday after he accidentally shot and killed a friend, William Green, 29, of 6644 Langley av., Negro, as they examined a gun in Furman's home.

$5,000 Cargo of Cheese, Ham, and Bacon Stolen

A tractor and trailer loaded with a cargo of 6,000 pounds of cheese and 2,000 pounds of ham and bacon valued at more than $5,000 were reported stolen early yesterday from a parking lot at 730 Root st. Lowell Carpenter of Danville, Vermilion county, a driver for the Merchants Delivery Service, reported the theft occurred while he was asleep in a near-by hotel. The merchandise was consigned to Danville, he told police.

POLISH GROUPS ASK TRUMAN TO RESIST REDS

New York, April 22 [Special]—The coördinating committee of American Polish associations in the east today appealed to President Truman to resist domination of Poland by the Russian sponsored Warsaw government and to prevent any participation by the Warsaw group in the San Francisco conference.

The Rev. A. A. Skoniecki of Turner Falls, Mass., executive secretary of the coördinating committee, made public the appeal which was authorized Saturday at a meeting of 170 delegates representing Polish American associations in 10 eastern states. The meeting expressed itself strongly in favor of the Polish government in London as the only authority that can speak for Poland.

The appeal to President Truman accused soviet authorities and the Warsaw puppet regime of persecuting, arresting, and deporting members of the Polish home army, Catholic priests and other patriots.

"The enormous help the soviet union received from us," the statement said, "should be a sufficient justification for our request that the soviets truly respect the principles of the Atlantic charter to which they subscribed in dealing with allied nations temporarily under soviet occupation."

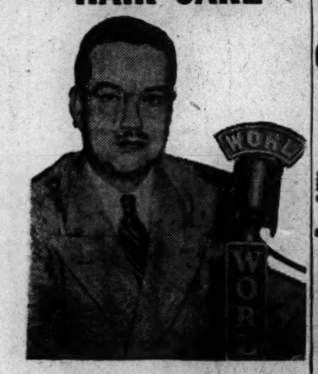
JOHN WARNER
TALKS ABOUT
HAIR CARE



Our professional business is, in simple English, the care and treatment of the hair and scalp. First of all, let me be very blunt and say very simply but emphatically that we do not and cannot grow hair. And as far as we have been able to determine neither can anyone else. Secondly we wish to make it quite plain that our only function is to provide men and women with a simple, sensible and effective method of treating the hair and scalp so as to keep it healthy, alive and attractive.

The some three thousand men and women who visit our offices each week are people who we sincerely believed could be helped. These clients know how we work and how effective our work is or they would not continue to come to us for treatment.

The best evidence of our integrity is to visit one of our offices to experience for yourself how we work. There is no charge or obligation for a private examination and consultation. If you decide then to take treatment, the decision is entirely yours. We employ no salesmen. Our treatments are at your convenience and the modest fee we charge is payable only when you take a treatment.

The next best evidence of our integrity is to discuss the Warner method of hair and scalp control with any man or woman who has been a client of ours.

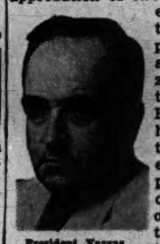
BRAZIL CLEANS HOUSE, WITH EYE ON NEW LEAGUE

Glad to See Yanks Retire from War Time Bases

BY STANLEY JOHNSTON

[Mr. Johnston, Tribune correspondent, has just returned from a survey of current opinion in Central and South America. This is one of a series of his articles.]

In Brazil there is much public approbation of two recent national events. First there are the promised benefits accruing to citizens of Brazil thru Dictator President Vargas' hurried preparations for Brazil's entry into the proposed league of nations. A secondary satisfaction arises from the withdrawal of thousands of mistrusted "Norte Americanos" the Brazilians had been told were taking over the country and would never leave.



President Vargas

In a house cleaning to qualify Brazil for a position in a world court organization, Vargas announced plans to hold free elections, lifted his press censorship and prohibition of assembly, and granted a general amnesty freeing political enemies imprisoned as far back as 1935 and permitting political exiles to return to Brazil.

"Sees Light" on Russia

He also established diplomatic relations with Russia, a prerequisite to qualification in the security organization to be fathered at San Francisco, Cal. Brazilians say Vargas "saw the light" on this matter when our Secretary of State Stettinius stopped in Brazil on his way home from the Yalta conference and "waved the big stick" Dictator Stalin and Churchill gave him at the meeting of the Big Three.

The elections, expected to be held next September or October, will be the first in the 14 years of Vargas' dictatorship. In 1937 he announced plans for elections but when candidates opposed him openly, the dictator jailed them and rescinded his ballot offer. Consequently, there is some suspicion of his present intentions but it is generally believed he will grant elections because of the necessity of having an elected administration—a requirement in the world court plans as well as the recent Chapultepec Pan-American solidarity pact.

Favors War Minister

Two prospective candidates for the presidential post are Maj. Gen. Eduardo Gomes, Brazilian air marshal, who has wide popular support, and Gen. Gaspar Dutra, minister of war, who is favored by Vargas. People fear Vargas may "arrange" for Dutra to be "elected" to assure retention of the power by the present dictator's followers.

A possible third candidate is Luis Carlos Prestes, former Brazilian army officer who had been South America's most famous political prisoner until his release only last week under Vargas' new amnesty decree. Prestes, known as the "Caballero of Hope" and "the only man who can save Brazil," had been imprisoned nine years on a 40 year term for his communist tinged abortive revolution against Vargas in 1935.

Workers Back Vargas

Many Brazilian workers consider Vargas to be their friend. Brazil has made remarkable progress under Vargas' dictatorship. In 10 years the number of factories in booming Sao Paulo has multiplied by more than 600 per cent, from 6,555 to 40,000, if all the small plants are to be counted.

The Brazilians' pleasure over the progressive departure of North Americans is not as inhospitable as it may appear. Their fears concerning our intentions mounted as they watched the influx into their country of thousands of United States government representatives, civilian employes and, finally, military personnel.

They Hear Whispers

Enemies of ours—agents of the axis and jealous European countries and some unfriendly Brazilians—whispered darkly that we were there to stay.

Many thousands of United States workers went to Brazil on our rubber development project, in behalf of the purchasing mission of the United States office of economic warfare, and for the programs of other United States alphabetical agencies. As our war needs grew, we sent down more thousands of government representatives and troops.

A gnawing anxiety among Brazilians has existed because of our numerous bases—army transport command, air patrol, and civilian airports—along the northeastern coastline of their country.

Thru all this inpouring of Americans, Brazil gave us the closest cooperation, lending every assistance to our military missions, air patrols and numerous other war time operations within her borders.

But while they helped, they watched our continual coming and worried about whether or when we would be going. Their worries are now disappearing, for so are the Americans.

Rest Camp Turned Back

It is estimated that nearly three-fourths of the United States personnel that had been in Brazil has departed. Their usefulness in Brazil has been decreased by our vastly improved position in the war.

At least one base—a rest camp and all the improvements we had made in the property—already has been turned over to Brazil. Tho we still have reduced military missions and operational air and army forces at other bases, Brazilians now comprise a large proportion of the staffs we maintain.

With the Americans' departure, Brazilians have recovered their warmth toward us, satisfied now that it was not our intention to remain in their country.

LIE TEST URGED FOR ALL NAZIS SEIZED IN WAR

In order that no Nazi soldier guilty of atrocity or other war crime may go unpunished, a suggestion was made yesterday by James B. Fisher, a plant executive of Waukesha, Wis., that all German prisoners be given lie detector tests. He also advocated that suspected civilians or officials undergo similar tests.

In a letter to THE TRIBUNE, Fisher said it is most important that those responsible for the war and those who willingly carried out orders that brought about the countless acts of cruelty and mass murders be brought to justice. Punishment of all Germans guilty of misdeeds would act as a powerful deterrent to a recurrence, he added.

"With the lie detector machines and a suitable list of questions, it is possible to determine not only if a man has committed a crime, but by the simple process of elimination pin him down to the country, state, city, and even street and building where the crime was committed," he wrote. "The writer has seen the machine in operation and observed the telltale records it made as the culprit responded to apparently innocent and critical questions."

He suggested that thousands of the machines be made now and sent abroad, and that fingerprints be taken also of every captured Nazi.

35,000 PARADE IN PARIS REVIVAL OF BOY SCOUTS

PARIS, April 22 (AP)—About 35,000 Boy Scouts from Paris and vicinity today held their first St. George's day celebration since the Germans banned the organization five years ago. A two hour parade was reviewed by Mrs. Baden-Powell, widow of the founder of the movement.

Hundreds of Yanks who had been Scouts mingled with the crowds.

Lt. Glenn Bock, Sealy, Tex., once scoutmaster of Troop 308, Houston, Tex., said the revival of the French Scouts "proves there is something in scouting that can't be killed." Lt. Robert Terry, 1435 Ridge av., Evanston, Ill., a former Scout, said: "This is the future of France coming forward."

BIG INDUSTRIES OF INDIA TO BE NATIONALIZED

NEW DELHI, India, April 22 (AP)—The Indian government today announced a policy of "taking over" development of major industries, such as manufacture, steel production, chemicals, and machinery if private capital is not available for that purpose.

The statement came on the heels of an announcement that large American automobile concerns such as Chrysler and Studebaker were planning to establish plants in India. Ford and General Motors already have assembly plants in Bombay.

It was understood the government planned to have representation on the boards of management of such industries. It was pointed out that ordnance factories, public utilities, and railways were already largely state-owned.

Lake Villa Flyer Downs 3 Jap Planes in 5 Minutes

Lt. Chester S. Nielsen of Lake Villa, Lake county, shot down three Japanese planes in five minutes in a recent raid on a Japanese air field, the navy department disclosed yesterday. Flying a carrier based Hellcat, Lt. Nielsen accounted for a twin engine reconnaisance plane and two fighters. He is the son of Mrs. Adelaide B. Nielsen of Meadow Brook farm, Lake Villa.

NOTE—From time to time, in this space, there will appear an article which we hope will be of interest to our fellow Americans. This is an article of a series.
SCHENLEY DISTILLERS CORP., NEW YORK

Springtime!

This recorder has just had an experience with his lawn that might be of interest to others who have a patch of green about their premises. We made a mistake, and we'll have to re-seed quite a plot. Here's the tale.

We bought a bag of commercial plant food—a most excellent product. We had used it before with perfectly wonderful results. But this time we used it unintelligently. We "overfed" part of our lawn and it got "acute indigestion"—very, very sick.

No, we didn't blame the product; that would be unfair. The truth is we bought some more of it, and we'll continue to use it as we have in the past—but intelligently.

You're right, dear reader—we're leading up to something. Take this matter of using alcoholic beverages, for instance. Like so many other products of nature, whiskey is used by millions of people—moderately, and by comparatively few, immoderately. So why blame the product for any lapses?

And that reminds me, too, that a neighbor got a second degree burn last summer from immoderate exposure to the blessed sunshine. We never heard him blame the sun, but you ought to have heard him blame himself. "I should have known better!" said he.

So here ends today's short musing. Hope you have a nice lawn this spring—but be careful!

6 reasons WHY PEOPLE ARE Watching the News from GRAHAM-PAIGE!

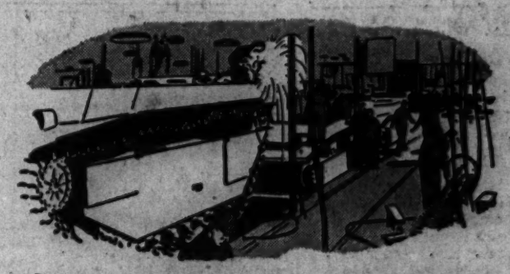
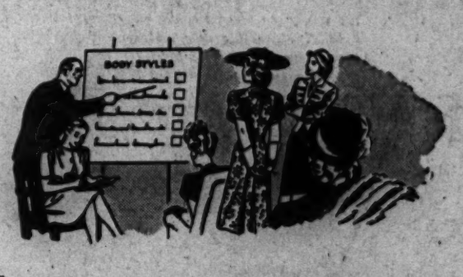
1. Because the new organization at Graham-Paige has proved its mettle in vital war production, in the construction of famous "Alligator" amphibious tanks, LCM landing craft, and precision parts for super-bombers.

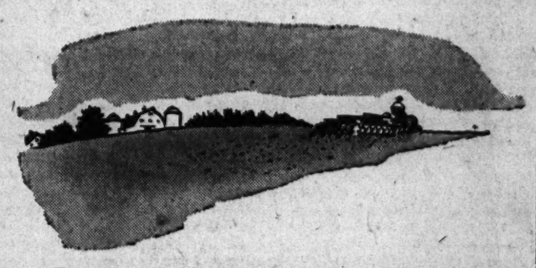


2. Because ample financial backing and experienced management have contributed to the growth of a strong and well-knit production team at Graham-Paige, with adequate facilities to fill its important place in post-war industry.

3. Because the public is quick to recognize the quality of leadership exemplified by Graham-Paige's board chairman, Joseph W. Frazer, and they are deeply interested in his exciting plans for the company's future.



4. Because the automobile Graham-Paige will build after the war bids fair to become one of the sensations of the industry.—Utterly new, it will be truly "the car of the future"—styled for accepted tastes in beauty and design.



5. Because this same forward thinking will also be making headline news in the agricultural field, as will be seen in Graham-Paige's new farm tractor with special direct-attached implements, and other modern farm equipment.

6. Because Graham-Paige's new Rototiller, that does the work of plow, disk and harrow in one operation, and better than all three combined, opens up vast new possibilities both in small-acreage gardening and in large-scale farming.

Yes, all America is watching Graham-Paige. People today are looking forward to something exciting, progressive, and different in a post-war automobile. Graham-Paige is well aware of this; and its corps of keen, forward-looking young engineers is determined to give the public what it wants. This means interesting new developments not only in passenger cars, but in agricultural equipment as well. That's why you, too, will find it worth while to "keep watching the news from Graham-Paige!"

Propagandists Seek Slice of 40 Billion Melon

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 22—The propaganda barrage which is being directed at America by agents of every land of the world in competition for the greatest cash prize in the peacetime world—40 billion dollars foreign governments are asking of the United States for their post-war industrial and commercial rehabilitation—is described by Junius B. Wood, a former foreign correspondent in the May issue of Nation's Business, the official publication of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Wood found that 518 agents or agencies of foreign governments and political parties have been registered by the department of justice. Of these, 325 are active in stuffing mail boxes with pamphlets, circulars, news releases, and the like; in working to get their country's cause into newspapers and magazines; in providing data for radio commentators, speakers, and lecturers, and in attempting to exercise influence on members of congress and on federal and state officials.

Many Others Unregistered

The registered agents are only a fraction of the many who serve from conviction or principle and are not registered, Wood said.

"The United States is the happy hunting ground for the salesmen of every government—whether it be actual, theoretical, or potential," Wood said. "They flock here like hopeful prospectors to a newly discovered gold field. Speech is free and Americans like arguments. We also can read and write and will look at pictures and listen to the radio.

"Their efforts are divided between demonstrating each country's war aid to the United States and writing insurance for their own country's future. Wars will end and the competition among nations will return. The world future and that of all nations will depend largely on the form in which help from Uncle Sam, given without stint for the war, is continued.

Global Needs Pressed

"Individual needs being formulated range from bundles of second hand clothes to loans of 6 billion to 10 billion dollars. Our country faces decisions of such national policies as continuing lend-lease, stockpile buying, an international bank, stabilized world currencies, world-wide relief thru UNRRA, a world army, and other global partnerships."

Wood found the largest, best organized, and most effective of the propaganda agencies is the British information service, which spends between 20 and 150 million a year on its information, press, radio, speakers, exhibitions, and film divisions.

3 BOYS CONFESS VANDALISM IN JEWISH TEMPLE

New York, April 22 [Special]—Police said today three neighborhood boys, one 12 and the others 13, admitted they committed acts of vandalism and desecration in the synagog of the Hebrew Alliance building in Brooklyn last April 13.

Damage to the interior of the synagog prevented its use the following day for a memorial service for President Roosevelt. The boys said they entered the building by a window, drank two bottles of sacramental wine, then slashed upholstery and tore up prayer books in anger at not finding anything of value to steal.

The boys are James Elsasser and Joseph Litwin, 13, and Patrick McKenna, 12. They will be brought into children's court tomorrow.

Deaf Man's Murder Trial Will Be Thru Headphones

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, April 22 — The Assize court in Leeds town hall has been fitted with microphones and head phones in preparation for the trial, tomorrow, of Eric White, a 24 year old miner charged with murder. The special equipment, which, it is believed, is being used for the first time in a British court, is required because of White's severe deafness. The defendant, the judge, lawyers, and the jury foreman will wear the headphones and there will also be a set in the witness box for the assistance of a deaf witness.

VETERANS' UNIT DENOUNCED FOR CLAIM DELAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., April 22—Jean A. Brunner, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, charged today that red tape and cumbersome methods are slowing up the payment of pensions and insurance by the veterans administration. He demanded that the government agency speed up its handling of claims.

"With red tape binding the veterans administration's creaking claims machinery, unnecessary and inexcusable financial hardship is being forced on the dependents of men who could not wait to die in the service of their country," he said in a statement.

Brunner said a survey showed an average of 180 days' elapse between the time a man is killed in action and the first payment of insurance or pension to his beneficiary.

The American Legion shortly will ask congress to amend the GI bill of rights to strengthen its operation and slash the red tape from its administration, Edward N. Scheiberling, national commander, said today. He recently ordered a survey made to learn the chief complaints against the present terms of the bill. Most of them concern loans and educational opportunities.

DAY by DAY on the FARM & GAIL COMPTON

April 22, 1945

THE black cattle at the Fox River farm have made their annual trek across the river to new pastures. During the winter, the cows and heifers are kept south of the river near the big barn and granary. In the spring, when they have exhausted the early pasture, they are moved north to new rye and clover feeding grounds.

For many years the scene was a page from a western novel. The farm men were mounted on horses and drove the animals down to the river and with wild yells urged them into the water at a shallow ford. Now the scene is one that more befits midwestern farms. Trucks do the work of carrying the animals to the new pastures.

250 Acres Plowed

The clover grounds vacated by the herd are being turned under to prepare the way for corn. To date 250 acres have been plowed and the work is well along. The rye pastures on the south part of the farm were well grazed and now await their turn with the plow. The manager is anxious to let his cattle do a thoro job of nibbling the new rye pastures across the river.

He wants the rye short so it will offer less temptation to chinch bugs. These pests like to get a start on rye before moving to the oat fields.

There are 12 Angus calves so far in the 1945 crop and most of them are heifers. They either will sell for breeding stock or be added to the 88 cows and 75 open heifers that went across the river.

Five Tractors at Work

Despite recent rain, high wind has helped to dry the ground rapidly and now five tractors are at work every day getting the fields ready for corn planting. At the Wheaton farm oat planting has been delayed but is going forward as rapidly as possible.

When the animals move to pasture the farms will be getting the manure spread in the most profitable manner. Permitting the animals to do it themselves saves labor and expense. Also in this manner there is little loss of fertilizing value as the ground receives the manure directly. This is especially true with urine, which in the case of cattle, sheep, and horses, contains half of the nitrogen and two-fifths of the potassium in the manure.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

GARDENERS who made plantings of hardy vegetables in mid-March now are thinning the excess seedlings from their rows. This particularly applies to head lettuce, loosehead leaf lettuce, early beets, and radishes. This latter vegetable now is nearing harvest size in some gardens in the west suburbs.

The novice gardener often hesitates to remove a sufficient number of excess seedlings to permit growing room for the vegetables which remain in the row, but severe thinning is necessary to insure against the stunting of all plants. Radishes, for example, should be thinned to stand no closer than an inch apart in the row, with 1½ inches preferable for giant varieties. Two inches should be left between carrots and 2½ to 3 inches between beets. Onion sets need not be thinned, but it is advisable to harvest every other plant in the row rather than pick consecutive plants, and leave an extra space between the onions which remain in place.

A discussion of lettuce thinning will be published tomorrow.

INDIANAN, NAZI PRISONER, GETS CONGRESS MEDAL

Washington, D. C., April 22 (AP)—There'll be a congressional medal of honor waiting for Staff Sgt. Thomas E. McCall once he gets out of a Nazi prison camp.

The 29 year old Veedersburg, Ind., infantry man, the war department said today, won the decoration during an attack on German positions along the Rapido river in Italy Jan. 22, 1944.

The last man in his section left alive and unwounded, he was last seen advancing on an enemy machine gun nest with his own machine gun blazing from his hip. By that time he had knocked out two Nazi machine guns and killed or routed their crews.

Later, word was received he had been taken prisoner and is now in Germany. The medal will be presented to his father, Richard D. McCall of R. F. D. 3, Veedersburg.

World's Christians Pray for You, Truman Is Told

New York, April 22 (AP)—President Truman was assured by a group of religious leaders today that "Christians thruout the world are praying for you." The message was contained in a telegram signed by leaders of six Protestant denominations, the President of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the Greek orthodox archbishop of North and South America, and the American secretary of the World Council of Churches.

DRIVING TESTS WILL BE GIVEN BY ARMY DEPOT

Brig. Gen. J. E. Barzynski, commander of the Chicago quartermaster depot, yesterday announced that a series of motor-vehicle driving tests will be conducted this week among all military and civilian personnel attached to the depot who hold driver's permits. Some tests are to be given at the depot and others at either the Chicago Motor club or the Wilmette Truck company.

They include actual road driving plus written examinations and a series of tests in hearing, color perception, visual accuelty, distance judgment, and reaction timing.

During 1944, cars and trucks assigned to the Chicago quartermaster command traveled 793,129 miles, Gen. Barzynski reported, establishing "a high record of accident free driving." Regular motor pool drivers, said his statement, had only four accidents for the year and three of these were deemed "nonpreventable."

REVEAL GLORIA WED STOKOWSKI AT MEXICALI

MEXICALI, Mexico, April 22 (AP)—It was disclosed today that Orchestra Leader Leopold Stokowski, 58, and the former Gloria Vanderbilt De Cicco, 21, were married here last night in the government palace by a civil judge.

The couple arrived at Calexico, on the border, last night in an automobile from Reno, Nev., where Gloria had obtained a divorce Friday from Pasquale [Pat] De Cicco, actor's agent.

United States immigration officers at the border said they had been instructed by telegram from the state department in Washington, D. C., to allow Stokowski and Gloria immediate passage across the border as he is a naturalized citizen. Stokowski, born in England, became an American in 1915.

SIX GUGGENHEIM FELLOWSHIPS GO TO CHICAGOANS

Six Chicagoans, three in uniform and one an honorably discharged veteran, were among the 96 recipients of fellowships from the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation. Recipients of the awards, announced yesterday, include 41 who are in military service or war work.

Chicagoans include: Sgt. Mitchell Siporin, former Art institute student; Frank Vavrusks, a war veteran; Dr. John W. Calkin of the Illinois Institute of Technology, now on naval duty; Dr. Donald Eugene McCown of the University of Chicago, now an army captain; and Dr. Frederick Ludwig Will of the University of Illinois.

The value of the fellowships totaled $230,000.

OFF TO SAN FRANCISCO

Sen. Connally and Sen. Vandenberg, delegates to the San Francisco conference which begins its work this week, have spoken their farewells to their colleagues in Washington. Mr. Connally said he had "every confidence" in the success of the mission. Mr. Vandenberg's language was a little more guarded but he had "faith that we may perfect this charter of peace and justice so that reasonable men of good will will find in it so much good that all lesser doubts and disagreements may be resolved in its favor."

These remarks have led some observers to conclude that the two senators have already abandoned hope of getting a good treaty and, instead, are preparing the public mind to accept a bad one. We trust this inference was not warranted, tho it is plausible. Men who hope to achieve something in conference do not, if they are wise in negotiation, give away so much in advance.

The plain fact is that today America is by long odds the strongest nation in the world in the military sense and the most productive in the economic sense. America has no immediate neighbors whose aggressions it has reason to fear, no ambition for great new territories to rule, and no desire to dominate alien populations. We have less to gain at San Francisco by way of security and more to lose than has any other nation. That being so, our negotiators ought to be taking the position that if the world wants us to join in an organization to keep the peace by force, the world should bid for our participation by offering terms which eradicate some of the causes of war, will not offend our sense of right and justice, and will not expose us to military adventures for the benefit of others. Instead of that, we get fond expressions of confidence that we shall be content with whatever the conference may decide.

What the country would like to have heard from its delegates, among other things, is a statement that the primary responsibility for keeping the peace in Europe [where the great wars always start] rests upon Europeans. There was ample force in England, France, and Russia to have prevented the rise of Hitler and Mussolini and to halt their early aggressions. There is ample force today in England and Russia to keep the peace of the continent as long ahead as any one can see.

If England and Russia will deal honorably with each other and justly with the smaller and weaker nations of Europe there should be little need for America to intervene in European affairs. The danger is that England and Russia will fall to quarreling over central Europe, the middle eastern oil fields, India, or something else. They will do so the more readily if each of them has reason to expect American support for its position. Accordingly, the most useful service that the San Francisco conference could perform would be to impress Europeans, and the British and the Russians in particular, with the fact that theirs is the first and major responsibility for keeping the peace of their continent. A certainty that America will throw its weight to one side or the other is more likely to provoke a war than to prevent it.

Another point that the American delegates ought to be stressing and aren't is the menace to peace which results from the denial of civil rights in many European countries. The nations which withhold freedom of the press and freedom of discussion and worship from their peoples and fill concentration camps with political prisoners are the nations which can most readily be led into war. Our delegates ought to make it very clear we cannot consider any commitment in favor of a nation that deprives its people of the elementary civil liberties, including, needless to say, the liberty of political opposition.

Likewise, our delegates ought to make certain that we are not committed to war for the purpose of holding any nation in unwilling subjection. We have no intention of fighting for the continued subjugation of Poland, the Baltic states, the Balkan nations, or India or Burma. If these peoples or others like them rebel against their oppressors, our sympathies will be with the victims as they always have been in Greece, Ireland, and everywhere else. We must not be bound in advance to fight on the side of tyranny. If any such commitment is made, it is certain to be broken.

In short, if our delegates were demanding an end to those customs and practices of the old world which breed their wars we could be much more hopeful than any one has a right to be today of the outcome of the San Francisco conference. As it is, it looks more and more as if none of the conditions which make for war in Europe will be attacked. If the treaty is then accepted by the senate, Europe will continue to have its periodic upheavals and we shall find ourselves bound to take part in every futile one of them.

GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS

Lindsay Warren, the controler general, who keeps check for congress on the disbursements of executive departments and agencies, felt impelled during testimony before the senate banking and currency committee to point out its plain duty to congress. That, he said, was to engage in the wholesale amputation of government agencies with "a bush-ax or a meat cleaver."

Mr. Warren pointed out that there are no less than 101 government corporations now active, all of them largely independent of congressional control and free from accountability to any one. "This thing we call government," he said, "has reached gargantuan proportions and is sprawled all over the lot. It has become greater than congress, its creator, and at times arrogantly snaps its fingers in the face of congress. The only way to reorganize is to reorganize. Duplication and overlapping are widely prevalent. Untold millions could be saved."

Mr. Warren's testimony was given in connection with legislation intended to place the government corporations and their transactions and operations under annual scrutiny of congress.

The objectives of the bill are good, so far as they go, and the corporations should be brought under control. But the primary necessity, as Mr. Warren has emphasized, is to use the ax right and left in getting rid of most of these corporations. "Of course," Mr. Warren says, "there would be loud yelps and snarls" from the burocrats, who are the only persons to whom most of these agencies are important. The people of the country, however, would never miss them.

THE LAST FIGHT OF THE HOUSTON

An Australian officer who was captured by the Japanese at Singapore and later escaped from a prison camp has cleared up the mystery of what happened to the American cruiser Houston when it put out into the Java sea Feb. 28, 1942. In Singapore the Australian met 100 survivors of the Houston, and their story, as he relayed it to Walter Simmons of THE TRIBUNE, was one of the most heroic of the war, one of the great sagas of the American navy.

The last action of the Houston also was of an importance never guessed, for the Australian officer's appraisal was that, before sinking, the American warship broke up the Japanese invasion of his own country.

The Houston was one unit of a composite American, British, Australian, and Dutch fleet which, in the defense of Java, had been under the operational command of Vice Admiral Helfrich of the Netherlands navy and under direct command of Admiral Doorman of the Dutch navy. The night of Feb. 28 the Houston, with the Australian cruiser Perth and the Dutch destroyer Evertsen, attempted to break out of the Jap controled Java sea thru Soenda strait into the Indian ocean.

From survivors of the Houston the Australian narrator learned that between Java and Sumatra the allied squadron sighted two long columns of Jap transports and cargo ships, 100 in all, and the Houston and Perth sailed boldly between the two lines, firing right and left, and sank no less than 22 enemy vessels before they were overwhelmed and sunk by the terrible fire of escorting Jap heavy warships. Both allied ships, however, fired their last round of ammunition before the order was given to abandon ship. In the confusion, the Japanese warships fired upon and sank a number of their own transport and cargo vessels.

Only when they were in the water, grasping floating debris from enemy cargo ships, did the men of the Houston gain a clew to the importance of their accomplishment. Some of the survivors found in the morning light that they had been clinging to floating bales of Japanese occupation currency intended to be used after the conquest of Australia. "I firmly believe," said Mr. Simmons' Australian informant, "the gallantry of the men on the Houston and Perth saved Australia from invasion."

The sacrifice of the Houston became unavoidable when the Dutch forces were unable to defend the few first class naval bases in the Indies. The Dutch naval command exercised in the waters adjacent to Java was unsuccessful. Of all the allied ships which fought under Helfrich and Doorman, only four American destroyers escaped to fight another day.

The lessons of the experience are clear. As every one knows, the United States has recovered from these early disasters to sweep the Japanese navy from the Pacific and to drive the Japs from their important island bases back to their home islands. Order and security in the Pacific now and in the future depend upon the efforts of our navy and air force. For them to function freely and effectively, the necessary strategic bases must be under our control.

It is significant that Admiral Helfrich, who has arrived in this country as a Dutch delegate to the world security conference, fully concurs in these conclusions. He should know, for the Houston fought under his command and he knows the handicaps and limitations imposed upon American naval units in the Pacific by the denial to us of good bases securely held.

"The United States, I believe, has to keep as many bases in the Pacific as will enable them to command the sea and the air in the Pacific from now on," Admiral Helfrich said.

Our own naval commanders, Admiral King, commander in chief of the fleet, and Admiral Nimitz, commander in the Pacific, have already taken the same position, with the support of Secretary of the Navy Forrestal. Sen. Tydings, in a speech here last week, also agreed. Only a few misguided Americans of the global thought school favor meaningless international trusteeships which would divide our responsibility with nations powerless to defend themselves or to make a significant contribution to a joint defense in the Pacific.

When spokesmen of these nations themselves express recognition that American control of the Pacific is needed to preserve the peace, and on their own initiative propose that we keep the bases we need, there is no longer any important area of dispute on the question.

Surely, after resting up, there should be something for the Windsors in the great work ahead, as his highness lays a neat cornerstone and Wally opens a nice bazar.—Detroit News.

BERLIN AFTERMATH

A tabloid essay on former captures of Berlin led this column when its editor closed his desk last Friday evening and departed for a peaceful week-end. Imagine his dismay the next morning when he discovered that the news department had been similarly inspired! He had been scooped, and therefore his conscience compelled him to withdraw his historical footnotes from circulation.

From the wreckage he rescues only the figures on Berlin's population when suffering from previous attacks of prostration before hostile armies. In the Thirty Years' war, 10,000; in the Seven Years' war, 75,000; in the Napoleonic wars, 175,000. These surrenders were minor incidents, and historians have not been loquacious about them. There was no taking by storm or battering by siege guns. Until this war Berlin, whose development into a vast metropolis is relatively modern, had been lucky. Many other major cities of continental Europe have longer invasion records.

Napoleon's entrance into Berlin as a conqueror was marked by his issuance of the Berlin Decree, of which history has much to say. This was his master stroke of economic warfare against England. This order forbade the importation of British goods into the European countries which French armies had overrun. Neutral vessels which had touched at British ports were included in the taboo, and were subject to seizure if they entered a harbor of the dictator's "continental system."

FOR SHAKESPEARE NOW

I think his wistful spirit must have yearned
Above his valiant land these years of war,
Seeing how steadfastly the watch-fires burned,
Watching the dawn patrols above the shore
On wings of silver, spelling in the blue
A song of faith that all the world might see
That Shakespeare's England to herself stood true,
That English courage answered tyranny
In Shakespeare's dauntless, splendid, ancient words.
And now, in spring again, his spirit looks
On English woods where once again the birds
Can nest, and children play by singing brooks;
He hears again, upon his day, the bell,
The bellman's tread, the cry of "All is well!"

Calumet's Rustle of Spring

Each neighborhood greets spring in its own way—the shrill voices of playing children, the whirl of roller skates, the rattle of lawn mowers, the clang of spades, rakes, and hoes. The Calumet area has all this and something else—something of its very own. The throaty whistles of ships lustily announce spring in the Calumet.

During the winter the ships have lain snugly. All along the Calumet shores they have been moored, waiting for the ice to melt. We kids made it our business to acquaint ourselves with the various watchmen. Their berths were warm, comfortable, and ever-inviting. The watchman we liked best was Ol' Gus, Swedish keeper of the S. S. Malcobran. A jug of barleycorn was the main staple of his diet. When deep in his jug he played on his concertina and hoarsely sang Swedish songs. Occasionally a tear trickled down his cheek. Perhaps he regretted his ill-spent youth—or was he recalling a time when life was kinder to him?

The night before he sailed he always gave a small party for the kids. There was a meager assortment of sausage cuts, spiced herring, and caraway seeded rye bread from the nearby Swedish delicatessen.

During the night, on the warm spring breezes, we heard whistle blasts of many ships. Was it Gus' boat? In the morning an empty spot at the river bank told us that he had sailed in the dawn—and left us with a brand new spring!

CHERRY IN BLOOM

Cherry tree, O, cherry tree,
In such rapt expectancy,
Young and fair and so heartbreaking,
Maid her first communion taking.
Cherry tree, your vestal hour
Brief may be but hath for dower
All the orchard's green and gold,
And the dawn's flush still may hold;
Paradise was fresh with morn
When your virgin snow was born.
Cherry tree amid the grasses,
Petals drop for one who passes.

T. V. writes: "Can an officer who was separated from his wife before entering service be compelled to make an allotment to support her and two children? This case had not reached the court stage at the time he left the United States."

Commissioned personnel are not required to make allotments to their families, but a letter to his commanding officer should result in a reminder to him of his family obligation and his duty as "an officer and a gentleman." A letter to the war department explaining the circumstances also would be effective.

R. G. asks: "May the wife of a man who was released from service without an honorable discharge appeal for review of the discharge?"

A wife, next of kin, or legal representative may appeal for review of the type and nature of a veteran's discharge, except a discharge or dismissal by sentence of a general court martial. The review will be based on available records of the branch in which he served and witnesses will be permitted to present testimony in person or by affidavit. The person requesting a review also may appear before the reviewing board. The board may change, correct, or modify any discharge except one by reason of a general court martial and issue a new discharge. Findings of the board are final and subject to review by only the secretaries of war or the navy.

THE SUN IS STRONG MEDICINE

"SPRING unlocks the flowers," according to one of the many poems glorifying this season of the year. With the passing of dark winter days we feel that many enjoyable weeks of vitality and well being are opening for us.

What is light? We are all familiar with the rainbow. Visible rays lie in about the middle of the spectrum. Above are the ultraviolet and beyond these are the X-rays, gamma, and cosmic. Below the visible are the infra-red [heat rays], then the radio waves. Sunlight contains approximately 15 per cent of visible rays, 78 per cent heat, and 7 per cent ultraviolet rays.

A huge amount of ultraviolet is not needed to maintain health. The average adult who spends one-half hour daily in the sun need not concern himself about reinforcements. We must recall that this powerful agent can prove harmful as well as helpful. All too many suntan addicts go at the job so vigorously that they not only injure the skin but add to the work of the organs of elimination.

Old Sol is valuable in rickets, anemia, and certain varieties of arthritis. We know of its beneficial effects in bone tuberculosis but in the lung form [pulmonary] of the disease, sunbathing is contraindicated. The resultant stimulation is just what is not wanted. In other words, those with consumption should stay in the shade, and this applies also to any one who is running a temperature.

Some persons are sensitive to the sun's rays and develop headache, nausea, and fever blisters on the slightest exposure. These individuals may have to forego contact entirely. The great majority, however, can take advantage of this wonderful source of energy. We may start now to enjoy our sunbaths.

If circumstances permit, at least one-third of the body should be exposed. The head should be protected, especially on hot days, and dark glasses are advised for the eyes. Those with thin, white skins would do well to use a coating of oil or cold cream. There are several commercial preparations on the market. Some contain compounds which deter pigmentation; others encourage tanning without burning.

The first contact should not last more than one minute on each side if the person has the type of skin that burns easily. Redness persisting for more than four hours indicates that too large a dose has been employed. By increasing the interval gradually, a reasonable immunity may be acquired by the end of a week. When the surface has become somewhat browned, longer periods may be indulged in, provided searing has been encountered.

We can make the most of nature's gift to us mortals. But let us use this potent force with intelligence.

DROOPING LIDS

M. A. H. writes: What is responsible for ptosis of the eyelids?

REPLY

The condition may be inherited. In others, the nerve responsible for holding the "blinker" up is at fault. This may result from a small brain hemorrhage, injury, or a disorder known as "myasthenia gravis." Should an eye become infected, the body tends to protect the structure by fostering this maneuver.

MORNING HIC

M. H. writes: Frequently, upon arising in the morning, I get hiccups. What could cause this?

REPLY

Hiccups are due to stimulation of the diaphragm, causing it to contract. Why this organ is affected on arising baffles me. Perhaps the poor thing is startled by your sudden change in posture.

WHITE VS. RED

Mrs. B. writes: What is the name of the disease in which the white cells eat the red cells?

REPLY

I don't know just what malady you refer to. The blood corpuscles are not cannibalistic. On the other hand, if the white cells are greatly increased, a disorder such as leucemia may be present.

ABDOMINAL PAIN

S. Z. writes: What could be responsible for pain about the navel?

REPLY

This covers a lot of territory and several abdominal disorders may be considered. Infection or rupture of the navel are often associated with pain.

SKIN LESIONS

G. F. writes: Can psoriasis attack the ears?

REPLY

The scalp is a favorite area and the patches may spread to the region behind the ears.

Cost of Credit Lines

Variety, the weekly show business magazine, says the radio tribute to Mr. Roosevelt cost, conservatively, in excess of 7 million dollars. This is the estimate placed on rebates involved in canceling commercial programming for the four nights and three days immediately following the President's death. "Never before in the history of the industry," the paper says pungently, "was there such a sustained period when the b. o. aspects of broadcasting were completely ignored."

Nothing Off-Color

The press release calling itself [in capital letters] News Letter had a title: "New Kisses to Surprise G. I.s." It said that the recent slump in marriage license sales brings a chilling thought: Is romance slowing down to peace time tempo? No, comes the ready answer. "Plenty more lads will pop the question the minute they're home to stay."

It may be a surprise to you, but the press release says the joy of that first welcome will be expressed in "ecstatic kisses," but, ladies and gentlemen, it won't be the same old kiss. "Of course, some G. I. Joes will come out of the embrace laughingly smeared with lipstick, just as of yore. But a lot more of them are due for a sweet surprise."

The surprise is that when they reach for handkerchiefs to remove "the customary red smudge," there won't be any smudge to remove. The really smart girl will be wearing a nonsmearing red liquid so she won't give his face "that clownish look." Since the creation of this goo, News Letter says, "smart appearing girls are one jump ahead of their foreign competition, for it never leaves an off-color rim on the lips. . . ."

The prediction that plenty more boys will pop the question is accredited to "wise observers." The reason they will pop it is the lack of smudges. Somehow, somewhere, an old cracked advertising bell is ringing. "She's lovely! She's charming! She's engaged!" Remember that one? She used a cold cream that rhymed with bonds.

TOO MANY FARMERS?

Columbus, O., April 18—Probably a statement that there are too many farmers in the United States will be met by shocked denials and exclamations of incredulity. Yet the continued and persistent production of huge and unmarketable surpluses of staples can hardly be explained any other way.

For a century the proportion of farming to total population has been decreasing. This state of affairs has two principal causes: the opening of new plow lands abroad and improved methods at home. There is no apparent reason to believe these influences will be less effective in the future than in the past. Nevertheless, the movement of people away from farming into other occupations always lags, and the surplus production of staples depresses prices and injures the producers. Thus we have a large section of our population which cannot produce to its full capacity and cannot buy what it needs from other industries. The answer that promises economically sound and permanent relief is fewer farmers.

Our government, with that tumbling stupidity which has always characterized the New Deal, has embarked on a policy of direct and indirect subsidies to farmers. Such a policy can have but one effect, namely, to keep an overmanned and depressed industry overmanned and depressed, to perpetuate the condition it aims to cure.

Prosperity and full employment can be reached only by having people in the right jobs, not by paying them to stay in the wrong ones. And what are the right jobs? Making something or doing something the market demands and can pay for, of course. For it is market demand, and market demand only, that makes jobs, and not silly yelling at employers and braying about 60 million jobs. Too many people in one industry inevitably means their product cannot all be sold. And it means their power to buy the product of other industries is by so much reduced.

We were fed by German prisoners of war. On the last leg of our journey as soldiers, it wasn't very appetizing to be fed by German prisoners. Going to the movie the following night at camp, I couldn't help notice more German prisoners at the movie sprawled all over the first row with their "P. W.s" staring me in the face.

I cannot conceive why we as Americans allow such laxity. Why should we give pleasures and luxuries to these prisoners when they have made human derelicts of our boys who are prisoners of war in Germany?

TRUMAN'S OPPORTUNITY

Somerset, Ky., April 16—Notwithstanding President Truman's background with the Pendergast machine, I find myself having a degree of confidence in him. He is not a big man, but I believe he is honest. He made a fine record as chairman of the so-called Truman senate committee. He then demonstrated that he knew the difference between a dime and a dollar.

Eight years ago, when President Roosevelt nominated Hugo Black, a former police court judge and member of the infamous Ku Klux Klan, to the Supreme court, the American people were astounded. The American bar was shocked. As a lawyer myself, and one of my state's Circuit judges, I became almost ashamed of the American judiciary. No man ever assumed high office under a darker cloud than did Hugo Black. But I must, in fairness to him, say that he has worked hard. He has been a close student of the law. He has been honest. He has striven hard to outlive his former mistakes, and it gives me pleasure to say that he has succeeded—that he has bravely met the challenge that came to him as a justice of the Supreme court.

Let us earnestly hope that President Truman may do likewise. For one I am indulging the belief that he will.

TIME SETTLES CONTROVERSIES

Lansing, Mich., April 18—There were two controversial ideas in connection with the last Presidential campaign. One was whether President Roosevelt was in physical condition to stand a fourth term. Events after less than three months of the fourth term have proved that he was not. Many of those now loudest in their grief and mourning six months ago were loudest in their argument that Mr. Roosevelt was in perfect health.

The other argument was whether President Roosevelt was an indispensable man, whether the country could function adequately without his guidance and leadership. Events will shortly decide that argument.

MORE FATHERS SEIZE ON PLAN FOR G. I. BONDS

Scores Call to Indorse Tribune Suggestion

Fathers thruout Chicago, following the lead of those who responded enthusiastically Saturday to an editorial captioned "From Dad to G. I. Joe" in THE TRIBUNE of that day, yesterday continued to back their vocal support of the suggestion with bond pledges.

The editorial suggested that fathers, who might wish to show their pride in sons serving their country, purchase war bonds in the fighting men's names. The gesture, the editorial declared, would spark of patriotism and foresight, as well, since the purchase would not only help the nation now, but the son later.

Dykes Buys Bonds for Sons

Lawrence F. Stern, chairman of the Chicago and Cook county war finance committee, quickly lent his support to the idea and reported that his organization headquarters had received scores of telephone calls from fathers who wholeheartedly indorsed the editorial.

Jimmy Dykes, manager of the Chicago White Sox, hurried to buy bonds for his two sons, Jimmy Jr., seaman 1st class, and Charles, seaman cook, 1st class, when he read THE TRIBUNE.

Two army air force sergeants serving in the South Pacific had recorded bonds in their names when Louis J. Blesch, 3920 N. Christiana av., bought a bond for his son, Harvey C., and John S. Day, 1321 Fargo av., did the same for his son, Richard E.

Others Seize on Idea

Norman J. Peck of 5535 N. Artesian av., ordered a bond for his son, James D., coxswain 2d class, who is on an LSM somewhere in the Pacific. Rev. John B. Hubbard, pastor of the St. Mary Episcopal church, Park Ridge, telephoned to say he would buy a bond today for his son, Marine Sgt. James A., believed to be on Okinawa.

Jack Frank, seaman 1st class, son of Joseph M., 813 W. 79th st., will learn about a bond his father bought for him in the next letter addressed to him at his base in California, and Navy Air Cadet Harry A. Fischer Jr. will be similarly informed at Arkansas A. and M. college by his father, Harry A., 9930 S. Seeley av.

Retail Quota Increased

Joseph L. Block of the Ambassador hotel, vice president of the Inland Steel company, purchased a bond for his son, Joseph Jr., seaman 1st class radar, stationed at Navy pier, as did Edgar Greenebaum, 2440 N. Lakeview av., for his son, Sgt. Robert J., with the navy air corps in the Pacific.

Meanwhile, an "E" bond quota of $500 for each employe in the city's retail stores was set yesterday by S. L. Hypes, president of the Chicago Retail Merchants' association for the 7th War Loan drive which opens officially May 14. Hypes said the stores' quotas would be $500 multiplied by the number of its employes.

Previously, the top quota was $300 per employe, but the new figure is in line with the over-all Chicago and Cook county individual quota which has been increased 60 per cent for the drive, he explained.

FIRE, EXPLOSION CUT POWER IN WAUKEGAN, ZION

Fire caused by an explosion in a 12,000 volt automatic switch control in the generating plant of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois left Waukegan and Zion without electricity for 45 minutes yesterday morning.

The explosion and flash, which melted the switch contacts, did a number of strange tricks. Radio receivers suddenly went dead and the organ at the Immaculate Conception Catholic church stopped playing while the choir was in the midst of a strain in the high mass. The choir continued a capella. One woman called the police station and complained her electric range would not cook some hot dogs she had received from a relative as a present.

Towns and villages west of Lake Zurich, north of Lake Bluff and south of Libertyville, were without power from 5 to 10 minutes until the emergency generators took up the load. Company officials estimated it would take two weeks to recondition the equipment.

JOURNEY UNDERGROUND

(The story of a Chicago hero's escape from German occupied France)

(Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune)

By Flight Officer David G. Prosser

INSTALMENT I.

I soon fell asleep on the train and did not awaken until we reached our destination. I walked thru a large station, dreaming of the comfortable hotel room I would be occupying that night. The word started going around that we were not in Barcelona, but a town called Gerona, a short distance away.

We asked our guards why we had not gone to Barcelona, but they had no answer to give us and merely said that we had to stop in this town first. We walked for at least two miles thru strange, narrow streets, and finally went up a long flight of stairs by the cathedral and stopped in front of some military barracks.

After an hour's wait we were taken into the building and interrogated. I was one of the first to go before the intelligence officer. He was a small, pleasant looking Spaniard and at his side stood an interpreter. In a friendly manner they asked some vague questions about the escape. Had they made these inquiries in harsh, threatening voices, one would have immediately been put on guard and refused to say a word, but their apparent friendliness made one feel obliged to answer something. I replied vaguely, sometimes not telling the truth.

Soon his questions demanded exact answers. He asked from what town I had left France. There was no room for vagueness in answering this, so I replied, "I am afraid that I cannot tell you that."

He immediately ended the interview, and appeared to be rather offended. I was astonished that he was not more pressing, but glad to leave the office.

After waiting a long time until every one had been interrogated, we were again lined up outside and marched off. The guards told us that we were going to prison.

Two miles out of town, down a dingy street, stood the prison. We entered thru a heavy wooden door into a reception hall at the end of which was a large picture of Franco painted on the wall. Under it were the words. "The charity of a convent. The discipline of the army. The strictness of a bank."

We had not been expected, so it took about half an hour to gather enough clerks to copy our credentials. They were slow and had a difficult time with the English and French names, and they went to great extremes to get a sufficient number of finger prints. In all they took 60 prints of my hands and fingers.

When the clerks finished with us we were led into the prison proper.

We had to go around a little court to the fumigation room. There we were ordered to take off all our clothes and put on the most dreadful, dreary, prison garment imaginable. It was a dirty brown with barely distinguishable gray vertical stripes. Altho it seemed to have been washed since last being used, it was damp and unpleasant to wear next to the skin.

Then we were led into a room across the way where every one had his hair clipped off.

The barber finished with us, so we were led by an unpleasant man thru the courtyard to a little office, where all our personal belongings were inspected, and any money, razors, knives, or other instruments with which we might commit suicide were taken from us. I hid the American and English money, and kept my knife and a little piece of a hacksaw that I had acquired.

After being searched we were conducted back to the fumigation room and given four dirty, greasy, thin blankets. The warden took us up three flights of stairs thru long corridors to our cell, which faced the courtyard. We entered a long, bleak, hall-like room. Its only decoration was the names that had been penciled on the white stucco walls. The floor was of red tile and the small barred windows were only a foot off the floor. They had no glass to keep out the cold drafts. There were no beds, so we all started spreading out our blankets.

To try to keep warm Mac and I made our beds together. As we opened the blankets out we found that many had been torn down the middle.

The story of our life in prison is too long for this series, and I must limit myself to a short description of it. We were not maltreated, but accorded the same privileges, restrictions, and food as the ordinary Spanish prisoner. At certain times of the day we were allowed into the prison courtyard where, at an expensive canteen, we could supplement our breakfast cup of coffee, and luncheon and dinner of two cups of soup and 100 grams of bread, by purchasing fruit, cake, coffee, and many other foods. The British consul visited us the day after we arrived and left us enough money to buy all we needed to keep from going hungry.

In the prison there were a large number of refugees, but the majority were either ordinary Spanish law breakers or political suspects. The political prisoners were for the most part the pleasantest and most interesting. Almost all of them had been sentenced to 30 years imprisonment for having helped or fought with the Republican army against Franco.

On our seventh night in prison, release came for some of us. Shortly after the lights had been turned off the heavy door to our chamber opened and a prosaic little man stepped inside to read the names of four fortunate ones who were to leave. In spite of his lack of ceremony it was a dramatic moment, and we all sat in profound silence as Herk, myself, and the two other Americans were called forward. The warden said a representative from the American consulate was waiting for us in the reception room. In great haste we departed, leaving all our money, food, and other belongings to our comrades who were not to be released for another month because of complications.

We were taken to the best hotel in the town. The people sitting in the gaudy, cheap, modernistically designed lounge showed no signs of surprise or disquiet as we four dirty, unshaven, tough looking jail birds walked upto the desk. Evidently they had become accustomed to seeing refugees come from the prison to this relatively luxurious hotel.

The American representatives helped us to sign the register, gave us some money and American cigarets, and told us to be in the dining room at 9:30. That gave me just enough time for a bath and a drink or two at the hotel bar. I rushed up to the room and, going thru it on the way to our private bath, I saw that Herk and I were again to share a double bed. I was too intent on starting my bath, the first in two months, to give this minor discomfort much thought.

When I had finished my bath I hurried down to the bar. Under the gaze of so many strangers I felt very self-conscious because of my prison hair cut.

But as I saw the gaily dressed girls with their dapper looking army officers, some of whom wore the German iron cross, won in Russia, heard pleasant cheering music, and had a few glasses of Spanish cognac, the discomfort caused by my appearance vanished. It was then for the first time that I really felt I had been liberated. We were in the hands of the American consulate, and it seemed that nothing could interfere that would expose us to the danger of a German prison camp or even a Spanish jail.

I had been looking out of the window on the brightly lighted street for some time before I eventually succumbed to the temptation to go out for a short walk. just for the experience of walking alone once again without the fear of being arrested by the police or stopped by the military. At first I was a little hesitant, but eventually sallied forth down the main street.

My delight became more intense as I saw the fully lighted shop windows, filled with interesting looking articles. When I saw the first policeman I automatically stopped and searched for some way around him before I realized that I could pass him without fear.

As I turned to go back to the hotel I stopped at a cafe for another cognac. The waiter was very friendly and after bringing my drink asked me how it had happened that I came from the prison. How strange it was to feel free to tell some unknown person that I was an American.

In all we spent almost five weeks in Spain; two at Gerona, two at a hotel in Aragon while waiting to leave the country, and another week in travel. We joined a much larger group of British and American airmen at the hotel in Aragon. Our stay in Spain was in many ways rather dull, for much of our time was spent in small provincial towns, and when we did visit the cities all our money seemed to vanish before we could even begin to enjoy ourselves and, of course, more than anything, our minds were all set on returning to England and the United States of America.

On Dec. 20 we took a plane back to England.

[The end.]

1ST FULL STORY OF LEND-LEASE AND ITS FOLLIES

Former Official Likens It to World WPA

of Kansas and the Dakotas were sent by the hundreds to a country where most of the farms are small compared with our standards, where the farming is done mostly by Arabs who plow their fields by hitching farm animals, camels, and sometimes their women to a one-handled plow, and where the sowing is done broadcast by hand, the same system that has been used for thousands of years.

"North Africa Our Baby"

I heard lend-lease officials frankly admit that our countrymen back home were "scraping the bottom of the barrel" in some categories of supplies and then urge us to prepare our programs with all possible speed so all requests from North Africa, then far from important to any battle front, would be filled regardless of the needs of the army elsewhere or of the people back home. They stifled all objections with the reply that "North Africa is our baby" and should come first.

I saw shipping orders sending the entire output of this country's horseshoe nails to North and West Africa for months while American farmers sought in vain for enough nails to shoe their horses.

I saw an Austrian refugee, a lawyer who had never set foot in America, placed in charge of the entire lend-lease textile program of North Africa. He was originally hired because he could speak and write English and French, and possessed no special knowledge or training in textiles, but he decided how much cloth of all kinds and descriptions the United States should furnish on lend-lease to North Africa.

Targets of Profiteers

I saw French government officials, using the materials furnished by the United States, profiteer unconscionably on their fellow countrymen and the Arabs, looking to their own personal advantage and ignoring the national needs. And the greatest profiteering was against the Americans sent to North Africa to drive the Nazi conquerors from French soil and rehabilitate the country.

These and other things I saw and heard made my American blood boil. My anger increased all the more at the ingratitude shown by the French for what we were doing for them. They displayed more than ingratitude. They made plain their contempt of our stupidity in giving away our resources. But their contempt did not extend to the point of refusing anything they could get from the United States. Their idea of lend-lease is neither a loan nor a lease. While they have partially paid for goods sent to North Africa, they look upon the rest as a gift and their greatest fear is that the United States will demand an accounting.

I was born in the small town of Milbank, S. D., the son of a South Dakota editor and printer and learned the printing trade at an early age. I had medical ambitions but the death of my father required that I take over his newspaper and printing business, which I followed—except for one interruption when I was purchasing agent for the state of South Dakota. In 1941 I went to Des Moines, Ia., to edit two state-wide magazines.

Called to Capital in 1943

Unable to enter the army or navy, I appealed to friends in Washington for help in obtaining any other work I could do to help my country. I was one of about 130 men selected out of several thousand applicants for lend-lease duties and was called to Washington May 1, 1943.

I am a Republican and live in a state that elected a Republican governor in 1936 and has been consistently Republican since, but I consider myself first an American. I entered my lend-lease work recognizing there was a difference in my political convictions and those of the administration, but I thought all Americans, regardless of party, had the welfare of the United States at heart.

My experience in Washington and North Africa convinces me that much of the blundering and mismanagement of the lend-lease program can be traced to the leaders of the program in Washington. So frequent and flagrant were the cases that I have wondered if such planning was not deliberate. I remembered the years when boondoggling was prevalent in the United States and leaf raking projects increased at the approach of elections and the more intimately I became acquainted with lend-lease the more it took on the aspects of a world-wide WPA campaign.

[In his next article, Mr. Horton will describe costly methods thru which lend-lease supplies were purchased.]

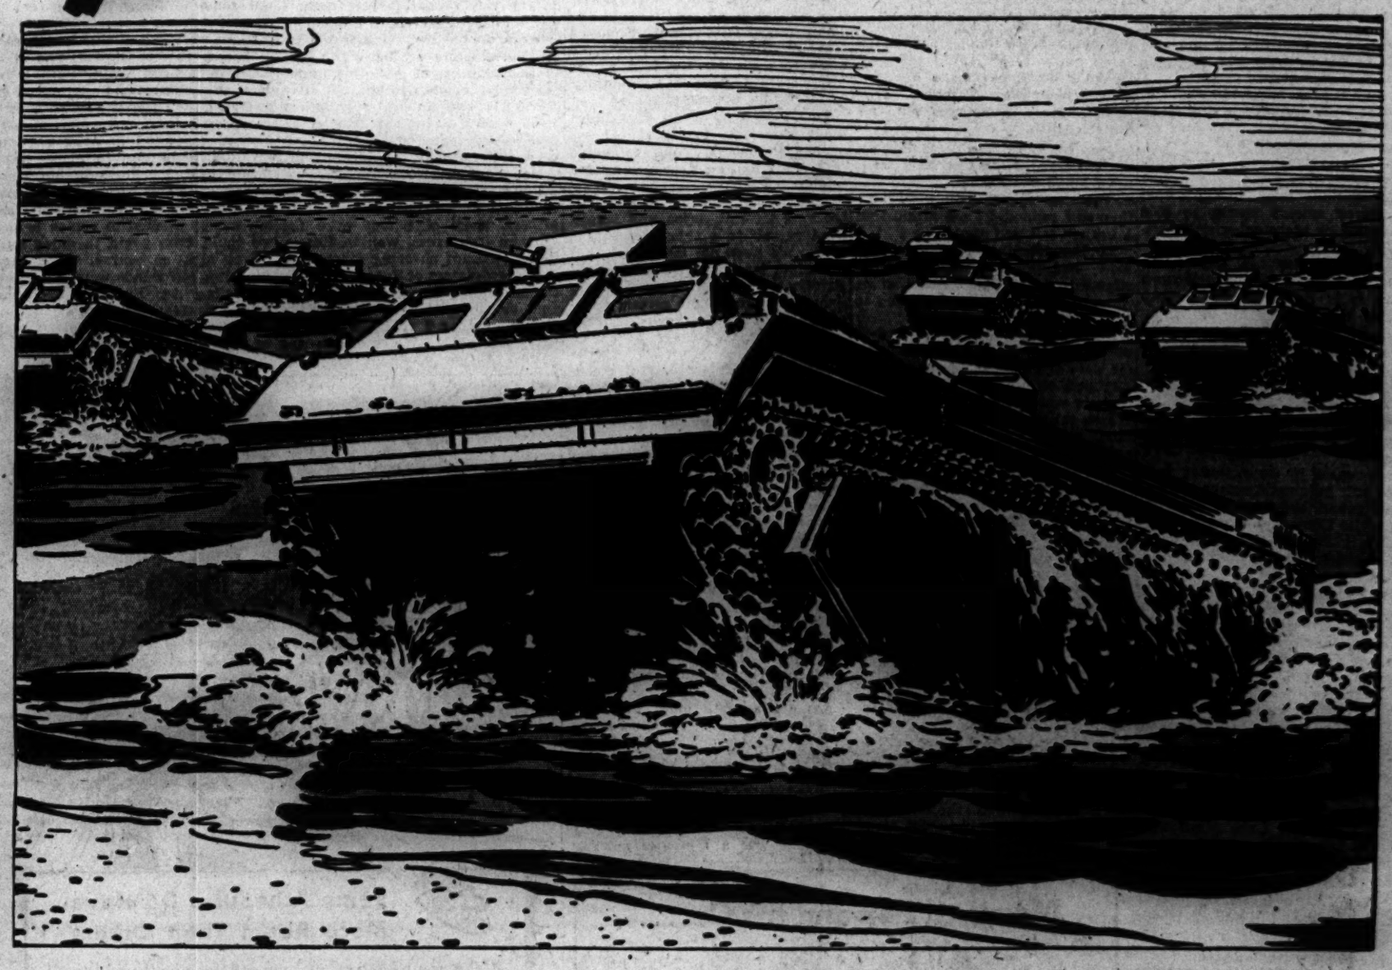
NOW COME THE "BEACHBUSTERS"

..."toughest, most unstoppable vehicles ever devised for amphibious warfare"



Marines' newest amphibians walk ashore with supplies, men and weapons—fight their way on land.

The Marines need just such a tough, versatile invasion tool—they have it! Wave upon wave of these big bruisers bear down on beachheads. Some carry howitzers, flame throwers, machine guns, troops. Others are complete wreckers and mobile machine shops. In fact almost everything that's needed to take a beachhead, hold it and move on.

At the initial attack on Tarawa amtrack amphibians were the only landing craft that got ashore. At Okinawa, the Navy has just revealed, the Marines made phenomenal use of them. No wonder leathernecks call them "the toughest, most unstoppable vehicles ever devised for amphibious warfare!"

Their easy maneuverability makes them an elusive target. Their flexibility takes them over reefs and obstacles. Increased carrying capacity brings in cargoes weighing 10,000 pounds. An unusual feature is the rear-drop ramp. The entire load can be snaked off in a matter of seconds!

The Beachbuster incorporates more automotive principles than any other vehicle ever built for water. This improved amphibian was designed, engineered and built by Borg-Warner's Ingersoll Division. It is the result of more than three years of B-W experiment and development in collaboration with the U. S. Marine Corps, the Bureau of Ships and leading automotive firms.

Miss Kay Lyon Is Engaged to Charles Nevitt

BY JUDITH CASS

INTERESTING romantic news is made by an engagement announcement and a wedding this week-end. From their winter home in Palm Beach, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. William H. Lyon send word of the engagement of their daughter, Kay, to Charles Nevitt, boatswain's mate first class of the coast guard reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Nevitt of Oshkosh, Wis. Mr. and Mrs. Lyon and their daughter are returning to Winnetka this week.

Miss Lyon attended the North Shore Country Day school and was graduated from Miss Master's school at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y. She was introduced to society at a tea at home in September, 1943. Mr. Nevitt was graduated from the Todd school and attended Principia college.

When Lt. [j. g.] Harry E. Simpson received leave from his navy duties in Washington, D. C., last week-end, he and his fiancee, Miss Elizabeth Catherine Hettler, completed last minute plans for their marriage. The wedding took place on Saturday in the chapel of the Fourth Presbyterian church, followed by a reception given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sangston Hettler, in the Woman's Athletic club.

Miss Faith Lehman was maid of honor and bridesmaids were the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Burnice M. Ball of Memphis, Tenn., and Miss Hattie Ogden. Norman Simpson was his brother's best man. Here for the ceremony were Lt. Simpson's sister, Mrs. Melvern R. Rutherford of Memphis, and Lt. Sangston Hettler Jr. The bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Simpson, also of Memphis, were unable to come for the wedding.

Lt. Simpson and his bride returned immediately to Washington, D. C., where they will be at home.

Engagement Announced

At a small luncheon and bridge party on Saturday in the Exmoor Country club, Mr. and Mrs. George Donnersberger of Highland Park announced the engagement of their daughter, Florence, to Corp. William Bowman Bangs III. of the army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bangs Jr., also of Highland Park. Miss Donnersberger is the youngest of six sisters and was graduated from the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Lake Forest. She also attended the Duchesne Residence school in New York and for the last three years has been studying singing and languages with Anna Fitzu in Chicago. She is known professionally as Flora Campbell.

Corp. Bangs attended Lake Forest college and is stationed at Camp Custer, Battle Creek, Mich. His brother, Corp. Fred Crawford Bangs, is with the army in Germany. Miss Donnersberger's grandfather, the late Joseph Donnersberger of Wilmette, was president of the South Park board for 25 years. Corp. Bangs' grandfather, the late Mr. Bangs, was associated with the management of the Chicago club for more than 50 years.

Service Notes

One of the first persons Lt. Comdr. Joseph E. Rich was eager to see when he returned on leave from the Pacific recently was his month old daughter, who was born while he was at sea. When Mrs. Rich accompanies her husband to Quonset, R. I., at the end of his leave, the baby and her brother and sister, Reuben and Nancy, will remain in Lake Bluff with their grandparents, the Ralph H. Pooles, with whom they have been living while Comdr. Rich was overseas.

Also on leave in Lake Bluff is Lt. Richard Poole, who is stationed with the navy in Washington, D. C. A third member of the Poole family, Ralph H. Poole Jr. is in Italy with the American field service.

Ensign Thomas J. McNulty II. was in the class of midshipmen who received their commissions from the naval reserve midshipmen's school at Northwestern university recently. Ensign McNulty, son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. McNulty of E. Elm st. has reported for training at the anti-submarine base in Staten Island, N. Y.

It is now Maj. Elliott Dotchon of the marine corps, who was promoted to this rank during his participation in the battle on Iwo Island.

Ensign John A. McGuire recently arrived in Trinidad, where he will be stationed as a navy communications officer. While he is overseas Mrs. McGuire and their two young children are at home in their Walton pl. apartment.

Other Service Notes

When Mrs. Clarke Jelke leaves Miami Beach, Fla., this week to go on to New York, she will stop in Memphis, Tenn., for a visit with her son, Charles, who is in training at the navy air base there. Her eldest son, John F. Jelke III., has been promoted from flight officer to 2d lieutenant in the army air forces. Lt. Jelke has completed more than 30 missions as a fighter pilot in Italy. Another son, Minot, is a student in the Taft school in Connecticut.

While in New York, Mrs. Jelke also hopes to have a visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Michael James Brody, before they leave for Mexico city, where they will spend the summer.

The Kingman Douglas family is represented on two fighting fronts, for their son, Pvt. Kingman Douglas Jr., is with the 7th army in Germany and his brother, Pvt. James Douglas, is stationed in Hawaii with an army anti-aircraft unit. Pvt. Kingman was wounded in January, but is back at his post with the armored infantry.

The Leslie L. Cookes' son, Corp. Leslie Cooke Jr., came thru the fighting on Iwo Island with slight wounds, his parents have learned.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Air Line Round Table

Janis Hageline wasn't satisfied with being a topnotch reservations representative for an air line. Her absorption in her job led to curiosity regarding the whole industry—not merely the present problems of TWA as they affected her individually—but the air line's hopes and plans for the future.

During conversations at lunch with girls in her department she discovered there were others like herself. Why not organize a round table to bring all these people together?

She spoke to Helen Sturdy, reservations manager of TWA here. Together they planned a first meeting to consider the subject of "Free Air," with material prepared in advance and a bibliography for reference reading. When the executive members of the Chicago office heard about it they were impressed with the interest shown by the girls and volunteered to be "Quiz Kids" for any questions they might ask.

Reservations girls, traffic secretaries, personnel department secretaries, a switchboard operator, a cargo agent, and various supervisors, both men and women, fell in line with the idea which is off to a flying start. All of which goes to show what a girl, plus a job, plus enthusiasm, can accomplish!

Ups and Downs

Do you think the elevators always go up when you want to go down? That the car is invariably full when it stops at your floor? That the elevator operator dotes on passing you by?

Consider the ups and downs of two elevator operators who write their complaints [in Bell Telephone News] as follows:

"Improper calling of floors—calling floors while eating or while conversing; calling them too soon or too late; repeating calls unnecessarily.

"Violations of safety precautions—entering or leaving cars after the operator has started to close the doors; trying to enter a full car; failure to watch where you are going.

"Delays—finishing a conversation with one foot in and one out of the car; asking the operator to 'Wait a sec. Mabel's just putting on her galoshes'; pushing the 'up' button for 'down.'

"Nerve jangling—prolonged pushing of the buzzer; shouting at cars to stop; cluttering up cars with debris."

There's Eyelet Embroidery for Every Purpose

BY REA SEEGER

There must be unlimited supplies of eyelet embroidered cotton, for bolts of the stuff have been used, and more is in the process of making for summer dresses, suits, and for contrast detail for dark or light sheers or heavy crepes. This season vivid colored eyelet steals the spotlight in all fashion showings. There are simple day time dresses in cerise, shocking pink, lime, violet, old blue, pink, and yellow, that have as the only trim dainty frills of matching eyelet around wide open sleeves and the neck line and a narrow belt of the same eyelet.

It's undoubtedly the coolest cotton material ever made into summer fashions. The eyelet work is available in small, medium, or large all-over designs of flowers, geometrics, circles, floral sprays, and similar effective patterns. Both plain cotton and the ribbed pique are available with all-over eyelet patterns. Both are ideal for simple day time dresses and town sujts. Dark brown, black, navy, and some deep shades of red assure a grand color range for the shoppers. Both dresses and suit jackets have very brief sleeves.

Some very distinctive new dinner gowns are made of snow white eyelet embroidered cotton, festive with glittering belts of kidskin jeweled with rhinestones or gay with an alternate sash belt of vivid grosgrain ribbon. Statuesque black dinner dresses have flared peplums of white eyelet; short, black dresses are teamed with fitted jackets of white or pastel tinted eyelet, and sometimes the skirt is of eyelet with a silk jacket. Bands of eyelet embroidery provide the dramatic contrast in sheer blouses, as well as dresses. Later the smartest millinery will be fashioned of yards of snowy white eyelet in ruffles and ruchings.

ON THE AISLE

By Claudia Cassidy

A Question of Ghosts, or Who Haunts Whom?, as Raised by Iturbi's Recital

Altho José Iturbi is Hollywood's chosen ghost for the Chopin music in "A Song to Remember," it seemed to me at the opera house yesterday that the ghosts of several composers, Chopin among them, might consider forming a union to haunt Mr. Iturbi. For while the photogenic Spaniard had a full house and a semicircle of admirers on the stage that still flies the amorous doves of "One Touch of Venus," he played a second rate concert. Fortunately the camera that recorded the scene for posterity was not wired for sound.

That Mr. Iturbi has talent no one will deny, and time was when he chose to be a more scrupulous musician. He has fluency and a dulcet tone when he doesn't force it, but his taste has gone cheaply flamboyant and he lacks the spectacular technique to back it up. When a score gets the best of him, he pounds. There were times when I thought he was going to kick the piano, or vice versa. Ignoble examples of this sorry state were his way with Beethoven's Appassionata, a polar extreme from Casadesus' glowing performance earlier in the season; the rags and tatters he made of Chopin's Scherzo in B-flat minor, and the robot flailing he resorted to in De Falla's "Ritual Fire Dance."

There were, of course, happier moments. The Scarlatti sonatinas chose to be seductive rather than elegant, but they were charming. Mozart's Sonata in F lacked character, but it had a facade of velvety curves. The Chopin, aside from the Scherzo, was creamily fluent, and, like Debussy's "Clair de Lune" interested only in the popularity of the music. The two excursions into Morton Gould were expertly played and amusing in their type—the Blues featuring the quavering piano treble you might have heard in the Malemute saloon, and the Etude boogie woogie in a white tie.

Unheard Applause

No matter what the ovation, the musician who plays a memorable performance rarely hears all his applause. A sailor now back at his base writes to say he is glad Zino Francescatti's performance with the Chicago Symphony was not canceled the night of President Roosevelt's death. He explains that his brother, a violinist, was crippled in an accident some months ago, and since that time had not touched his violin or done much of anything but mope around the house. The sailor persuaded him to go to the concert. Next day, the sailor writes, his brother played his violin for the first time since his accident, and accepted a previously rejected post with an orchestra, saying the loss of a leg didn't hurt his ability as a violinist. So the sailor went back when his leave was up, "knowing that my kid brother is happy again. Right now he is tuning his violin." Francescatti really did a superb job that night, winning more than one person in the audience over difficult odds. Only a few weeks before, you remember, he did cancel a concert. His brother had been killed in France.

Notes

No official announcement has come from Ravinia about the summer's concerts, but the finger of rumor points to conductors including Pierre Monteux, Arthur Rodzinski, Massimo Freccia, possibly George Szell, and the Chicago Symphony's regular conductor, Désiré Defauw. . . . Variety, referring to a play about Lucrezia Borgia, calls the lady a "medieval mickey mixer" and headlines the tale "Arsenic and Old Lass."

Members Hear Symphony as Season Closes

BY NANNETTE McCARTHY

As the final note of Saturday afternoon's invitation program by the Chicago Symphony orchestra echoed thru Orchestra hall, more than 1,800 sustaining members of the symphony applauded the closing event of the orchestra's 54th season—its second year under the baton of Desire Defauw. Sustaining members of long standing, as well as those who have contributed to the present membership drive, heard Edward L. Ryerson, president of the association, announce that $47,000 has already been subscribed for the coming season.

Hurrying to their seats, which were unreserved on this informal occasion, were Mr. and Mrs. James H. Tatman. Mrs. Tatman was wearing a fitted gray wool coat and a gay hat of shaded red and pink flowers. Mrs. John Orndorff, whose husband is with the army medical corps in Germany, arrived at the concert with her daughter, Cynthia. Miss Orndorff's black ensemble was exactly like that of her mother's, even to the clusters of black satin ribbons they wore on their heads.

Sitting in the box circle and later enjoying tea in the grand foyer were Mrs. Clyde M. Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Welling, the Percy B. Eckharts, and Mrs. Cyrus Adams. Mrs. Welling looked charming in a black crepe dress and black straw cartwheel hat on which was pinned a bouquet of large white daisies. Mr. Defauw, Hans Lange, and members of the orchestra were special guests at the reception.

Mrs. Ed. H., Superior, Wis.—We built an indoor sand box for our little girl this spring, and instead of sand are using corn meal in it. It doesn't take much corn meal and is much easier to clean up, especially if tracked on rugs. Our child has fun for hours in this little "corn meal box."

Marion B., Escanaba, Mich.—I have learned that outside bricks need only a garden hose to clean them, for moisture from below or above must have a chance to evaporate thru the brick's "open pores." I keep my indoor bricks well waxed as I do my floors and use plenty of wax, as brick seems to absorb a lot of it.

Czech Singing Group Gives Fine Recital

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

The Lyra Singing society, one of the best and most tenacious of local male choruses, gave a concert at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon under the direction of Frank Kubina.

The Lyra has survived the perils of war with no visible decrease in membership or diminution of enthusiasm. The Czech love of singing, as well as the native aptitude for choral expression, shines thru everything that the group undertakes. The voices are perhaps no longer as fresh and buoyant as they once were, but Mr. Kubina is an artful taskmaster who permits no dilatoriness or lagging from the line of musical exactitude.

In memory of Franklin D. Roosevelt the chorus sang feelingly J. B. Foerster's "From the Hand of Fate," and did not miss an accent of the martial crescendo and diminuendo of Karel Bendl's "March of the Taborites," even when a comrade in the front ranks of the chorus was seized with sudden illness and was prevented from toppling to the stage only by the quick support of his neighbors. One of the most famous Czech songs, Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me," was beautifully sung. "The Choomack" permitted a zestful excursion into Ukrainian folklore.

The soloist was Maria Kurenko, a soprano specializing in the interpretation of songs by Russian composers. The linguistic conventions prevailing in today's concert halls are so unthinkingly accepted by every kind of audience that yesterday's gathering, which understood Czech and English perfectly, was quite content with hearing songs whose effect for the most part depended upon an intimate understanding of the text, sung in their native Russian, which probably was only mumbo jumbo to not more than a handful of auditors.

No doubt we were alone in finding the procedure irksome and a bit silly, for the songs by Glinka, Tschaikowsky, Arensky, and Gretchaninoff were fine ones, and had the texts been comprehensible we might not have been so aware that Miss Kurenko's singing, while polished, has no great scope of color, and that her voice is actually a slender one. For encores, also in Russian, she offered two songs by contemporary soviet composers—one on the subject of kissing, by Khrenikoff, and a paean to youth, by Prokofieff, the latter, in simple folk song style, again proving its composer the most chameleon of contemporary writers.

At Kimball hall a group of Negro singers, calling themselves Garfield Henry's Silvertone octet, mingled Friml with Handel, and achieved a fair radio style when their apparently untrained voices were not taxed too heavily, and when they managed to stay on pitch.

'Midsummer Nightmare'

By Christopher Hale

INSTALMENT I.

SLEEP WALKER

There was the sort of stillness in the air that often comes with a magnificent full moon. The sweeping bend of the Grand river in the valley was a shimmering play of golden light.

The two widely spaced great houses on the hilltop stood out so plainly they could be seen a mile away.

All the other buildings scattered over the very expansive grounds were dark blots except one. A huge barn-like structure refused to close its single square orange eye, altho it was three in the morning.

South of the two large houses a very small white cottage stood in its own lawns and garden. Soft moonlight poured in thru all the western casements. The staircase was one long, white shaft.

Down this shaft seemed to float a silent, slender woman in a pale flowing gown. Her slippered feet made no sound on the carpeted stairs.

At the foot of the stairs in the full flood of moonlight the woman stopped. She pushed back her short, tousled curls.

Above, a girl on the landing crouched down to wait.

After quite a pause the woman below began to move. In front, her right hand wavered back and forth as sort of feeler, altho it was light enough to see easily.

It was that hand that explained everything to the girl who followed silently down the stairs. They went thru the living room, darker because it was on the east side of the house.

Suddenly there was a crash. A little stand of plants had been caught by the floating end of her robe.

Almost at once a shrill shriek came from the rear of the kitchen. The woman spun about with eyes now wide open.

"Winnie! it's you, isn't it? What am I doing here?"

"I was afraid to wake you. I just came along."

"Was I walking in my . . ."

"Sh-h," Winnie hissed in her ear. Then raising a husky young voice, Winnie yelled, "Tillie!"

"Help, murder, police!"

Winnie flung open the kitchen door. From the maid's room, off a little passage, the screams continued.

Winnie dashed to the door. It was locked.

"Tillie! It's Miss Leslie. Stop that."

"We got burglars, already."

"We have not. Hush up. Everything's all right."

The door opened, reluctantly. A large, strong woman with a bony face over which the skin had been stretched too economically, came out.

"I heard him," she repeated.

"You did not. Miss Warburton and I came downstairs for something." Winnie automatically revised the facts. She had learned the less Tillie knew, the less trouble there would be. "We accidentally knocked over the plant stand. That's what you heard."

"The plant stand!" Tillie shoved her rudely aside and plunged into the dining room. Miss Warburton was sitting on one of the chairs.

Tillie drew in her breath with a hiss.

"Mr. Jennesma is goin' to be good and mad when he hears about this. That plant stand belonged to his mother.

"O, nuts. It's just wire. It's not hurt. We'll replace the plants and pots. Come now, let's all get back to bed."

Back upstairs, Winnie paused in Miss Warburton's lamplit bedroom. "Everything under control now?"

"Yes, but my dear, I don't like it. Have I done this before since you've been here?"

The mirror reflected a proud, distressed face with the sort of good looks which are handsome rather than pretty. She had been a college friend of Winnie's mother but congeniality of spirit had taken a tuck in the years between her and Winnie.

"No, and I know why you did this now," Winnie was answering. "At dinner last night you told that story of walking in your sleep at college. It got into your subconscious and made you repeat the thing tonight."

"Maybe you're right."

Winnie took herself off to bed. Miss Warburton locked herself in and, after some thought, put the key in the washbowl in her bathroom and turned on the water. Fishing for it ought to wake her, if necessary.

This was an enchanting little cottage that Mr. Jannesma had assigned to her and Winnie. If only he hadn't included the hostile Tillie with it. But Tillie had been born in the tenant farmer's house on the place, when old Klaas Jennesma had farmed these acres long ago. Anything connected with his father was sacred to Sybrand Jannesma.

As she slid into bed, Miss Warburton saw the light still shining from the remodeled barn where Sybrand's brother Gerrit worked on his inventions at all hours.

Winnie came down to breakfast in a crisp yellow dress, ready for action.

Tillie banged down the raspberries, the muffins and even the jug of rich cream from the Jennesma farm.

"She can hardly wait to run to Mr. Jennesma and tattle about the broken pots," Winnie giggled.

Miss Warburton only smiled. The delicious flash of white teeth and red lips struck prejudiced Winnie as ravishing. How could darling Olivia have escaped some man's clutches all these years!

"I wonder," Winnie mused demurely, "if we can catch up in our work today. Why doesn't Mr. Jennesma take Sen. North off for a day's golf . . . or something? Boy! He certainly has fallen for you like a blizzard," Winnie went on, rapturously. "And why not? Mother said you were simply fatal when you were in college."

"What she probably said was that I wasted my time," Miss Warburton said dryly. "Is there any cream in the jug?"

Winnie passed it. "Anyway, darling, you'd better watch your step if you don't want him. Tho I've often thought it might be fun to live in Washington."

"Did you finish that report you were typing yesterday?"

The talk became technical. Winnie knew she had been reproved.

As soon as breakfast was over, Winnie and Miss Warburton left the cottage. A path took them to the wooded edge of a ravine.

Passing thru a growth of cedars, they emerged on the broad lawn that curved up to the big house.

Popular Poem Brings Lovely Verse Reply

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

Probably no poem which I ever quoted in this column has touched the hearts of more women and brought more comments and requests for its repetition than the brief, beautiful one entitled: "To My Child," by Anne Campbell.

Because mail is still coming in about it, tho it was first printed here some five or six years ago, I feel that two explanations might clear up some questions concerning it.

First, as far as I have been able to discover, there is no more to the poem than the four lines, which I have frequently quoted, of a mother talking to her child, who cost her some of the beauties and luxuries of life and travel in foreign lands—but who says between the lines that it was not a sacrifice to forgo them.

The second explanation is that, also as far as I know, the answering poem which appeared in this column has not been elsewhere published but was written, from a full heart, by a woman who read here for the first time "To My Child" and sent to me her reply in verse:

For me there was instead
The blue Italian lake and sky,
And even pearls and all the jewels
That loneliness can buy,
In spite of Capri, Naples, Rome,
Remembrances divine,
My heart can understand how yours
Is more fulfilled than mine.

I am not now at liberty to use the writer's name.

For many people "To My Child" expresses all they feel; for others it may perhaps bring home to them, in the practical whirl of busy days, the preciousness of their children.

Here Again—Gone Again Tony — How Mrs. V Helped Cut School Absences

1 — Sniffle, cough, sore throat—always something! "Bound to happen at school," thought Mrs. V—till her doctor told her how much sickness is passed around right at home

2 — "You disinfect things in a sickroom with Lysol. Why not fight germs that way in daily cleaning?" he said. So Mrs. V does. And Tony doesn't seem to pick up so many "bugs".

3 — "What d'ya know?" said Mrs. V, first time she added Lysol to the cleaning water. "Dirt and stains are much easier to get off because Lysol itself is 'soapy'! It disinfects and cleans!"

4 — MAKE THIS TEST: Add 2½ tablespoons of Lysol to each gallon of water. See how much less "elbow grease" cleaning takes! Try it on: Sinks • Tubs • Toilets • Tile Linoleum • Garbage Pail

DISINFECT • CLEAN DEODORIZES WITH Lysol Disinfectant

April Fashions

One is a wrap-around apron giving full dress coverage, and the other is a frivolous trifle with deck of cards motif, but both will stand you in good stead while you're doing household chores. The second pattern makes a good gift or a party prize. Style No. 3697 is designed for sizes 12 to 48. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 35 inch material with 3 yards of ruffling. Style No. 3820 is cut in one size requiring 1½ yards of 35 inch material with 3 yards of rickrack braid. Pot holder, included in pattern, requires ¼ yard of 35 inch fabric with ½ yard of rickrack. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 551, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The spring fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents; 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Spring time is salad time, and no salad is better than its dressing. The salad bowl filled with greens and crisp vegetables, or with fresh fruits, requires French dressing or one of its variations.

The simplest French dressing is a blend of oil, vinegar, salt, and pepper. Herbs, paprika, garlic or onion salt, chili powder, mustard, or other spices may be added. For fruit salads a faint sweetening with sugar or honey doesn't come amiss.

These are some favorite French type dressings for homemakers who enjoy making their own.

Lemon Celery Seed Dressing
[One cup]

½ cup lemon juice
½ cup salad oil
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon celery seed
2 tablespoons sugar or honey

Shake ingredients well together. Use on cooked vegetable salads, greens, or fruit salads. The amount of sweetening may be cut down for vegetable salads if desired, or increased for fruit salads made with tart fruits.

Blue Cheese Dressing

¾ pound crumbled blue cheese
½ cup olive oil
3 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon black or white pepper

Shake ingredients together, add cheese, and serve well chilled with fruit or vegetable salads. Good with sliced tomato salad, orange or grapefruit, or cooked asparagus tips.

Fruit Salad Dressing
[No oil]

½ cup orange juice
3 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
Dash of nutmeg

Shake well just before serving.

Tomato French Dressing
[About one quart]

1 can condensed tomato soup
1½ cups salad oil
¼ cup sugar
Juice of one lemon
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons mustard
Paprika
Garlic salt, if liked

Place ingredients in mixing bowl and beat until blended. Store in refrigerator in closed container.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 22—This is no question about the popularity of Van Johnson. At a pre-view of "Week-End at the Waldorf" there was applause when Ginger Rogers' name flashed on the screen, and more applause for Walter Pidgeon and Lana Turner; but when Van's name went up there, the kids screamed. He was starred some time ago in a little picture called "Between Two Women" which Carey Wilson made for $270,000. It has already grossed $2,500,000. . . . The talk at Metro is that Judy Garland had better look to her laurels on "Harvey Girls." Angela Lansbury is running away with everything. Edwin Knopf is preparing "Diamond Rock" to star Angela, and there's also a movement on foot to put her in the remake of "Anna Christie" with Van Johnson as the man. Angela comes by that full blown, aggressive don't-give-a-damn look from her father, George Lansbury. He was a labor leader and member of parliament, and so outspoken in the last war even David Lloyd George couldn't shut him up. Lansbury was a conscientious objector. They threatened to jail him, but they never did.

No Change in Plans or Film

Lester Cowan leaves for Washington this week. He's going on with his plans to release the Ernie Pyle picture, just as he told Ernie he would, by the end of July. Boys on the fighting fronts will see it first. . . . Ann Sheridan will soon be back at Warners in a part she likes. . . . George Kaufman and Moss Hart are expected here shortly. . . . Jack Wilson, who has been visiting here, goes to London June 1 to produce Noel Coward's new musical, and also to look over three shows which he's interested in but never has seen. . . . I'm doubting very much if Clifton Webb will do "One Touch of Venus." I don't see how they could make the part important enough for him.

New York Bits and Chips

Ruth Chatterton will produce and star in Patsy Ruth Miller's play "Windy Hill." . . . James Whale is in New York directing "If I Die Before I Wake." . . . The Shuberts, not Gilbert Miller, will produce Edmund Goulding's play. They're still after Mary Astor. . . . Hal Wallis is testing a beautiful model named Arline Cruz, who looks like Luise Rainer. . . . Laurette Taylor is getting more movie offers than any glamor girl was ever offered. . . . Pola Negri is working on her autobiography. . . . Arleen Whelan didn't do the Chodorov play. She's waiting for a more exciting part. . . . Mrs. Mervyn Leroy has given up all her interest in television. However, she has other interests in New York which keep her there.

At Last, a Modest Actor

Howard Da Silva, while playing in "Blue Dahlia," wrote a screenplay called "Out of the Pit." It has a psychiatric mystery theme, and John Houseman is interested in buying it. But stranger than all of this is that Actor Da Silva didn't write a part in it for himself. . . . Leatrice Joy Hook, since her recent marriage, spends her time on her husband's boat. He's the seafaring type. . . . Joan Blondell is Gardner public school's Girl Scout, because she goes on hikes and everything with her son's class. . . . Ish Kabibble is known only as "The Sad Sack" since he arrived at Camp Lee, Va. . . . Constance Moore designed some wall paper for her own house, then sold the design to a big mail order house and put the money into a school fund for her young daughter, Gina. . . . A Chicago fan writes: "After seeing Jane Withers here, I heard people whispering all over the theater, 'Gosh, she's good!' I remember her in 'Bright Eyes' with Shirley Temple. Seems to me Jane is going right ahead and Shirley is sort of lagging behind." This fan suggests Hollywood team Jane and Shirley, since they've both grown up, and let the fans judge which is better.

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ.

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠73 ♥1096 ♦KJ94 ♣KJ86
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 heart	1 spade

What do you bid now?

A.—Two hearts. We naturally prefer to have better trump support, but this is the lesser of evils. In view of our previous pass it is desirable to take some action and none other is available. To pass again might result in partner giving up the fight on a hand in which a part score could easily be scored.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠742 ♥AKQ92 ♦A5 ♣743
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 club	Pass	1 heart	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Three diamonds, preparatory to bidding game in hearts on the next round. This is a very mild slam effort. A straight leap to four hearts would not do complete justice to the hand. If partner happens to have good clubs and a singleton spade, a slam is probable.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠A642 ♥AK3 ♦A9 ♣AQ93
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
2 no trump	3 spades	6 clubs	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Seven clubs. While it is true that your hand contains only the required five and one-half honor tricks, the queen of clubs has become promoted in value and something is to be added for the fact that you have all the controls. The 150 score should be abandoned because the doubleton diamond promises to produce an additional trick by way of a ruff.

Q. 4—Opponent opens with three clubs and you hold:
♠AKJ74 ♥QJ105 ♦AK ♣98
What do you bid?

A.—Double. You should take the same type of action as you would have, had the bidding been opened with one club. This is a takeout double. As in all takeout doubles partner has the option of leaving it in if he thinks it will be more profitable to do so. There is no need for you to guess what suit to bid. Partner might be short in spades and have some length in hearts.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠J10643 ♥765 ♦53 ♣752
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
2 hearts	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four hearts. This bid does not indicate any strength, it merely denotes normal trump support for the rebid heart suit. You have already denied strength by your two no trump response. It would be completely pointless to show the spade suit. Nothing could be gained by it and confusion might result.

Q. 6—Partner opens with one heart and you hold:
♠KJ62 ♥QJ ♦AJ963 ♣54
What is your response?

A.—Two diamonds. A response of one spade because it is cheap would not be good tactics. This is a good hand opposite an opening bid of one heart and you should arrange to show both suits in their logical order, so that partner will know you have five diamonds and four spades. If your hand were weaker and you could not afford to show both suits, the response of one spade would be in order.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠KJ1053 ♥A5 ♦A6 ♣KJ96
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	3 no trump	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—There are several choices. One thing is certain, a pass would be incorrect because there is a very probable slam. You have three and one-half honor tricks and partner has at least three and one-half. The recommended bid is four clubs to show the semi-two suited nature of the hand. Partner may have four of that suit in which case the slam might be better playable in the minor. A bid of four no trump [not conventional] might be considered. A bid of four spades is better than a pass, but it is not recommended because it suggests that the hand is principally spades which is not the case.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠K10743 ♥52 ♦10765 ♣95
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. You have done your duty by keeping the bidding open once. Since partner's jump is not a force on you, you may pass in view of the shaded nature of your response.

Murder Most Foul in Two Film Versions

"I LOVE A MYSTERY"

By Mae Tinée

Jim Bannon, a smooth detective who knows just about everything, including medicine, ancient lore, and numerous languages, nonchalantly plays a bit of Tschaikowsky on the piano when confronted by a madman with a gun in hand who intends to kill him as the final touch to a throat slitting spree.

The trouble starts when Jim and his partner run into a millionaire who's gradually being frightened to death by a lot of claptrap about a bunch of eastern mystics who happen to want his head because he looks so much like their ancient leader, dead for a couple of thousand years. A pegleg man with a suitcase just the right size for the rich man's head follows him about the streets of San Francisco—just in case it should fall off, I suppose.

What really got me was that the sleuth, after tracking down and thoroly discrediting all the naughty people who cooked up the plot, is last seen with a mystic look on HIS pan, muttering about "the temple bells of Barhoukhan."

The cast isn't bad, but the story—O my!

"THE CRIME DOCTOR'S COURAGE"

Produced by Columbia, directed by George Sherman, featuring Warner Baxter, Hillary Brooke, Jerome Cowan, Robert Scott, Lloyd Corrigan, Emory Parnell, Stephen Crane, Charles Arnt, Anthony Caruso, Lupita Tovar, Dennis Moore, Jack Carrington, King Kong Kashay. Presented at the Grand.

Here's Warner Baxter in the fourth of a series of moives adapted from a radio program. The crime the great Dr. Ordway unravels has as many twists as the Mississippi river—and some of the reasoning is a great deal muddier. Beginning with a man whose first and second brides die suddenly on their honeymoons, the plot hops to a dinner party at which the bridegroom, who has just acquired a third wife, is murdered while a writer, a student, and a Spanish dance team are his houseguests. Then it leaps to a night club where the female half of the team disappears nightly before the eyes of the audience, and finally the plot climbs wearily up the mountains to a Spanish villa, the home of the dancers, who flatly state that they've been dancing for 300 years. After seeing the dance, I could almost believe it.

I doubt if this will frighten any one who's older than 2.

Need of Sewing Machines Is Told by Sally

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

Sewing machines continue to be in great demand. Requests for them are received almost daily from mothers who cannot keep up with the wear and tear given hand-sewn garments by their vigorous offspring, or from women who look to sewing as a means of livelihood and independence. Here are three such pleas:

"Dear Miss Brown: If one of your readers has a sewing machine that is no longer in use I would be very thankful for it. Fashioning clothing for my 12 year old son and my baby daughter, remodeling, and mending could be more easily accomplished than by the present painfully slow hand method. My husband is in the army and the allowance, which is enough for food, rent, and other current household bills, cannot cover our clothing needs."

Mrs. S., who lives west of the loop, is the widowed mother of boys, 8 and 12. The elder child has a heart ailment and attends a school for crippled children. An illness of several months has prevented Mrs. S.'s employment, and she has been unable to provide suitable clothing for her sons. She sews a great deal by hand in an effort to patch and keep the boys' clothing presentable, but finds it extremely difficult without a machine.

Mrs. X., a west side social worker, has requested an electric sewing machine for one of her clients, a woman who suffers with a progressive bone ailment in her foot and is therefore unable to use a treadle machine. Despite her painful disability, she is eager to earn her own living by sewing.

Thru the Looking Glass

We count among our favorite cosmetic gems of very little price some bath glorifiers in the sparkling, enchanting fragrance of blue field flowers.

These things aren't nearly as well known as they ought to be, but they're to be found in at least one shop in town—and any fastidious woman who likes clean, sweet perfumes in the preparations which make a bath a beauty rite should hie herself down for at least a look at them.

They're amazingly inexpensive, but they're packaged with remarkably chic taste and their quality is admirable. What's more, they've got charm. There's a whole family of 'em, but stocks are uneven these days and it may happen that not everything of the line is available at the precise moment you might want them. We do know, however, that the cologne concentrate is available—and that it's one of the most refreshing, uplifting things of its kind. The dusting powder is plentiful, too, and that tops off a bath or a shower the way a spring rain breaks a humid spell.

The fragrance is rather hard to describe, probably because it's a blend of so many good things, no one of which dominates. It's floral, of course, but its individual notes defy identification. It smells more like a sweet, old fashioned flower garden than anything else in the world. It even has the airy zest of an outdoor garden, which makes it ideal if you want a fragrance that is more lilting than languid.

Packages are a celestial blue and pink, with vivid little splatters of magenta, and they're pretty as pictures!

Chipman Yields 3 Hits in 1st Game

BY EDWARD BURNS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 22—All the Pirates had today to make a showing against the pennant conscious Cubs was a two run homer by Babe Dahlgren in the second game of a double header before a crowd of 27,690. Bob Chipman held them to three hits as the Cubs won the first game, 3 to 0, and the Chicagoans won the second encounter, 5 to 2, in which the Pirates made only five hits, four in four innings off Eddie Hanyzewski, one off Hy Vandenberg in 2⅓ innings and nothing resembling a safe one in 2⅔ of superb relief pitching by Ray Prim.

The victory made it three straight for the Cubs in the four game series with the Pirates after losing the opener with two out in the eighth inning. Yesterday and today the Pirates were runless in 24 innings excepting the pair accruing from Dahlgren's homer with two out in the fourth inning of this afternoon's second contest.

Prim Credited with Victory

Prim was the winning pitcher in the second game, tho Vandenberg was ahead when he retired after Tom O'Brien had tripled and Frank Gustine had walked to load the bases with one out. Prim then went in and made Pinch Batter Spud Davis hit into a double play.

In the first game Chipman, who won one and lost one in competition with the Pirates last season, wasn't touched for the first hit until Bob Elliott scratched a looping double back of first base with two out in the fourth. The second hit, also scratchy, was a single to short left by Gustine, with two out in the seventh, and the third and last, bona fide enough, was a rolling single by Johnny Barrett, in the eighth.

Two Pirates Reach 2d Base

The lefty walked six, five of them lead-off men, but promptly steadied in each instance. Only two Pirates got to second base, Elliott on his double and Pete Coscarart, who walked just before Barrett's single in the seventh.

The Cubs did all their scoring before the fifth putout was accomplished, off Fritz Ostermueller, who will leave tonight for his home in Quincy, Ill., for induction on May 3. The three runs included a theft of home by Roy Hughes for the second run in the first inning. Ostermueller was replaced by Xavier Rescigno, who held the Cubs to three hits in 6 2-3 innings, one from the third to the ninth inning. Max Butcher retired the side in order in the ninth.

Ostermueller Encounters Woe

Ostermueller, who also got in for brief punishment in the second game, had a most unhappy time during the four putouts he lasted in the first game. He started off by walking Stan Hack. Hughes then lined a long single to left, Hack reaching third. Phil Cavarretta struck out, but Bill Nicholson walked, loading the bases, whereupon Eddie Sauer filed to Jim Russell, Hack scoring and Hughes reaching third despite a cut-off of Russell's throw. Hughes stole home while Ostermueller was winding up to pitch to Andy Pafko, then Gustine threw out Andy to retire the side.

After Chipman had retired the Pirates in order in the home first, Johnson led off the second with a single to center. Livingston filed to Barrett, then Chipman sacrificed, and when Ostermueller threw over Coscarart's head at first, Johnson reached third and Chipman first. Hack singled to left, scoring Johnson and Rescigno replaced Ostermueller. Hughes bounced into a double play started by Elliott.

Johnson Makes Spectacular Catch

The Cubs were stopped in a big try for more runs in the third. After Cavarretta had again struck out, Nicholson banged a 429 foot double to the center field wall and stopped at third on Sauer's infield single. Pafko then popped to Dahlgren and Johnson popped to Coscarart.

The first hit off Chipman was a blooper double which Elliott, a right handed hitter, dropped near the foul line in short right after Barrett and Russell had been retired in the fourth inning. Tom O'Brien thought momentarily that he had dropped one in the same spot, but Don Johnson went over for a spectacular catch to retire the side.

The second hit off Chipman enabled the Pirates to get two runners on base for the first time in Detroit, Mich., April 22 (AP)—The Toronto Maple Leafs captured hockey's Stanley cup tonight by defeating the Detroit Red Wings, 2 to 1, in the seventh and deciding game of the play-off series.

Walter [Babe] Pratt, Toronto defenseman knocked in the winning goal with eight minutes to play—a rebounder from no more than three feet away.

Record Crowd Sees Game

The championship game tonight was played before 14,890 fans—largest hockey crowd ever to see a game in Detroit's Olympia arena.

The Red Wings, who had taken the three straight victories after falling behind, three games to none, thus found their hopes dashed after carrying the series to its ordinary limit of seven games.

Tie Last Four Minutes

Toronto scored first tonight after less than six minutes of play in the opening period, Mel Hill hammering in a rebounder from eight feet on an assist by Ted Kennedy.

Detroit tied it up in the third when Murray Armstrong fired a 15 footer into an empty net after Toronto Goalie Frank McCool had been pulled out to save on Bill [Flash] Hollett's shot but the score was deadlocked for only four minutes.

The Wings lost Center Syd Howe for high sticking Gus Bodnar and 19 seconds later, at 12:14 Pratt shoved in the winning goal.

Toronto, on Pratt's goal, averted a reverse repetition of its cup victory in 1942 when Detroit took the first three games and Toronto came back for four straight and the championship.

The Stanley cup and its companion runner-up trophy, the O'Brien cup, were awarded at center ice in post-game ceremonies.

Toronto's victory was its third in cup play since 1932.

McCool Records 15 Saves

Harry Lumley, who had blanked the Leafs in the fifth and sixth games of the final series, had less work in the Detroit nets tonight than he did in recording his 1 to 0 overtime shutout Saturday.

Lumley turned aside just 14 Toronto shots tonight—three of them in the final period. McCool, Maple Leaf goalie, had 15 saves.

Detroit had a last desperate chance to tie it up when Leaf Defenseman Elwyn Morris served a hooking penalty for the final 1¾ minutes but couldn't capitalize on Toronto's short-handed outfit.

SEA SWALLOW WINS TIA JUANA DERBY RENEWAL

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., April 22 (AP)—S. C. Howard's Sea Swallow, 3 year old son of Sea Biscuit, today won the renewal of the Tiajuana derby, a $10,000 added race.

Jockey Johnny Longden booted Sea Swallow to the wire two and a half lengths in front of Galliantti and Clark's Wise Eagle. S. D. Young's Private Young was third.

Sea Swallow returned $2.40 to win and $2.20 to place. There was no show betting on the small field.

IT'S a toss-up between the New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals as to which could field the strongest team among its players in military service. . . . The Yanks would have Bill Dickey, Rollie Hemsley, and Ken Sears catching; Spud Chandler, Red Ruffing, Marius Russo, and Mel Queen pitching; Buddy Hassett, Joe Gordon, Phil Rizzuto, and Bill Johnson in the infield, and Tom Henrich, Joe Di Maggio, and Charley Keller in the outfield. . . . The Cards could approach the American leaguers' outfield with Enos Slaughter, Terry Moore, and Stan Musial, but they might be a trifle weak in the infield with Jimmy Brown, Frank Crespi, and Lou Klein and in the catching department with only Gerry Burmeister, but how about a pitching staff made up of Johnny Beazley, Howard Pollet, Alpha Brazle, George Munger, Murray Dickson, Howard Krist, and Ernie White? . . . Come to think of it, one of those would have to play first base. . . . Sweating It Out

[For Lt. Dave Field, Oak Park, Ill.]

"I'm sweating it out," he wrote me,
In mingled dread and joy,
"Because I should hear any minute
If it is a girl or boy";

Thus the pilot of a bomber wrote me long ago,
"I'll hold this until I hear, and then
Add a postscript to let you know."

Can you picture that brave lad waiting
In some far Pacific sea,
Waiting in apprehensive dread
For what the tidings might be?
"We'll call her Jean Ann if she's a girl,
Justin if he's a boy,"
In the wavering of the penmanship
You could sense his tremulous joy.

And down at the bottom there it was—
A blotted, hurried swirl,
And I read with the aid of my spy glass,
"Whoopee! Hurray! It's a girl!"
So I'm writing these lines for that new young dad
Off there across the foam,
And for all of the others among his brave brothers
Awaiting the same news from home.

Lilac Time

Today the lilacs are in bloom again,
Spilling enchanting fragrance on the air
And painting purple beauty in the lane
With amethystine tints beyond compare;
And there is bird song falling like a shower
Across the verdant meadowlands of spring
That seem to blend with every bud and flower
And with the sun's glint on the robin's wing.

But lilac perfume only brings to me
A pang of sorrow and of deep regret
Because it wakens scenes in memory
That I have longed to blot out and forget;
I still can see the teardrops on your cheek
That night I said good-by and went away,
You were too full of sorrowing to speak
And I pretended to be blithe and gay.

Would that some angel might roll back the years
And let us stroll once more along the lane
Before we knew the agony of tears,
Before our hearts had felt the sting of pain!
O, I have sought for you day after day,
Keeping you ever in my daily prayer,
Hoping sometime to meet you on the way
With smiling eyes and lilacs in your hair.
—T. E. B.

BOMAR, FLESCH LOSE PIN CROWN TO DETROIT PAIR

Walter Reppenhagen and William Kenet, Detroit last night took the national doubles match game bowling title from Chicago's Buddy Bomar and Bill Flesch, completing their 42-game series, contested in six 7-game blocks, with a total of 27½ points to 20½. The match was held in Faetz recreation, 5961 N. Ridge av.

The new champions thus earned their second national title, since they are members of the Joe Norris' Stroh Bohemians, national team match game champions.

They Clinch It Quickly

Reppenhagen and Kenet, needing only two victories in the last block of seven games, made certain of their title by taking the first two. They also won the sixth and seventh, turning in a 520 total for the final game, the highest team score for the entire series. In this game Reppenhagen shot 263 and Kenet 257.

The totals for the final block were 3,041 for the Detroiters, 3,039 for the Chicagoans, presenting respective 42-game sums of 17,432 to 7,649. Altho they outscored their opponents in total pins, Bomar and Flesch lost thru the point system employed which awarded one point for each game won and a point for higher total in each seven game block.

In the 42 games, the new champions won 23 games, lost 18 and tied one.

Task Too Difficult

In yesterday afternoon's block Bomar and Flesch took four games and five points, but still needed to win six of the seven games in the final block. They trailed at this point, 22½ to 17½.

Coyle Takes First Match in Handball

Frank Coyle, New York A. C., defending champion, opened the defense of his senior National A. A. U. four wall handball title yesterday with a sweeping 21-4, 21-7 second round victory over Erskin Good, Kansas City, Mo., on Town club courts in the Continental hotel. Saturday Coyle won his first round match on default over William Ranft, Los Angeles A. C.

Platak Seeks to Regain Title

Besides Coyle, other outstanding players who are participating in the meet include Joe Platak, Chicago, whose eight year monopoly of the national handball title was broken last year by Coyle; Sam Atcheson, Memphis, Tenn., two time champion; Angelo Trulio, New York, another former title holder; Jack Strenco, St. Louis, Mo., national Y. M. C. A. champion and national junior title holder; Anthony Gentile, Philadelphia, Pa., and William Lauro, Brooklyn fireman who holds the National A. A. U. handball singles crown.

Contestants in the meet will be honored Friday night at a benefit banquet in the Continental hotel.

54,014 See Gay Dalton Win in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, April 22 (AP)—Gay Dalton breezed past Famous Victory near the finish to win the $25,000 added handicap De Las Americas by a length today. Six lengths behind was the Chilean horse, Tamesis.

A record crowd, officially announced as 54,014, witnessed the mile and one-quarter race, richest of the year, at the Hipodromo De Las Americas.

The 5 year old son of American Flag returned $2.20, $2.20, and $2.20 across the board. Famous Victory, former Greentree stable horse, paid $2.20 for place and $2.60 for show.

Won in 2.06.4

Gay Dalton, packing 130 pounds to 119 for his closest rival, and with Ralph Neves up, finished in 2:06 2-5 or four-fifths of a second slower than the record he set in winning the same race last year. The track was good.

The other eight horses finished in this order: Sickletoy, Argentinebred Samboromboh, Nipsickle, Soldiers Cap, Broad Grin, Kaopua, Defense, and Chilean-bred Pastenaca. Recognize scratched.

Gay Dalton's owner, Mrs. Patrick O'Hay of Taos, N. M., wept on the shoulders of admirers after the race. Senorita Rharito Cisneros, daughter of Peruvian Ambassador Luis Fernan Cisneros, dean of the diplomatic corps, decorated the winner.

Lagged at Start

Gay Dalton won in his usual sensational manner. He lagged behind the first mile, then moved up rapidly and duelled with Famous Victoroy in the stretch. Tamesis was nervous at the start, being unfamiliar with automatic starting gates, but was among the leaders thruout.

Mexican-owned Woven Web, ridden by A. Craig and trained by L. Gentry, tied the world record of 27 1-5 for two and one-half furlongs set here earlier this season by Mrs. H. P. Bonner's Jack Oldham.

HAYNES, GROVE STOP BROWNS WITH 8 HIT JOBS

Farrell's Pinch Hit Breaks Up Opener

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

James Dykes' White Sox continue to be the frisky boys of the American league. Their season's work remained spotless yesterday after two jousts with the champion St. Louis Browns before 13,781 Comiskey park patrons. They extended their splurge to four straight by taking the front end of a double header, 4 to 3, the task involving 10 innings, and then prolonged their membership in the One Thousand Per Cent club with success No. 5. The count in this one was 5 to 3.

Both matches saw Joe Haynes and Orval Grove in their maiden starts of the year and each still was present at the finish. The Browns weren't quite this fortunate with their starters. Jack Kramer was hurriedly removed from the first game when the Sox indicated they had seventh inning plans for breaking a 3 to 3 deadlock, his successor, Alvis Shirley, delaying the knockout punch until the tenth. Sig Jakucki went into action in the second game and despite a steady stream of hits held his own until the Sox roped him with two runs in the eighth.

Farrell's Hit Wins Opener.

When Shirley took over in Kramer's behalf in the seventh, Wally Moses was on second as the result of a leadoff double. The rescuer stopped that threat in a hurry. He also put a check on the Sox when they loaded the bases with one out in the ninth. But three successive hits in the tenth proved just a bit too much. Cass Michaels and Mike Tresh clipped Shirley for singles with one out, whereupon Dykes introduced his newcomer, Kerby Farrell. The lad drove the first pitch for a single into right to send Michaels in with the deciding run.

Vern Stephens helped build up the Sox winning sortie in the eighth inning of the second game by throwing wild on Bill Nagel's grounder. Joe Orengo, who got into the party because Tony Cucinello, pulled a back muscle, promptly sacrificed and Leroy Schalk was purposely passed. Michaels responded with his third hit of the game, Nagel scoring and Schalk taking third. The Sox, to show there is no limit to their skill, brought Schalk home on a squeeze bunt engineered by Tresh.

Joe Has One Bad Inning

The Browns stepped into a three run lead in the third inning of the first game, not so much on their hitting as on Haynes' liberality. The Sox right hander asked for excitement by starting the inning with a pass to Kramer who was bunted to second by Don Gutteridge. A double by Milt Byrnes scored Kramer. The bases then were loaded on passes to George McQuinn and Boris Martin. Then Gene Moore spanked a single into center to account for the two other runs.

The Sox got a flying start in the fourth by filling the bases before anybody was retired. This bit of artistic work was done on singles by John Dickshot and Nagel and a pass to Orengo. Dickshot legged it to the plate on Schalk's fly to Martin and a single by Tresh scored Nagel. Then Orengo coaxed another pass from Kramer in the sixth and carried in the tying run with the help of singles by Schalk and Michaels. Then came the winning 10th.

Mr. Michaels Is Busy

The Sox featured the opening inning of the second game with doubles by Moses and Dickshot, the display of power netting them a one run edge. This lasted only until the second inning when Stephens, after leading off with a single, scored the tying run from second when Schulte's roller escaped Michaels. The champions gave back the run in the same inning. Michaels singled, went from first to third on a wild pitch and continued to the plate when Frank Mancuso,

YANKEES BEAT SENATORS, 5-2; WIN SERIES, 2-1

Errors Pave the Way for New York Victory

Washington, D. C., April 22 (AP)—Three unearned runs in the first inning today enabled the Yankees to defeat Washington's Senators, 5 to 2, giving the Yankees the series, two games to one.

Hank Borowy limited the Senators to three hits.

After two were out in the first inning, the Yankees scored three unearned runs off Dutch Leonard. Russ Derry, was safe when Joe Kuhel fielded his smash and threw wild to Leonard, covering first. John Lindell then singled, Nick Etten doubled and Joe Buzas singled.

Only one of the game's seven runs was earned, that coming on Lindell's double and Buzas' single in the Yankees' two run attack in the fifth. The game was watched by 16,564 fans.

Democrat Denounced for 'Irresponsible' Acts

Washington, D. C., April 22 [Special]—Rep. Sabath [D., Ill.], who inserted in the Congressional Record a paper attacking various Americans as Fascists, brought down upon his head today an avalanche of denunciation from the ones he had attacked. He was termed an ass, a fool, and an irresponsible individual.

Sabath had described his paper as a "war department warning" and a "United States expose of native fascism." He did not go into the authorship or circumstances of the "expose," beyond attributing it to the war department and saying it had been issued to forces overseas. The war department declined to comment.

Sabath's document said that "right now our native Fascists are spreading anti-British, anti-soviet, anti-French, and anti-united nations propaganda."

"Plot" Against Unity Charged

It asserted that Fascists in America are pitting "religious, racial, and economic groups against one another in order to break down national unity"

Adding his own comment to the paper, Sabath said:

"Mr. Speaker, I only regret that the rules and regulations of the war department precluded the naming of outstanding American Fascists, such as the du Ponts, the Pews, the Girdlers, the Weirs, Van Horn Moseley, H. W. Prentis Jr., Merwin K. Hart, and others. . . ."

In New York, E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel corporation, had this to say of Sabath's accusation:

"It's such a ridiculous and perfectly assinine statement that there's no comment you can make about it. It's like a boy calling names without expressing what he means."

"A Fool," Says Prentis

From his home in Lancaster, Pa., Prentis commented: "After all the public addresses I have made in behalf of the basic principles on which the republic was established, any man who calls me a Fascist is a fool and an ass."

Joseph N. Pew Jr., industrialist and Sun Oil company executive, said in Philadelphia: "There is no use commenting on irresponsible statements by irresponsible individuals."

Irenee du Pont, director of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company, said in Wilmington, Del.: "I haven't the slightest idea of what this man is talking about. It strikes me as being very amusing."

Asks End of Name Calling

Maj. Gen. George van Horn Moseley, retired, said in Atlanta, Ga.:

"It strikes me that the period of smearing, name calling . . . should be at an end. Our Heavenly Father, in his great wisdom, has given us a new President. All parties, all creeds, and all races should now unite under his leadership and clean house, restoring and protecting those basic principles which have made our republic famous and outstanding in the history of the world."

TRUMAN VISITS WAR VETS, SEES PERSHING, AND GOES TO CHURCH

Washington, D. C., April 22 (AP)—President Truman worshiped with the war wounded at Walter Reed army hospital today in an interdenominational church service. Later he and his family visited John J. Pershing, 84, general of the armies. They dropped in to shake hands with wounded officers and men in the hospital.

It was Mr. Truman's first Sabbath in the capital since he became President.

In the gray stone, ivy covered chapel of the hospital the President joined with soldiers, officers, and WACs in prayer and singing of the hymns. In a strong voice he joined in singing the processional hymn "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus."

NEW SUBSIDIES, CURBS TRIED IN MEAT SCARCITY

OPA to Treble Staff of Investigators

Under pressure of vigorous complaints to congress, the government yesterday announced a new attack on the meat problem in a program that will cost the public an additional 27 million dollars a year in federal subsidies and treble the number of price administration investigators. One authority said Chicago's meat supplies may increase slightly in two weeks.

The new 10 point plan was prepared by the office of economic stabilization, the OPA, the war food administration, and the war department. It was offered as the administration awaited congressional action on legislation to extend the life of OPA.

The program will attempt to break up the illegal market, ease packers' financial losses, and bring more meat to tables by increasing federal meat inspection, cutting farm slaughtering, adding 500 OPA investigators, and increasing subsidies to packers.

Held Proof of Charges

The American Meat institute — which speaks for the meat packing industry—hailed the program only as substantiation for its accusation earlier in the day that recent statements by OPA officials concerning meat industry profits are "pure fiction."

Assessing the complicated new program, the institute said, "It will take time to determine the exact effect of these new orders on the beef end of the business. And we still don't know what will happen to pork. It is gratifying, however, that the government has at last recognized that the profits of the meat industry—or the lack of them—demand adjustment.

"It appears that the contentions of the meat industry regarding the lack of truth in OPA statements about profits are well founded in the face of this eleventh hour subsidy relief."

The prediction of slightly more meat for Chicago came from John A. Kotal, executive secretary of the National Association of Retail Meat Dealers which has campaigned vigorously for some of the new measures.

No Retail Price Increase

The program permits no increase in retail price ceilings, said William H. Davis, director of economic stabilization. The 27 million dollars in increased subsidies will be added to a government meat subsidy bill which already runs about 560 million dollars annually. The program provides:

1. Control of the amount of slaughter by non-federally inspected packers. Because most federally inspected plants are in large cities and away from producing areas, the meat is expected to move to them, thus providing better distribution.

2. A limit on farm slaughtering to sell. This will increase marketing in regular channels and reduce the supply for storage lockers.

3. A vigorous enforcement drive with 500 more investigators. Criminal prosecutions will be intensified.

4. A special subsidy—in addition to all others — to assure that no slaughterers who made money in peace time will be forced out of business by OPA regulations.

Cancel Ceiling Reduction

5. Encouragement of cattle "feeding" by cancellation of a reduction in the subsidy on choice cattle and of a scheduled 50 cent reduction in the cattle ceiling set for July 2. This should result in heavier cattle.

6. Immediate increases totaling 7 million dollars annually in ceiling prices for army beef. Along with this the spread between subsidies on top cattle and the lower grades was increased 25 cents a hundred pounds.

7. A speed-up by the army in its program of encouraging packers to take federal inspection. If the army can reach 10 per cent of its requirements in this way it will free more meat for civilians in big cities who now get what is left after the army takes 60 per cent of the federally inspected meat. At present only about a third of the total supply has federal inspection.

8. A request to packers to distribute their meat fairly with allocation threatened if the request fails.

May Allocate Live Stock

9. Completion of pork cost study to determine whether subsidy or ceiling price increases are necessary. Any allowed would be retroactive to April 1.

10. A program to protect live stock ceilings, if competition threatens them under the new subsidies, by apportioning available animals to federally inspected plants.

The meat institute charged yesterday before the program was announced that OPA statements to congressional committees "presented a distorted and misleading picture of conditions in the meat industry." OPA said profits last year were seven times as large, before taxes, as from 1936 to 1939. The institute said packers in 1944 had a lower percentage of net income [after taxes] than any of 29 leading manufacturing industries.

COLLEGE INVESTMENTS—6

YALE UNIVERSITY

Yale university in its large purchases of common stocks has sought to minimize and distribute risks thru wide diversification. Some 60 industrial common stocks were held as of last June 30, representing a variety of manufacturing activities, merchandising, and mining. The holdings included smaller numbers of railroad, public utility, bank, and insurance issues.

Book value of common stocks held in the general endowment funds, including those of the affiliated Sheffield Scientific school, was $31,032,882, or 28.8 per cent of the combined holdings of all investments aggregating $107,681,530. Preferred stocks were listed at $16,015,551, bonds $39,663,916, and real estate $5,309,562.

In the university's own endowment funds, excluding Sheffield, commitments in individual common stocks ranged, for the most part, between $100,000 and $500,000, with a few amounting to $800,000 or more. One of the largest holdings was a block of 5,900 shares of American Telephone and Telegraph, carried at $917,442.

With only a few exceptions, the stocks are listed and generally have excellent marketability. Among the industrials are Air Reduction, Allied Chemical and Dye, American Can, American Tobacco, Chrysler, Columbian Carbon, Corn Products Refining, Dome Mines, du Pont, Eastman Kodak, General Electric, General Mills, Homestake Mining, International Harvester, Johns-Manville, and Kennecott Copper. Others are Libbey-Owens-Ford, National Biscuit, New Jersey Zinc, Reynolds Tobacco B, Sears-Roebuck, Sterling Drug, Underwood, Union Carbide and Carbon, United Fruit, Westinghouse Electric, Woolworth, General Motors, and a number of leading oils.

Included among common stocks are 15 public utilities, six rails, eight insurance companies, seven New York banks, and the Continental-Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago.

A comparison of the Yale university portfolio distribution by percentages for years prior to 1942, when the shift from bonds to stocks was most pronounced, is given in the following table:

Percentages of Investments by Classes
	1917	1929	1941
Bonds	80.3	39.5	32.5
Pfr and common stocks	10.0	33.7	*45.6
Mortgages and other	17.0	13.3	6.5
Real estate	11.7	13.0	9.3
Unadjusted and sundry	1.0	1.5	5.2
Total	100.0	100.0	100.0

*Preferred stocks, 15.7 per cent, common stocks 29.9 per cent.

†Plant values are included only to a limited extent.

Since 1941 Yale increased its investment in United States government bonds from $2,064,172 to $5,862,281.

FEWER ORDERS FOR STEEL LOST THAN PREDICTED

Cleveland, O., April 22 (AP)—Steel order cancelations have developed, but they are fewer than expected in view of recent war contract cutbacks, Steel magazine reported today.

Ordnance officials have instructed manufacturers in some instances to leave orders with mills, pending word as to ultimate disposition of the steel.

10 CHICAGO AREA FIRMS GET U. S. SAFETY AWARDS

Ten industrial plants in Chicago and vicinity have been awarded certificates of safety achievement by Secretary of Labor Perkins for attaining their accident reduction quotas of 40 per cent or more in the drive for a million fewer industrial accidents.

Ernest S. Beaumont, Illinois state chairman of the national committee for the conservation of man power in war industries, said yesterday that the awards have been made to the following:

Chicago box division, Fort Wayne Corrugated Paper company, 4500 S. Kolin av.; Shure Brothers, 225 W. Huron st.; Belmont Radio company, 5921 W. Dickens av.; American Can company, 1834 Clybourn av.; American Can company, North Chicago; Chicago works, Aluminum Company of America, Brookfield; Chicago Hardware Foundry company, North Chicago; Ceco Steel Products corporation, Cicero; Wyman-Gordon company, Harvey; and the central spare parts warehouse of George A. Fuller company and Merritt-Chapman & Scott corporation, Joliet.

UNION OFFICIAL OUT, FOUNDRY TO RE-OPEN TODAY

Port Huron, Mich., April 22 (AP)—Operations of the United Brass and Aluminum company, closed nearly a month as the result of labor controversies, will be resumed tomorrow, stockholders voting last night to rescind an April 7 decision to liquidate the foundry.

The stockholders' action followed removal last Thursday from office of John E. Hand, president of local 628, AFL United Automobile Workers, by union members.

After the foundry was shut down March 28 by a strike involving the transfer of a molder, Leroy S. Wilson, president, announced he would not negotiate with the union until Hand was removed. He charged the company operated practically at a loss during the last two years because of labor disturbances instigated by Hand.

People and Events

Disposal of surplus government materials will be discussed at a meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers tonight in the Hamilton hotel. Lt. Col. William J. Hallahan, attached to the warehousing and disposition section of the United States engineers' office in Chicago, and Peter I. Bukowski, of the Chicago office of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, will be the speakers.

Albert A. Morey and Lawrence S. Myers, assistant vice presidents of Marsh & McLennan, Inc., insurance broker, will discuss property and casualty insurance at a meeting of the Chicago control of the Controlers Institute of America tomorrow night in the Union League club.

The Rockford clutch division of the Borg-Warner plant at Rockford, Ill., has been awarded the army-navy E for the fourth time, and the mechanics universal joint division of Borg-Warner has been given an approved quality control rating by the army's air technical service command.

Henry T. Heald, president of the Illinois Institute of Technology, announced the appointment of Comdr. Elmer Shaw Pettyjohn as director of the Institute of Gas Technology of the Illinois Institute of Technology, effective on termination of his naval service.

Asserts Farm Problem Is Not One, but Many

The wide variation in farming methods, in farm income, and in all the characteristics of farms as producing units has caused some of the most conflicting problems confronting the industry, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States said yesterday in a report prepared by its agricultural committee.

"Yet there has persisted almost unchallenged a popular belief that there is such a degree of uniformity within the industry that any program will be effective in benefiting all segments of the agricultural group equally," said the report.

Statistical Data Lacking

Contributing to these misconceptions has been the continued lack of available statistical data which would serve as a guide in the formulation and application of agricultural policies.

"An outstanding example of the failure to recognize and make allowance for variation in the agricultural industry and to make use of adequate data is found in the agricultural adjustment act of 1938 which is now in force and which constitutes the basis of the present agricultural program," it said.

The most important thing about a farm is the amount and value of its production. Income differences between farms have both economic and social significance and may provide a basis for the formulation of policies and legislation designed to affect the farm population's economic welfare, said the report.

Stable Employment Urged

Among specific recommendations made by the group was the proposal that every effort be made to maintain stable nonagricultural employment at adequate wages to avoid fostering uneconomic agricultural units.

Asserting that programs designed to improve economic conditions of the larger farmers are unsuited to the needs of the lower producing farmers, it said efforts should be made to obtain supplementary income from nonagricultural sources in the event an expansion of farm output for market purposes is not justified.

N. A. M. SENDING 3 TO PARLEY AT SAN FRANCISCO

New York, April 22 (AP)—A consultant and two associates, invited by Secretary of State Stettinius to assist the American delegation, will represent the National Association of Manufacturers at the San Francisco conference, the N. A. M. announced today.

The consultant will be the chairman of the N. A. M. board, Robert Gaylord, president of the Ingersoll Milling Machine company, Rockford, Ill. As N. A. M. president last year, Gaylord took a prominent part in the international business conference at Rye, N. Y.

His associate consultants will be W. W. Cumberland, economist and partner of the investment banking firm of Wellington & Co., and Hugh O'Connor, staff member of N. A. M., who served as public relations director of the international business conference.

BELMONT RADIO TO RUN SURPLUS SALES FOR DSC

The Belmont Radio corporation has assumed management of a central plant for the disposal of surplus military electronic equipment at 3633 S. Racine av. as agent of the Defense Supplies corporation, the company announced yesterday. The plant, ultimately to occupy 72,000 square feet of floor space, will serve as a regional redistribution center for electronic and radio material that is obsolete or surplus for military needs, or has been salvaged. Equipment will be that released by the signal corps or the navy and not returned to the original manufacturers for disposal as agents of the DSC.
